The Man In The Street

"Moving Day" is drawing near, but "Sock Day" is closer.

The day is also approaching when the annual spring cleaning for the city beautiful should be held.

After the order given this week, placing soldiers on the water-wagon in St. John, they should have no fear of an ocean voyage provided they keep their seats.

"It's a long time between drinks," says Lord Kitchener to King George.

The next step in the way of adding to Jess Willard's fame will be to have our Canadian boys at the front writing home telling of "Jess Willard's" exploding in the Germans' midst.

Now that Johnson's lost his punch will they still call those big shells "Jack Johnson's"?

Archaeologist lecturer this week said that "Obelisk" is not a name for a street car in those days.

The converted cruiser "Prinz Eitel Friedrich" has been interned at New-Pointe. She is now thoroughly converted.

No matter which side wins out in this Nietzsche discussion, lots of people will never know whether the name of a drink or a new kind of breakfast food.

And most people would prefer not to pronounce it.

With wide skirts coming in style, women should be able to make longer strides towards getting the vote.

What They Fling at the "Man in the Street"

"What's the weather for tomorrow?" "You fellows guess it pretty well—something."

"I'm gonna send you a poem some time—just to brighten up your column."

"Would you sooner get off or on a street car at a crossing, or in the mud past the crossing?"

"Yes, I know that's a silly question, but there's a by-law saying the car mustn't stop on the crossing."

"And of course, it depends on what street the crossing is—in North End, Frisiance, some of them are playing hide and seek with the mud."

Warnbad, a place in German Africa recently captured, sounds like a good place to tell the Kaiser to go to.

Hints on How to Get Rich

Have your brother elected to parliament, then start a drug store.

Secure a government contract for soldiers' boots, then use cardboard instead of leather.

Get an agency for motor trucks, then "see" the man who buys for the war department.

Or the binocular business seems to offer opportunities for an enterprising man. Or the jam trade.

Now that they are talking of allowing the annex with the forces to vote, which the suffragettes rush to crush.

They Read It, Anyway

On tomorrow, no doubt, some of the ministers will consider it their duty to denounce the prize fight. They will say for instance:

"The deplorable event of last week in which the negro took the count in the twenty-sixth round, was one of the most shocking incidents of a modern civilization. Although Jess Willard is hailed by many as a hero let us remember that such an achievement is no credit to the white race and besides he had an advantage of twenty pounds weight and a much longer reach. The spectacle of two human beings pounding each other even with the padded mitts, is a regrettable ideal to hold before the young people of our country. There was but little science to excuse such an encounter; you would excuse that the black man was the superior in skill and it was only by brute force that Willard was able to stand the punishment and emerge victorious in such an achievement when Johnson seven or eight years older than his opponent, showed his superiority until the twentieth round, when his age began to tell on him. Not only should such affairs be prohibited, but all mention of them should be eliminated from the newspapers."

Even a panson sometimes indicates that he reads the sporting columns, at least enough to acquaint himself with the customs which he wishes to discourage.

LEFT CHAIN GANG BECAUSE THE WORK WAS TOO HARD

Barney Barry and James Boyd were committed for trial in the police court this morning on charges of escaping from lawful custody. Special Policeman Beckett testified that Boyd escaped from the chain gang on May 28, 1914. Barry, he said, escaped on Tuesday, March 23, 1915. When asked if he had anything to say he replied that the work was too hard for him and that was the reason he ran away.

MARRIED IN MONTREAL

To two young St. John people on Tuesday was given the honor of being the first to be married in the new Congress church, attached to St. Patrick's Cathedral, Montreal. The new edifice which has only recently been completed, was used for the first time for the performance of a wedding ceremony when Miss Jennie Fitzgerald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fitzgerald, became the bride of Louis McDonald. Both are of this city. The wedding was performed by Rev. Frank Singleton, brother-in-law of the bride. W. P. McDonald, Sr. of this city, returned home today accompanied by his wife after having attended the ceremony.

Following the wedding Mr. and Mrs. McDonald left on a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara, returning later to Port Colborne, Ont., where the groom is engaged with the Canada Cement Company as civil engineer. Both Mr. and Mrs. McDonald have numerous friends about St. John who will wish them happiness.

LANCASTER BOY SCOUTS INSPECTED

Fine Appearance on First Review—Watch Presented to Richard McLaeay

Lancaster has another new organization, and one to which the community looks for considerable results, likely to be justified by the general appearance and enthusiasm of the lads of Lancaster Troop No. 1 Boy Scouts, who were officially inspected yesterday afternoon. The troop lined up near Barnhill's Corner about 4:30 p.m. in command of Scout Master Glendon H. Allan, and the thirty lads or so, ranging in age from fourteen to eighteen years, presented a splendid appearance, considering the few weeks in which they have been under instructions.

The president of the St. John Council, A. C. Skilton, with Messrs. Ingleton and Legge, made a preliminary inspection, after which the lads formed up and marched to their grounds on the old Hatheway property, Manawagush road, named with best wishes for the movement by Percy W. Thomson of St. John. Here a thorough inspection was made by the officials, who congratulated the lads on their initial showing. Rev. F. R. Hayward, who has taken a deep interest in the organization, and expects to qualify as scout master to assist Mr. Allan, also addressed the boys, urging them to persevere in bringing the troop up to a high standard by personal application.

When the visitors were leaving they received the "Lancaster Tiger," an original yell destined to become famous. The five patrols which form the troop, then made camp fires and cooked supper. When full justice had been done, even counting on a boy's appetite, a few manoeuvres were gone through and the troop returned to the village.

The lads are procuring uniforms as rapidly as possible, and have made such progress with the work that Scout Master Allan believes they will qualify as tenderfoots within a fortnight. They have secured a log cabin on the Fair property at Spruce Lake as their official summer camp, and William Abel has given them the use of a small building as a half way house for shelter and rest.

The following are the officers: Scout Master, Glendon H. Allan. Asst. Scout Master, F. Barnhill. Patrol No. 1, "The Lions"—Patrol Leader, Packard Campbell; Corporal, Ronald Heenan. Patrol No. 2, "The Ravens"—Patrol Leader, Leslie Linton; Corporal, Harold Green. Patrol No. 3, "The Beavers"—Patrol Leader, Ralph Huettis; Corporal, Louis Gill. Patrol No. 4, "The Wolves"—Patrol Leader, George Tippet; Corporal, Ivan Nelson. Patrol No. 5, "The Panthers"—Patrol Leader, Fred Duff; Corporal, Wm. Stinson.

The employees of the Wilson Box Mfg. Co., Fairville, presented to George Compton, one of their fellow workers, a silver watch yesterday afternoon. Richard McLaeay gave a short address and made the presentation on behalf of the men. Mr. Compton, though taken by surprise, replied fittingly, expressing his thanks. He is to leave for Westfield, where he will be employed by the firm all summer, and his friends took this opportunity of bidding him goodbye and expressing esteem.
