TO GO ON FARMS

Ottawa has knuckled down in earnest to the business of getting women workers to replace men temporarily released for farm work. The Women's Canadian Club is working in conjunction with the Ottawa Branch of the Organization of Resources Committee towards this end. Already more than 100 women have pledged themselves and a number of those who have volunteered want to go out on the farms themselves. No inclination to help the farmer's wife indoors is shown, however.

Alkali in Shampoos
Bad For the Hair

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it. The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mildified coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mildified coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

Just One Application and the Hairs Vanish

Any woman can keep her skin free from unsightly hair or fuzz if she will follow these simple instructions. When hairy growths appear, apply a simple paste, made by mixing some water with powdered delatone. Apply this to hairy surface and after two or three minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is a harmless treatment, but be sure you get the real delatone.

LET'S TALK IT OVER.

THINGS IN GENERAL.

By the way there is a slogan which is being very generally distributed in our midst: "Change conversation for conservation." I hope that does not mean these talks!

In thinking what I would write about this week my mind refused to allow any idea but that of gardening to enter. Now gardens have been written of and talked about to a very great extent lately, but when one's back is aching after weeding and there are decided traces of good old earth in one's fingernails (how many people can work in gloves?) you are apt to be thinking about those beans, lettuce and potatoes and wonder how they are going to turn out.

Personally, I have always declared that my garden suffered from the atmosphere of unbelief in which it was planted. There lives in our house a sceptical person who says, while the garden is being dug, "Nothing will grow there. It is not sunny enough, or the soil is not good enough or any other of a hundred and one reasons why the garden should not flourish. If there is anything in an encouraging environment there must be something in the opposite and it is my firm belief that my seeds have their feelings hurt and refuse to grow. That may not be the reason for my want of success as a farmerette, though influence is supposed to be a mighty power. That is a more romantic reason than want of good judgment in planting, watering and weeding! Coming in the train the other day, I heard a funny recital of gardening experiences. Two sisters were talking, both young and pretty. (You will see why, said "young" after a while.) "Yes, we had a garden last year," the fair one said, "and everything grew beautifully, only they forgot to grow big. We had the nicest little cabbages, cauliflowerers and lettuce, but just as if they were miniature vegetables. We planted a bushel of big potatoes and all we got was a bushel of tiny ones."

"And we had the dearest little cucumbers," the dark sister said, with a smile. "We didn't mean them to be small, but they stayed that way. So mother thought she would pickle them and she tried a new recipe and it was a failure, so we didn't even get cucumber pickles for all our hard work."

"But we're planting twice as much this year, and we are sure it will be better."

Now, now see why I told you they were young. Surely youth is the time of optimism, and anyone over twenty would have given up farming, I venture to think. These sisters are fine workers in a Patriotic Society, and they are always ready for any opportunity to help a good cause. So here's good luck to all the little farms and gardens all about the land. They are planted with hope and good intentions, and surely the sun will shine and the showers rain upon them this year above all other years for the good of the hungry people overseas.

MARGUERITE.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When potatoes are used in bread-making, allowance must be made for the large natural moisture content of the tuber, and less liquid should be added to the ingredients.

To extract juice from an onion, press the surface of a raw onion against a grater, move it slightly and the juice will run off the point of the grater. A few drops of onion juice improve make-over meat dishes.

To mend a glove that is split at the thumb or near a seam, buttonhole the kid either side of the split and then sew the buttonhole together. The result will be a new firm seam. When button-holing take a good hold, otherwise the stitches will pull out from the kid.

Break eggs one at a time into a saucer so that in case one is not fresh the others will not be affected.

Keep a piece of an old bath towel or a wad of cheese cloth in a small bag near your dressing table. If you wipe the bristles of your hair brush after using it you won't have to wash the brush quite so often, and it will do better work between washings.

A piece of white blotting paper placed under the table cloth where the flower vase stands in the centre of the table will prevent any moisture from spoiling the surface of the table.

To clean wetter chairs use a solution of salt and water, which not only removes dirt and stains or spots, but seems to freshen up the wicker. Instead of making it limp, it seems to give a sort of new crispness even to an old wicker chair.

Is good for hair brushes, too; it seems to renew the firmness and stiffness.

When boiling rice add a little lemon juice to the water. This makes the rice white and separates the grains.

A SUBSTITUTE.
Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuft of grass, eating her curds and whey. She said, "They're not filling. But still I am willing, You know it's a needless day."

INCENDIARY BURNS
NEGUAC BUILDINGS

Mill and Cook House in Lower Village Destroyed.

Special to The Standard.

Chatham, June 11.—Millet Stewart, of Lower Neguac, lost a building formerly used as a lumber factory and a cook house adjoining by fire on Sunday night. There had been no fire in the building for several days, in fact no stove. Mr. Stewart believes the fire was the work of some malicious person. There was no insurance on the property. In one of the buildings only 14 barrels were saved.

There have been one or two mysterious fires in that locality recently and efforts are to be made to apprehend the guilty parties.

"The war can be lost in America as well as on the fields of France, and ill-considered or unjustified interruption of the essential labor of the country may make it impossible to win it," said the president's telegram.
