Penobscot

Penobscot, N. B., Dec. 3.—A meeting of the members of the Penobscot school district was held in the school house on Tuesday evening to discuss the advisability of disposing with the services of one teacher and running both departments in one room. The number of scholars in this school has dwindled from an average of a few years ago of 15 scholars to an average this term of 25. Opinions were heard both in favor of the proposed arrangement and against it. It was argued that although the number of scholars were fewer there were still the same number of grades, and it would necessitate nearly as much work on the part of the teachers as in former years. Besides the district would lose the superior government grant. A vote was taken and it was decided to continue as before, with two teachers.
