

Poetry.

GIVE ALL THOU HAST.

"Give all thou hast."—Such is the only measure Which God accords thee in the Written Word— "Thy heart—thy soul—thy substance to the Lord."

Ecclesiastical Intelligence.

ENGLAND.

HAVING APOCRYPHAL LESSONS.—A discussion touching the obligation to read the apocryphal lessons, our contemporary states on the information of a gentleman of high authority on questions of ecclesiastical law, that the following is the true interpretation of the law on the subject: "The question at issue may be settled in a very few words. The Clergy are bound by the last Act of Uniformity, and their solemn promises in the oaths which they take to obey the directions of the Book of Common Prayer in conducting the services of the Church. Of what that Book consists no one can have any doubt. And, therefore, no one has the right to destroy the directions of that Book in consequence of any directions given elsewhere, whether in the scriptures or any other place, and he who does so, whether in the High Church or Low Church extreme, by addition, subtraction, or alteration, must be visited with the heavy penalties prescribed by the Acts of Uniformity, which are all in force."

ELIPIANCY IN SPEAKING OF THE CHOLERA.

(To the Editor of the English Churchman.) SIR.—No one would be surprised at finding the Cholera noticed in a joose way in Punch since the worthy cannot be supposed to have any very deep religious feelings; but we cannot help being astonished at finding a newspaper, which professes to be the exponent of the most enlightened class of Churchmen, rivaling Punch in its profaneness. Here are a few sentences: "The Cholera has not made a decided attack on any town besides London last week, Newcastle and Gateshead. The great enemy, keeping up a kind of bush-fight with us, but seems only to be waiting to discover an undefended point to make a further irrad. On all sides, however, the disease has been met with, warned by one or two deaths, have taken several steps of defence as have for the present kept the enemy at bay."

Now, Sir, I should like to offer to the writer of these words, one or two observations through the medium of your paper. Churchmen profess to believe that the Church is sent by the command of Almighty God. The words of the above-mentioned expressions substitute for his words "great enemy," and "enemy," the name of Him who sends this "enemy," and see how his sentences will read. His way of deprecating the approach of the Cholera may be very lively and playful. I dare say it is, but is it not profane?

I remain, Sir, your obedient servant, A PARSON. A meeting took place lately in the District of St. Barnabas, King's Square, Goswell Road, in the parish of St. Luke's, to take into consideration the alteration of a large number of the parishes of London, under the Rev. R. L. Hill, who ever since his dismissal of a popular but disreputable Curate has been on very bad terms with a large portion of his congregation. A sharp Dissenting contemporary, the Nonconformist, has expressed his indignation at this proceeding. High Churchmen, has strenuously opposed it. With the aristocratic Belgavia, there happens to be a St. Barnabas in both places. The following is the paragraph: "St. BARNABAS AND ITS INCUMBENT.—The Puseyite attendants at the once notorious St. Barnabas are not working harmoniously with their new incumbent. At a meeting of their number on Wednesday it was agreed to send the Rev. Curate a resolution to the Bishop of London,—"That this meeting deeply deplore the present financial position of the Church of St. Barnabas, and they cannot withhold recording the expression of their opinion that, under present circumstances, there is little hope of amelioration. That the Rev. Curate, an excellent clergyman, who has been in a most flourishing position when the present incumbent entered upon his incumbency; that there was a large school containing nearly 1,400 children, with 60 teachers; there was a Missionary Society, which paid £2,000 to the Bishop's Society; and a Bible Society, which are established, and there is no want of support for these objects; and they deplore that nearly all these institutions are almost obsolete."

SCOTLAND. DIOCESE OF MORAY AND ROSS.—We understand Sunday, the 21st of August, is fixed as the day for the consecration of the new Chancel added to the Church of the Holy Trinity, Elgin. The Chancel is divided into a Choir and Aisle, which last forms the Sanctuary. The Choir is fitted up with stalls, from one of which the service is to be read, and the lessons read from a Lectern. There is room for an efficient band of singers; and, indeed, without these, the Choir will seem empty and unmeaning. We could wish, therefore, to hear of its being filled with surpliced men and boys, and thus, what is theoretically correct, rendered practically useful. And that such an arrangement must have been contemplated, is evident from the fact of the choir being removed from the gallery, at the west end, and placed over the stalls on the north side of the Choir, the most fitting situation that could be.

ALABAMA.—CONVERSION OF A PRESBYTERIAN MINISTER.—At a recent visit of the Bishop to St. Paul's Church, Greensborough, twelve persons were confirmed. The Parish appears to be in a flourishing condition. On the 12th Sunday after Trinity, nine persons were confirmed in the Church of the Holy Cross, Moadville. This Parish is in a very healthy state. Of those who were confirmed, one was S. R. Wright, late a Presbyterian clergyman. Mr. Wright is a gentleman of learning and of remarkable character, and will make a useful minister in the church. Some opinion may be formed of the spirit of the man, from the accompanying statement of his reasons for coming into the church: "I feel it due to myself, and to my beloved children in Christ, with whom I have been hitherto associated, to have a full and free fellowship, to make a simple statement of the circumstances which have led to my present change of views, devolving upon me the necessity and duty of dissolving my ecclesiastical connection with them; a connection especially endeared to me by long years of the pleasant social christian intercourse, and of corresponding interchanges of mutual christian confidence and affection. This change is as surprising and unexpected to myself, as it can be to any of my christian friends. By education and conviction, I have been a Presbyterian, sincerely attached to the Presbyterian Church,—her excellent ministry, polity, order and doctrines,—her admirable schemes of benevolence and aggressive plans for the spread of the Gospel. I have hitherto regarded the question of ministerial authority, in common with most of the dissenting clergy, as peculiarly sacred to that body, and as equally binding upon both; I have, consequently, deemed the points of difference between them as of very minor importance. My own mind, conversant with and fortified by the ordinary arguments in favor of the parity of the ministry, was, until of recent date, perfectly satisfied and at rest on the subject. With these views of the ministry, with an instinctive aversion to controversial divinity, and strong in my convictions on the subject, and regarding the divine claims of episcopacy as an ecclesiastical fiction, unauthorized by scripture and the church's earliest history, I devoted myself to other departments of theology more congenial to my tastes and feelings, than what I conceived to be this dry and unprofitable controversy. About three years ago, prompted by literary curiosity and taste, I took up Hooker's Ecclesiastical Polity to read, merely as a theological and literary classic,—having always understood it to be a splendid specimen of logical and reasoning, conducted in the most careful and scholarly manner, and of the most excellent and truth-loving spirit. I had read the life of Hooker by Isaac Walton. I was prepared to appreciate his resplendent genius and learning, and deep piety, but not to be won by his eloquence and sublimity by his arguments. In that incomparable work, the question of episcopacy stated to my mind in an entirely new, striking and original light, and overawingly sustained in all the points at issue, by the splendors of unequalled demonstration and cumulative argument. I felt my long-cherished convictions giving way; but to surrender them, involved such unpleasant consequences as to bring me to a pause.

IRELAND.

DECREASE OF POPERY.—A report of a tour of inspection made by the Bishop of Tuam through his diocese in August last, contains interesting details illustrative of the progress of truth among the Popish population. Annexed to it is the following statistical statement, up to the close of 1852.—The whole number of places (parishes and district churches) in which there is divine service in the united diocese is 147. The number of parochial clergy is 71, of missionaries 10, the Roman Catholics, 38; together, 109. The Bishop of Tuam has ordained 30 missionaries to the Roman Catholics in his diocese during the last five years. The regular services required and performed in the churches are 149 on the Sunday, and 40 on the week days, in English; besides 9 on the Sunday, and 18 on the week days, in Irish. All these are the regular services, and do not include the extraordinary services, given principally in licensed school-houses on week days. Within the last seven years the Bishop has been enabled to separate the parishes and constitute ten distinct parishes and incumbencies in four of the new parish churches have been built, and the whole ecclesiastical arrangement therefore restored. By the returns of 21st of December, 1852, there were 29,527 Protestant parishioners in the diocese; of these, 13,455 were Protestants from birth, and 5,992 were converts from Romanism.

UNITED STATES.

A correspondent of the London Guardian communicates the following notice of Bishop Doane:—The Bishop was elected and consecrated in 1852. His diocese was at the time feeble. But the Bishop set about his work with an energy and zeal which few men possess. His income from the diocese during the whole period of his episcopate, has never exceeded £100 per annum. But his heart was in the work, and his private means and fortune were all used to further the same. Things which he had desired for the Church's good. The cause of the Church's principles, has ever been one of the objects nearest to his heart. In 1837, he purchased a large building next to his residence, (or palace, as you would call it in England), and opened St. Mary's Hall as a school for girls. He has been successful in his efforts to improve the moral condition of his diocese, and to secure the approval of his people. His policy is to be approved or defended. This will sufficiently account for my course this day.

S. R. WAZIAT.

COLONIAL.

DIOCESE OF QUEBEC.

VISITATION OF THE BISHOP AMONG THE MISSIONS IN THE GULF OF ST. LAWRENCE.

(From the Canadian Ecclesiastical Gazette.)

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

MONDAY, 12th SEPTEMBER.

At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

logical and literary classic,—having always understood it to be a splendid specimen of logical and reasoning, conducted in the most careful and scholarly manner, and of the most excellent and truth-loving spirit. I had read the life of Hooker by Isaac Walton. I was prepared to appreciate his resplendent genius and learning, and deep piety, but not to be won by his eloquence and sublimity by his arguments. In that incomparable work, the question of episcopacy stated to my mind in an entirely new, striking and original light, and overawingly sustained in all the points at issue, by the splendors of unequalled demonstration and cumulative argument. I felt my long-cherished convictions giving way; but to surrender them, involved such unpleasant consequences as to bring me to a pause.

Pride of intellect, pride of consistency—my pride of life and pleasant christian relations—a sincere attachment to my church, and to her devoted and intelligent ministry—the faith of my family, and the faith of that maternal heart which embled my infancy in prayer and devoted me in baptism to God, and had taught my earliest childhood to hie "Our Father," and the other sweet lessons of maternal piety—these, and other considerations, induced me to reconsider the subject, and to examine it by a more general and thorough view and examination of the subject, to recollect my mind in my previous views and convictions, and thus save myself the pain of sundering my ecclesiastical ties. That review and re-examination have, thoughtfully and prayerfully made, and the result has been a complete change on the subject of christian piety. What I formerly regarded as purely an ecclesiastical assumption, I now regard as divine truth, bearing the broad seal of Christ's authority. With my changed views, the next step was plain and imperative. I was bound to resign my office, and conscientiously, minister in a church whose polity I could not approve or defend. This will sufficiently account for my course this day.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

Monday, 29th August.—After having been long detained at a lodge at Mr. Williston's, the Bishop and his party set out at 5 A.M. for Chatham, a distance of twenty miles, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton. The charge for their wagon to Chatham was, without their privy, delayed by the Churchwardens and neighbors, and all resistance to the departure of the Bishop and his party, was only left of returning to the Bishop, in order to take the stage thence to Fredericton.

and it was arranged that the baptism should take place this night. A small band of friends and neighbors such as her cottage would hold, and the evening service, and the voice of psalmody was raised, and a familiar sermon was delivered by the Bishop. It was a rare opportunity for the poor sufferer, but the occasion was most marked and, according to all good hope, blessed to her by her reception into covenant with God in Christ by holy baptism, which took place, at the hands of Mr. Mountain, after the second lesson.

Sunday, 11th September.—A pull across the head of the lagoon and a walk of about a mile, brought the party to the house of Mr. McLean, the Church, where they robed. This Church has been raised by great exertions, and this object would hardly have been accomplished but for the purchase, at a reduced rate, of a wreck; for it is upon wrecks that the Islanders in a great measure depend for any more considerable building,—the Islands themselves being timber. The frame is raised and covered in, but the windows had not been set up, and the whole building being quite unfinished, had never been used for service till this day. It was temporarily adapted for the occasion, and a Congregation assembled of between forty and fifty persons, to whom the Bishop preached, and during the service. After the Bishop and clergy had partaken of some refreshment at the house of Mr. Clarke, service was again held in the afternoon, when thirty-one persons were confirmed,—the Bishop introducing a special charge to the persons thus ratifying the baptismal vows, and receiving the solemn benediction of the Church. The party returned afterwards to Mr. Keaton's. The night being fine, but the appearance of the weather indicating the approach of a change, and the wind, which is wonderfully uncertain in these regions, at all moments favoring the enterprise, it was deemed advisable to embark, about 8 P.M. on the return to House Harbor, a son of Mr. Keaton's volunteering to aid, and a youth being also with the party belonging to the family of Mr. Muncey, a magistrate and a little girl as passenger, who was engaged to assist in the little household affairs of Mr. Boyle. A fine moon, for a short time, was with them; but darkness supervened and worse disaster followed: for before midnight, the wind veering round and becoming, at the same time, boisterous, the boat was obliged to anchor, and to run ashore to anchor, and jumping into the water, gained the beach on foot. After clambering a little broken bank, finding that they were many miles from any house, they got under the shelter of some dwarf and creeping fern which served as some protection from the rain, now coming down in torrents, and in the meantime, some of the party proceeded to collect sticks and make a fire. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

enterprises for the spiritual good of the people or the general improvement of their condition. Mr. Patton, who keeps a school on the Island, was prepared to accommodate the Bishop for the night, and Mr. McLean, a respectable settler, was equally desirous of making Mr. Mountain his guest; but the weather favoring their return to the Basiliak, it was suggested before the meeting broke up, that it would be desirable to go on board at once, instead of waiting for the boat which Capt. Egerton had promised to send in the morning; the continuance of fair weather being quite inaccessible, and the island being quite inaccessible, and other circumstances. The requisite number of rowers soon stood forth as volunteers for the service. They embarked accordingly between nine and ten o'clock, P.M., and reaching the Basiliak about eleven, took leave of the Rev. Mr. Boyle and the rest of the party in the boat, who went on to Amherst Harbor. The visitation of the Gulf was now closed; and great indeed were the grounds of thankfulness for its having been so successfully accomplished and for the fruits to be witnessed as well of Christian benevolence on the part of the great Church Societies in England, as of Missionary labor upon the spot. When it is stated that the Bishop had held eleven confirmations, consecrated three churches and four burying-grounds in the District of Gaspé, and had held three confirmations and found a church so far advanced as to admit of his using it in the Magdalen Islands, where three years ago he had himself consecrated, never before trodden by the foot of a Protestant Minister, it will be perfectly understood by those who are acquainted with the subject, that all this imports something more than the facts of the proper completion of certain buildings and the performance of certain ceremonies; and that it carries with it, with every necessary deduction on account of human error and infirmity, much happy verification, (although, indeed, upon a small and humble scale,) of the divine promise that the wilderness and the solitary place shall blossom as the rose. The number of persons confirmed in the Magdalen Islands was sixty-one, making a total in the District of Gaspé of 193.

The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has maintained the Mission: the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge has assisted largely in building Churches, and in the purchase of Bibles, as well as Bibles, Prayer-books and Tracts for distribution.

BARNABOS.—Trinidad.—The following has been handed to us for publication.—Ed. Port of Spain Gazette.—Opening of a new place of worship in the Parish of St. John.—On the 6th May, Miles and Kilgus, in the parish of St. John, was consecrated by the Bishop of the Diocese, as a burying-ground. Since then, through the zealous and indefatigable exertions of the Ven. Archdeacon Cummins, assisted by a grant from the Local Association for the Propagation of the Gospel, and a loan from the Bishop, with some private contributions, a small but commodious and rough, but (when the means are considered) remarkably adapted to its purpose, and exhibiting much ecclesiastical taste and judgment, has been erected under the superintendance of Mr. Boyle.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert in the management of the boat, he decided that he would proceed without baggage, and embark in a small boat. Here, with the protection of their cloaks, they snatched such sleep as circumstances afforded, the child being the soundest sleeper of the party.

Monday, 12th September.—At the dawn of day the wind was found to have changed again, and such consultation was held, as it blew very much against the adventure of proceeding. It would have created a monstrous and most inconvenient delay to fetch a cart for the baggage and to proceed on foot; and the Missionary himself as well as the two youths who aided him, being expert