WORDS FROM THE

Carnival critic

To the Editor:

I would like to make a few things clear to the Winter

Carnival Committee. First of all, not everyone can afford to go to the events (which cost a minimum of $17.50 per person), nor does everyone have the desire to do so. Thus, it is quite annoying to have the cafeteria closed at the ridiculous hour of 3 p.m. or the even more ridiculous hour of noon, making it absolutely impossible to get something to eat unless you're willing to chance food poisoning from machines (and then have nowhere to eat it).

I find it rather ridiculous to pay exorbitant Student Union fees and then have to pay more to use the facilities that should be open. I don't mind 50¢, but if it's over $1.50 you won't see me there unless the entertainment is worth it.

This brings up another point. Why couldn't we get someone half decent to come instead of unknowns? Don't say money, because everyone knows that it would be virtually impossible to lose if, for example, Neil Young played.

John Duda

In any case, unless the present policy changes quite radically I and many others won't be seen at future Winter Carnival events. But please, leave us a place where we can go when we're penniless or disinterested in the poor entertainment. As it stands, there's no option.
