

They did not eat all the cake. There was some left for father. He said: "Did Annie and Gracie really make this delicious cake themselves? May I have another piece?"

And Gracie and Annie were pleased and proud girls, for father could hardly believe they had made such a good cake themselves.