ished metal plate.

the group.

gray mass.

is no fog.'

Some one said:

questioning. Listen:

as we have done to-day.

mit of a mountain.

the first wild days.

sign of sympathy.

against the pale purple of the west.

often.
"Can one remain in love severa

years in succession?" asked one of

All of a sudden some one who had been listening and looking far away

"It is Corsica. Two or three times a year it may be seen so when the air is perfectly clear and there been silent until then, said slowly:

love that brought lasting happiness

which the sight of that island recalls

as if it had come in answer to your

"Five years ago I was travelling in Corsica. This wild island is further away and less known in France

we can see it from our very shores

chaos; imagine ranges of mountains

separated by narrow ravines filled

plains, but rolling hills of granite and pine covered earth. It is desert, lonely, uncultivated, although sometimes you can see a village, like a pile of rocks, perched on the sum

"There is no culture there, no in dustries, no art. Not a scrap of carved wood or a piece of sculptured

stone. Face to face with Italy

where every palace is a masterpiec

and where every metal and precious

stone bears witness to man's genius

Corsica has remained exactly as in

"Each man lives in his rude house

indifferent to all that does not con cern his bare existence and his family feuds. They have retained vices and the virtues of savage races, they are violent, bloodthirsty, without shadow of remorse, but they are like wise hospitable, generous and simple,

opening their doors to the chance traveller and bestowing a faithful friendship in return for the slightest

"I had been wandering about the disland for a month, feeling that I had reached the end of the world. No

"You follow mule paths up steep seem perched in mideir. You knock and ask shelter for the night and something to live on until the mor row. In the morning you press your host's hand and he guides you as fa

quite alone in a narrow valley league from the sea. The steer and jagged piles of stories, shut in

"There was a garden and a few vines around the tiny house and close by several large chestnut trees-

a fortune for the barren land.

woman, exceptionally neat and clean, opened the door. The man, who was the valley like two sombre walls.

ntain sides, covered with brush

"One night, after ten hours walk

as the outskirts of the village.

the

roads, no taverns, no inns.

mountain sides to cottages

"I know a story of love, of true

"Yes," maintained some.

"No," said others.

into the distance cried :

"Oh, see! What is it?"

We were talking of love, discussing subject, and saying again the things which we had already said

. THE WORLD WELL LOST."

Story of a Love that Time and Change Did Not Lessen.

From the French of Guy de Maupassant.

BER 28, 1905 RECTORY.

OCIETY-Estat 1856; incorpore 1 1840. Meets in Monday of the 92 St. Alexane meets last Wed. : Rev. Director. P.P.; President, ; 1st Vice-Presiney; 2nd Vice, E, arer, W. Durack; ecretary, W. Secretary, T. P.

A. AND B. SO. second Sup h in St. Patrick's xander street, at nittee of Manages me half on the very month, at 8 r. Rev Jas. Kil J: H. Kelly; Rec. Kelly, 13 Valle

& B. SOCIETY. .-Rev. Director. ail President, D. c., J. F. Quinn le street; treasure 18 St. Augustin the second Sunth, in St. Ann's ng and Ottawa

DA, Branch 26 November, 1883. at St. Patrick's xander street, on each month. The or the transaction d on the 2nd and fficers: Spirituel . Killoran; Chanl; President, Ja Vice-President, J. lice-President, J. ling Secretary, Ri Overdale Ave.; As-W. J. Macdonbain street; Treaelly; Marshal, J. M. J. O'Regan; inn, W. A. Hodge , R. Gahan, T. cal Advisers, Dr. Dr. E. J. O'Conrrill. IRCULAR on (Falls, N.Y., July 3, Special Act of the lature, June 9 1879. d increasing rapidy OO,OOO paid in

AL

anctioned by Pope-wed by Cardinals, everal of whom are: BELANCER,

AMBAULT. Deputy, ovince of Quebec, E DAME STREET. T. DENISST

BELLS

s in Chimes in Peals IcShane's Baltimore, Ed., U.S.A.

LCOMFANY Y., and EW YORK CILT.

F CHURCH BELLS

S, Etc.

I was surprised.

Tasked.

"No, we are from the Continent,"

the answered. But we have lived of him. She had never regretted her here fifty years.'

"A Beling of dismay and terror swept over me at the thought of for nothing but him, and so long as those fifty years spent in this som- he was there she desired nothing valley, so far from the contact more. ber valley, so far from the contact of other men and women. An old akepherd returned and we sat down at the bare table to eat a thick soup of potatoes, lard and cabbages bolied together, the only thing there was.

"When we had finished eating T her, all that one desires, all that one

It was tea time before the appearance of the lamps. The villa over-looked the sea, and the sun-which had disappeared, had left its glassy surface shining like a burnmy heart filled with the melancholy of the mournful landscape. The old woman joined me and began to ques tion me, stirred by that curiosity which lives in the most resigned Far off to the right the jagged nountains lifted their black outlines

"'Are you from France?'

"'Yes, travelling for pleasure." "'Do you come from Paris, per chance ?

" 'No, I am from Nancy," I replied. "An intense emotion took posses sion of her. It was nothing I could see, I only felt it.

"She repeated, slowly: "'You are from Nancy?'

"The man appeared in the door way, impassive, like all the deaf, "'It does not matter; he canno hear,' she said. Presently she con-

On the horizon line, where sea and tinued: heavens meet, loomed up a confused "Then you know many people at

Nancy?'
"Why, yes, nearly every one.' " 'The De Saint Alliage family ?' "'Very well; they were friends of my father.' "What is your name?" Ther an old gentleman, who had "I told her. She looked at me fixedly, and then said in a low voice full of memories: 'Yes. I remember perfectly; and the Brismares-what has become of them ?' " 'They are all dead.'

"'Ah! And the Sirmonts-do you know them ?' "'Yes, the last of the family is than America, despite the fact that General. "Then trembling with emotion, compelled by some overpowering need to confess and tell all, to talk of "Imagine a world which is still those things which she had kept shut

in her heart until then, she said:

"Henry de Sirmon't. I know him with rushing torrents; no fertile well. He is my brother.' "I looked at her keenly, surprised.

> Then suddenly I remembered. "It had caused a good deal of scan dal at the time among the nobility beautiful, Suzanne de Sirmont, had run away with an under officer of the hussars in her father's regiment.

"He was a handsome fellow, the son of a peasant, but he knew how to wear his blue dolman well, this soldier who had captivated his Colonel's daughter. She had seen him, noticed him and fallen in love with him probably while the squadrons were marching by.

"But how she had talked with him, how they had met and learned to understand each other, how she had dared to tell him that she loved him-that was never known. Nothing had been divined nothing suspected. "One evening when the soldier had finished his time, he disappeared with her. They were searched for, but nothing was ever heard of them. Fiwas dead.

"And I had found her thus, in this sinister valley.

"In my turn, I said. "'I remember. You are Mile. Suzanne.

"She nodded her head for 'yes.' The tears were falling from her eyes. With a glance at the old man sitting at the door of the cabin, she said: " 'That is he.'

"And I understood that she loved him still, that her eyes were stil ing, I came to a little cabin built filled with love's light. "I asked:

"'Have you been happy?" "She replied in a voice which came straight from her heart: "Yes, very happy. He has made me very happy. I have never regretted anything.' gh to live on, and indeed quite wondering at the mighty power love. The rich young girl had gone "In answer to my knock an old away with the son of a peasant. She too, had become a peasant woman.

"She had lived her life without eated on a straw chair, rose as I charm, without luxury, without delicacies of any sort; she had learned without saying a word. But the wife to conform to simple ways. And she loved him still. She had become the Excuse him, he is deaf. He is 82 wife of a rustic, in her cloth cap and coarse woollen skirt. She ate from "She spoke the French of France. an earthen dish on a wooden table and seated on a straw bottomed "You were not born in Comsica?" chair. She slept on a rough mat-jewels nor her fine dresses nor any of the elegancies of life. She asked nopes for. He had filled her to the hoarse breathing of the old soldier, stretched on his low cot beside her, who had followed him so far, I wondered at this strange and far, I wondered at this strange and Some years ago, writes F. G., in simple adventure, at this happiness Nature, I was painted by Graef, a pair."

of so very little.

The story teller was silent. A wo-"All the same, her ideal was too asyı; she was too simple, too primitives she must have been a rool." But another said slowly, in a low

'What matter? She was happy.' Far away on the horizon Corsica was sinking into the night, slowly her great shadow which had appeared before us as if to tell itself the story of the two humble lovers who were sheltered on her coast.

Convert of Real Presence.

Catholic missionary and told him the story of her conversion, substantially as follows:

I was reared a strict Protestant, in the city of Springfield, Illinois. One Sunday afternoon, when I was eleven years old, away back in the forties, I was passing the little shanty church in which the Catholics at that time worshiped. I had never been in a ed surprise, followed by an admira Catholic church, nor even knew a Catholic. But as I heard the music and singing I was moved interiorally to look in. That is all I did, I merely opened the door a little bit and look ed in. At that very moment the that if so much could be done with priest was giving benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. All this was absolutely strange to me—the vested a portrait which required 20,000 of priest, the glitter of lights, the tinkling beil, the bowed and hushed congregation. I did not enter, but closed the door softly and went home. But a powerful influence had entered of Lorraine. A young girl, rich and my soul, and I was drawn to the church the next Sunday afternoon My first little visit had filled me with thoughts of God. Soon I went there every Sunday, having, after much pleading, obtained leave from my parents to do so.

But it happened just then that we started for California, across the plains and mountains, my father having caught the gold fever. And our family was of the Donner party that | er. was snowed in near Lake Tahoe in starvation and exposure, and such seemed to be the lot that awaited us all. Meanwhile I had come to the conviction that the Catholic religion was God's only true church. And in our wretched cabin at Donner lake. amid the dreadful storms of winter, I vowed to God that if I ever came sent us help, and when I reached whole house."

and California, little girl as I was, I life sought the first opportunity to be instructed and received into the church. "She could not have been more hap- I am a convert to the Real Presence.

"And all night long, as I listened Number of Strokes of a Brush In a Picture which was so complete and yet made well known German artist, when, finding it very tedious to sit "At sunrise I went away, after nothing, I amused myself by count-pressing the hands of that aged ing the number of strokes per mirute that he bestowed on the portrait. He was methodical, and it was easy to calculate their average number, and as I knew only too well the hours and therefore also the number of minutes, I sat to him, the product of the two numbers gave me what wanted to learn. It was 20,000. A year and a half ago I was again painted by the late lamented artist. Charles Furse, whose method returning to the sea, blotting out totally different from that of Graef He looked hard at me, mixing his colors the while, then, dashing the portrait, made his daubs so fast that I had to estimate them rather than count them. Proceeding as be fore, the result, to my great surprise, was the same, 20,000. The following point impressed m

Recently an old lady called on a strongly. Graef had a humorous phrase for the very last stage of his portrait, which was "painting the buttons." "Thus," he said, "in five days' time I shall come to the buttons." Four days passed, and the hours and minutes of the last day when he suddenly and joyfully ex claimed, "I have come to the tons." I watched at first with amus tion nor far from awe. He poised his brush for a minute, made three rapid twists with it, and three well painted buttons were thereby created The rule of three seemed to three strokes, what an enormous amount of skilled work must go them. At the same time it made me wonder whether painters had mastered the art of getting the maximum result from their labor.

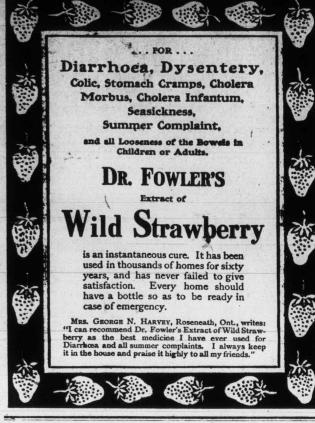

> A traveler entered the dining-room a leading hotel in Colorado Springs on Saturday, and after he was served with soup he drew a twodollar bill from his pocket and showed it to the waiter, saying

"Jim, I shall be here until next Wednesday night and then this will be yours." "All right, sir, I'll take the best

care of you, sure," replied the wait

And he did serve the traveller exthe Sierra mountains, Many died of cellently. It happened that on Wed nesday morning the traveler was has tily summoned to Denver and it was six weeks before he returned to the Colorado Springs hotel. Presently his former waiter, whom he had forgotten along with the incident, came up to him and said:

"Say, boss, please play that two nally her parents considered that she through alive I would become a Ca- dollar trick on your new waiter, for tholic. And so I did. Providence he's de meanes' man what's in de

"YANKEE DOODLE,"

William Grattan Flood Tells of

kee Doodle''—itsetymology, early history and development as the national tune of America-not one of them has even hinted at the Irish origin of the from any argument, intrinsic 'catchy'' melody which was lish melody," whereas the tune was therefore, needed for the present ar- origin. ticle, in which I venture to vindicate Ireland's claim to a tune which, est value," as Hon. Stephen Salis-bury says, "is national property."

were set to the melody, it may also the word "Macaroni," a term that 1750. only came in about the year 1750. Not less apocryphal is the theory extraordinary of all, the tune has Banner." been claimed as a Dutch folk-tune, a In conclusion it may not be amiss claim which has been justly regarded to point out that President Roosevelt tune of Holland?

or a slang adjective to denominate the superlative degree, e. g., a yankee team, a yankee horse, yankee rider, etc., expressive of excellenceand which term can be traced as far back as the year 1712-degenerated Janiculum hill. In its portico are into a term of reproach or an anti- paintings by Domenichino and Pinphrastic phrase, meaning a simple, awkward person, and ultimately wa applied in general to New England-

the writer concludes.

tune. The cerliest printed version appears in a volume published at Glasgow in 1782. This volume is num is dead; evidently they haven't entitled: "A Selection of Scotch, met."

English, Irish and Foreign Airs Printed and sold by James Aird," and is Vol. I., containing 200 tunes. Although not dated, it cer-tainly appeared in 1782, and was followed by five other volumes. It Although a half a dozen authors I find it especially so as containing is a very interesting collection, and have dealt with the subject of "Yan- the earliest "printed" versions of quite a dozen Irish airs.

The very structure of this tune is seen to be decidedly Irish, and aparb evifirst dence should point out its Irish oriheard in Albany one hundred and fifty gin. Other airs of the same period, years ago. Perhaps it is equally re-like "Ally Croker," "The Rakes of markable that the Irish origin of the Mallow," "The Pretty Girl of Der-"Constitution and the Guerriere," so by," have been claimed as English, popular in America in 1812, has not though unquestionably Irish, and only been ignored but has been in-there is not a shadow of doubt as to correctly claimed by Louis C. Elson the English annexation of numerous as an adaptation of a "fine old Eng- Irish airs of the Jacobite period. Even recent collections includes "The printed in Irish in 1775, and again Arethusa" and "Nancy Dawson" as in Brysson's "Curious Selection of "old English airs," in sublime dis-Fifty Airs," in 1791. No apology is regard of their unquestionable Irish

The printed version of Aird in 1782, antedates the "Two to One" though "not a treasure of the high- (1784) version by two years, and is much nearer the Irish original, with strongly marked C natural (the so-Dismissing as pure fiction the oft- called "flat seventh") so characterisepeated legends that would fain as tic of seventeenth century Irish tunes sign as Indian, Hungarian, Dutch, in D major. However, the oldest Persian, Lancastrian (Lancashire), or form of the tune is also given here, Norwegian to the silly words which as it appears in a MS. dated 1750, the authenticity of which is beyond be well to dismiss the theory that question. The manuscript was writ-Oliver Cromwell was the original ten at different times between the 'Yankee Doodle," an absurdity that years 1749 and 1750, and the owns best proved from the occurrence of er's name is given, dated Dec. 1.

Thus "Yankee Doodle" can rightly be claimed as a product of Ireland, that the song was evolved from "a and is an illustration of the vitality popular ballad in the time of King of Erin's folk-music. It is of inter-Charles II," apropos of Lucy Locket est to add that "Jefferson and Liberand Kitty Fischer, a statement that ty," 1801, was originally set to can at once be disproved by the fact Irish melody, but was afterwards, in that Lucy Locket was one of the dra- 1813, adapted to the air of "Ananatis personae in the Beggar's Opera creon in Heaven,"-an air that is (1728) and that Kitty Fischer was a now inseparably associated with reigning trash in 1750. But, most Francis Scott Key's "Star Spangled as more or less of a hoax. In this considers the melody of "Garryowen" case it is not a little remarkable as "one of the finest marching tunes that an old severmeenth century Irish in the world," This Irish melody is melody, "I am asleep and don't of about the same date as "Yankee waken me," appears in a Dutch music book ander the name of Madhyn Bu- written to it until 1774 or 1775. was printed with the music. by Heine of Dublin, in 1797-being It is not agreed that the word subsequently utilized by Tom Moore 'Yankee' from being a cant word in his 'Trish Melodies."-The Dolphin.

> The only fresco in Rome by Leonardo da Vinci may be found at Momastery of San Onofrio, in the

When P. T. Barnum was at the head And, just as the fabricators of of his "great moral show" it was Roundinead or a Restoration origin his rule to send complimentary tickfor the words of "Yankee Doodle" ets to clergymen, and the custom is have been completely exposed even continued to this day. Not long af-from internal evidence, so also the ter the Rev. Dr. Walker succeeded to continued to this day. Not long a origin of the melody as English can the pastorate of the Rev. Dr. Hawkes be disproved by an investigation of in Hartford, there came to the parfacts! After disposing of the four sonage, addressed to Dr. Hawkes, English clauses to the national air, tickets for the circus with the compliments of the famous showman And now to the Irish origin of the Dr. Walker studied the tickets for a

COUGH AND LUNG

"PSYCHINE" differs radically from the old fogey medicines. It is compounded on new and advanced methods of curing disease, otherwise it would be just like scores of others, TROUBLE without any exceptional merits.
But "Psychine" possesses virtues of healing, that no other preparation in the world does. There never has been in the history of medicine, such a truly remarkable remedy, for the prompt and complete cure of obstinate coughs and lung trouble. There is nothing else just like it, or nothing else one half so good. Thousands of men and women readily and enthusiastically give testimony to prove the statement.

PSYCHINE BUILT ME UP

Linden, N. S., June 7th, 1904.

"I cannot speak too highly for your excellent—I may say invaluable—remedy for weakness of throat, lungs or declining conditions. My brother, mother, and aister died of consumption, and I suppose I inherited a tendency in this direction, but, thank God, through the use of PSYCHINE I to-day enjoy good health. I suffered for some two years from a distressing, obstinate cough and weak lungs. I used PSYCHINE and OXOMULSION, and they built me right up. My lungs are now strong and I enjoy splendid health. Yours truly,

"ELLA M. COVE."

GREATEST OF ALL TONICS

AT ALL DRUGGISTS-ONE DOLLAR-TRIAL FREE The Dr. T. A. Slocum, Limited, -, 179 King Street West, Toronto

DER ? WORRY! Stove Lining IXIT.

VE BRICKS IN

tove Cement in the EED & CO

8, &c.

s Street

WITHERS P. & P. Co.