Opportunity

"There is an hour in each man's life appointed
To make his happiness, if then he seize it."

A life insurance agent may not have succeeded yesterday in placing a policy on your life; yet you will probably be approached by him again.

Some day, however, he may wait on you in vain if it so happens that in the meantime health has deteriorated. There is no other obligation so pressing as that of securing life insurance. It is a question for To-Day.

In addition to the possibility of failing health there is the certainty of advancing age which means an increase in the cost of insurance.

For both these reasons it is not safe to postpone a decision. Write for booklet entitled, "How much are you worth?"
