Utilitarianism.

I see the aviators sail o'erhead; like birds they ride the gale. And when they to the earth descend I throw them posies without end, and I embrace them till they're hurt, and whoop and yell and tear my shirt. But when my fervor dies away, I lean against myself and say: "The man who mows a weedy place is doing more to help the race; the worker makes the planet smile—I'll go and whoop for him a while." I see the wrestlers, lithe and strong, engage in struggles fierce and long, I marvel at their mighty thews, and shriek wild cockadoodleoos when one climbs on another's frame, and breaks his neck and wins the game. But when the wrestling match is o'er, and I ga toddling to my door, I mutter to myself at length: "It was a fearful waste of strength! The vim those athletes threw away would bale a hundred tons of hay! To-morrow I shall go and yell for some one who has dug a well! The men who work with picks and saws are most deserving of applause.—Walt Mason.

Hints For Farmers.

Be a manufacturer, by converting the grain and hay grown upon your farm into finished products. Don't sell hay and grain from your land, it is poor farming and will make both you and your land poor.

With corn safely ensiled, apples shipped, roots raised, stock comfortably sheltered, implements under cover, and full plowing advanced, the gusty December wind whistles a musical tune in the thrifty farmer's ear.

If you are growing the same kind of crop on the same land year after year, you ought to go to some agricultural school and learn what crop rotation means and how much it is worth to farmers who practise it on their farms.

More attention should be paid to buying poultry on a quality basis, thus showing the producer the gain which he may realize by keeping good poultry of the general-purpose breeds and giving the birds proper attention and feed before shipping to market.

Death of Peter Corrigan.

Lucknow, Dec. 5.—One of the grand old men of Kinloss Township passed away at his residence here yesterday in the person of Peter Corrigan, aged 81 years. Few men in Bruce or Huron counties were better known in a personal and municipal capacity than he. From his birthplace in Hastings County he came at an early age to the backwoods of Bruce, took up, cleared and developed a farm near the Village of Holyrood, and there resided until his retirement from agricultural labors some ten or twelve years ago. During most of that time he was bailiff and a justice of the peace, and at the time of his death he was within one year of completing a half century as treasurer of Kinloss Township. He was a man of considerable platform ability, developed by a debating society which held meetings at Holyrood many years ago, and which numbered among its supporters several men who afterwards became editors and members of Parliament. In his official capacity he was unswerving from his sense of duty, but if he sometimes found it necessary as a magistrate to fine a man, he sometimes paid the fine; and it is told to this day how years ago, when two bailiffs were kept busy in the county, he frequently stood between the law on one hand and the distressed people on the other, helped them with advice, used his influence with creditors on their behalf, and frequently by loans of money enabled them to save their chattels until their fortunes should change. In this way he made friends as perhaps no other man in Ontario did, and won to an enviable degree the respect of the general public. He was a member of the Roman Catholic Church. He leaves a family of three sons and one daughter. The funeral will be held on Wednesday to the Roman Catholic cemetery at Holyrood, near his former farm.

Items of Interest

When Mrs. Anna Weiss, Anamosa, La., fed her chickens on pickled crab apples the other day she did not reckon on a sequel such as followed the meal, for every single chicken became helplessly drunk. Mrs. Weiss disliked to throw away a quart jar of fruit in her cellar when she found it was not keeping well, so she fed it to the hens. Shortly afterwards she found every biddy in the flock wandering unsteadily and insensibly around the yard.

If Jack Hardin, of Mason, Ill., who recently attempted suicide by shooting, lives he will be one of three men known to medical science to survive with the top of his heart and an artery cut. Hardin is in a hospital at Effingham, and physicians, who are watching the case with unusual interest, say he has a fair chance for recovery. Medical journals tell of only two similar cases in which the victim survived, one in St. Louis, and the other in Berlin Germany.

Baby carriages in the streets of Minnesota towns and villages in future will be required to have white lights in front and a red one behind to warn "traffic" when they are used after dark. The odd law is an accident of the last session of the Legislature. The law was framed to aid motorists who had been compelled to maintain lights by compelling farmers and other users of wheeled vehicles to display them. Baby carriages are not exempt from the provisions of the act, according to the attorney-general; neither are wheelbarrows or any other form of vehicle having wheels.

Wye Mills, a small village in Talbot county, Md., is excited over the realization of a dream of buried treasure. Some gold has been found and with it directions for digging for more. The dream came to Rachel Stansbury, a colored woman, at her home in Philadelphia, and she and her husband went to the spot described in the dream, near their old home at Wye Mills, and began digging. Three feet under the surface they found a box containing three gold tokens of irregular shape, and in the box was a paper, falling to pieces from age in which was written: "More money buried here deeper down. Dig fast and get it." Stansbury and his wife are doing their best to "dig fast," but the negroes of the neighborhood are superstitious and will not approach the place to help.

Willow Island, Nebraska, has the champion absent-minded man. While tearing down his old store building Neil McMullen, for 35 years the principal merchant of Willow Island, found $4,500 in gold and silver which he had hidden at various times and forgotten. McMullen is 80 years old, but still active in business. He is a bachelor.

A black fox ranch is being started near Arnprior. James Gillies & Sons bought 49 acres for this purpose. Gillies has purchased a pair of very rare black foxes which, it is said, cost him $5,000. There ought to be money in this business.

Bug Power.

If asked to name the strongest animals, most persons begin with the largest, the elephant, and continue with oxen, horses, etc. This is, of course, correct in so far as their total horsepower is concerned, but for real strength, proportioned to the size and weight of the animal, one must go to the insect world. Compared with insects the strength of almost any large animal, and especially of man, is absurd. A man is considered strong if he can drag a mass weighing three or four times as much as himself, but the beetle will walk with 500 times his own weight. If a man were placed under a wooden box five times his weight on top to hold it down, he would remain there indefinitely, but to retain a stag beetle prisoner in the same way one must pile on top of the box at least 1800 times its own weight.
