The United Ireland says if Irishmen e chance in ten thousand they would asfer the coercion debate from Parlia ent to the barricades; but, as that cha bes not exist, Irishmen can only set their teeth and hold their tongues. The idea re mains to simulfanceously summon the whole adult population of Ireland to make one grand historic rootest against the coer-cion, but even the impressiveness of this would be destroyed by the misreporting of the Fields the English press.

A last (Friday) night's London cabl says: Sir William Vernon Haccourt, re-suming the debate on the Coercion Bill in the House of Commons this afternoon, said the present alliance between the Liberals and Parmellites was based on the Liberal recognition of the fact that the wisest policy in Irish affairs lay in the acceptance pancy in form of Irish government which would tend to satisfy the Irish popel. He twitted Lord Randolph Churchill and Mr. Chamberlain with having secretly consulted Mr. Parnell, seeking to make an alliance with him for their own purposes. Referring to the conspiracy and Whiteboy clauses of the proposed Act, Sir William dechard that they sapped the foundation of all personal liberty, and would even debar Inshmen from forming business combina-tions to defend their existing rights. The spirit in which the Government would iminister the Coercion Act, if it were passed, was sufficiently shown in the ap intment of Colonel King-Harman to t Parliamentary Under Secretaryship for Ireland. By this appointment the Govern-ment had declared themselves to be the and administer the Bill as the agents of the administer the Bill as the agents of the landowners in Ireland, thus becoming intruments to stimulate the worst passion of the people and their bitterest religious The Bill would fail to suppre prejudices. The Bill would fail to suppress the Irish National League, because the people of Ireland believed in the League and trusted it. The effect of the enforce-Government more detested and the League more popular than ever. As to the Tory and Liberal-Union tanuts about gold fostering Irish discontent, Sir Wm Harcourt said : "There are none who have less reason to complain of American gold than the Irish landlords, for none get more of it. They get it through their poor ten-ants' rent." The proposal to make the Bill permanent Sir William characterized as a hereade of the function of ants' rent.' breach of the fundamental conditions of the Union between Ireland and Great Britain. The Government professed to rever ELLI. The Covernment professed to rever-ence this Union, but were doing their best to violate it. accession." A last Saturday night's London cable says: The Marquis of Hartington, speak-ing at Edinburgh to-night, contended that here had been no change in the political ituation since the Gladstone Government situation since the Gladstone Government of 1880-85, except an increase of Irish representation, which was always known to be inevitable and could be discounted to justify the Liberal's supporting some of the Parnellite tactics which they then opposed. It had been said that the Unionist policy was a negative one. This is deni ause, though in his opinion it would be mistake for a small intermediate party to commit itself to positive and definite pro-posals, it was a fact that they, through a practical alliance, induced the Conservative party to propose a remedial measure for ive ideas and even in advance of what the bulk of the Liberals a few years what the bulk of the Liberals a few years ago considered necessary. Lord Hartington believed the time had not yet arrived when it was possible for the Unionists to act as a party or propose a final solution of the difficulty. Before that time arrives the revolutionary party in Ireland, supported by the more revolutionary party in America, must be confronted and overthrown. "That conflict," the speaker said, "was now being renewed and must be decided in w being renewed and must be decided in me way or the other before the field would be vacant for a final solution either of grarian questions, which are the real root f the Irish troubles, or for a concession to the frish acousts, for a concession to the frish people of those extended powers of self-government which we, as well as any other portion of the people of the kingdom, are perfectly willing to grant Ireland, Scot-land or England." (Loud cheers.)

He de-Goschen also made an address

Coschen also made an address. He de-fended the alliance between the Unionists and Conservatives as an alliance of unionists of all shades against separatists of all shades, some of whom were very black indeed. He made an appeal to the press and the country for unstinted support in the fierce struggle now beginning. He saw with sorrow, the kendency of the Glad with sorrow the tendency of the Glad stonians to adopt and support the sinister methods inangurated by the National League. Boycotting, formerly confined to Ireland, was beginning to be defended by English politicians. (Cries of "Shame.") "Yes, shame, I say." exclaimed Goschen, "on these convince at this back on those conniving at this barbarous nethod of political warfare. There is but small distance between connivance and apology and not so much lifference between apology and in-itation. The most pathetic point in the present situation is to have been obliged to bandon the leader whom we all admired and venerated, and even denounced not only the policy he pursues, but the methods whereby he pursues it. There is more at stake in the present situation than the simple question of unity and integrity of

In sowing clover for pasture it is desir-able to mix the alsike, red and white clovers, and the kind best adapted to the land will probably take possession in a few years. A variety of grasses is always desirable in a pasture. Some farmers who have plenty of pasture land are adapting the plan of sowing the seeds of timothy, blue grass, orchard grass and the different clovers separately, giving each kind its own space, so as to permit the cows to select the grasses preferred. It has been demon-strated that each individual will prefer certain grasses, and that the herd will

Recent experiments show that the Dorking feathers rapidly, the same as the Leghorn, and if the chicks be allowed a simall quantity of meat once a day they will prove as hardy as other kinds. This difficulty overcome, the Dorking will hold the highest place among poultry as a market fowl. It is to the barnyard fowls what the Shorthorn is among cattle. The first pound, or the first 100 pounds, of beef, mutton or pork is the most costly.

The first pound, or the first 100 pounds, of beef, mutton or pork is the most costly. The greater the weight an animal can be made to attain in the shortest period of time the smaller the cost per pound propor-tionately. It requires no more labor to feed a steer weighing 2,000 pounds than it does to feed a steer weighing 1,000. The cost of production does not depend solely upon the amount of food consumed, but upon the food, shelter and labor.

One advantage overlooked when manure is applied on the soil, as com; ared with the use of commercial fertilizers, is that with the decomposition of manure is a liberation of carbonic acid gas, which acts upon the soil chemically and conicta in the source of the s soil chemically and assists in providing a greater amount of plant food by rendering inert matter soluble. If, by the ensilage system, a greater number of cows can be kept, as compared with pasturing, the farmer will not only secure a gain by the saving of food but also by having a larger area of land to be culti-vated. Niagara vs. Vesuvius.

The average American at home or abroad does not take kindly to anything that would seem to cast the shadow of a shade upon his native land. A story told the other evening at the Richmond Auenue Methodist Episcopal Church by the Rev George W. Peck might be cited in illustra tion. An Englishman was travelling through Italy with an American friend, and in the course of their sojournings each maintained the superiority of his own bout these scenes. Chamberlain's remarks vere generally a repetition of his previous country. Finally the grand spectacle of Mount Vesuvius in eruption, throwing its builliant rays across the bay of Naples, burst upon their astonished gaze. "Now, Earl Spencer, who was Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland under Mr. Gladstone's administration, in an interview to day with Charles Augustifis Conybeare, Radical mem-ber of Parliament for Cornwall, said he knew from his experience as Vicerqy; and ook at that," chuckled the Englishman "you haven't got anything in America that can come anywhere near that." "No," moodily replied the Yankee, "it is true we have not got a Vesuvius, but we have got a waterfail that could put that thing out in nobody could possibly know better, that it less than five minutes."-Buffalo Co
