

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., DEC. 28, 1894.

The Dying Year.

The year 1894 is rapidly drawing to a close, and in a few days, and before another issue of the ACADIAN reaches its readers, will have passed into history, and another year will have begun. How rapidly the years pass! It seems but a short time since we welcomed the new year and began to write 1894. To us, as a people, the year just closing has been one of quiet, steady progress, in which a fair measure of prosperity has been enjoyed. With good results in nearly all branches of agricultural industry, and fairly remunerative prices, our farmers and artisans have reason to look upon the year 1894 with a large measure of satisfaction. Neither war, nor pestilence, nor famine, nor any other calamity has fallen upon the people or dominion. The empire to which we are proud to belong has been at peace with the world, and the outlook for continued peace throughout its wide extent appears more promising now than at any time during recent years.

Acadia Villa School.

The people of Lower Horton were very pleasantly entertained on the evening of the 13th ult. by Acadia Villa School assisted by Miss Hall, whose voice is a very sweet and well trained soprano. The programme consisted of music, recitations, dialogues and a Dumb Bell drill by 16 of the boys led by Principal Patterson. The singing of the Bells and marching were timed to music, and the exercise is well fitted to develop the muscles and expand the chest. Each part was promptly and well given—all doing credit to themselves and their teachers. At the close Mr Patterson was presented with a pair of gloves, by the school, accompanied with the following address:

To A. McN. Patterson, Esq., M. A., our esteemed Principal of Acadia Villa School: We the undersigned students of your present classes, being desirous of manifesting our high appreciation of your untiring zeal in your interest, take this opportunity to give an expression of our thanks. We often think that you must have been somewhat discouraged because your kindly efforts may seem to you to be unrequited. But be assured that any seeming ingratitude on our part results more from the giddiness and short-sightedness of youth than from any indication to disobedience on our part. We hope you may yet triumph in the realization of your heart's desire in seeing all of us develop into intelligent, honest, useful and patriotic citizens, performing our duties in the different vocations of life with that success that shall reflect credit upon this institution where we are now being so well trained.

As a small token of our good will on this day of the anniversary of your birthday, we ask you to kindly accept this present, not so much for its intrinsic value as an expression of our appreciation of your untiring efforts in our behalf. May many more such anniversaries be yours, and they too, find you enjoying that same youthful energy that now characterizes you.

Again with great confidence in the future of your well equipped institution, and with kindest regards for yourself and staff of teachers, we would subscribe ourselves

The Students of Acadia Villa School, 1894-95.

This called for a short reply from the pleased recipient, followed by some kind words of commendation and advice from Prof. McGill. Other gentlemen spoke briefly of the pleasure of the evening and their high appreciation of the work done at the school, and the uniformly good conduct of the boys and girls. A small admission was charged for the purpose of buying a drum for the school band, and a nice little sum was realized towards it. The whole school with teachers in front were grouped on the platform and sang "Good Night." The audience joined in the National Anthem, and so ended a most pleasant evening.

The Delinquent for February is the Midwinter Number, and the contents bear out the promise of the publishers that the magazine for 1895 will be more interesting than ever. In the front of the book is the new Delinquent March, by Monroe H. Rosenfield, which is immensely effective and sure to become popular. There is an illustrated article on Church Fairs full of practical suggestions, and another descriptive of a picturesque Flax Fete, suitable for a Washington's Birthday entertainment at Schools and Academies. There is a Good Night Drill, also for Children, and two delightful entertainments for their elders called a Flower Party and a Valentine Masquerade. Mrs. Carrie M. Knapp writes of Laundry Work as an Employment for Women, and A. H. Tyrer describes a Girl's Life and Work at the University of Wisconsin. Some most attractive favors for the German are shown in Crepe and Tissue Papers, and new designs are illustrated and described in Yuletide Iron Work. The sixth paper on the Kindergarten introduces some fascinating work for little hands. For the housewife there is Seasonable Cookery, Hints on Serving Fruits and the continuation of the articles on the home. The Chapter on The Treatment of the Eyes and Ears will be of value to all who read it if its precepts are followed; the flower-lover will find something of interest in Floral Work for Midwinter, the Tea Table Gossip is as entertaining as ever, and the New Year Books are reviewed. The Fancy Work department is unusually attractive in this number, and there are papers on Orchestration, Hair Pin Work, Knitting, Netting, etc.

The Land of the Midnight Sun.

No traveller or tourist has ever returned from Alaska by the steamship Queen, of the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., but has acknowledged it to be the grandest and most enjoyable excursion ever advertised or patronized. In the years 1890 and 1891 I was carpenter on the Queen during the excursion months, which are June, July and August. Leaving Tacoma twice a month, making six trips to Alaska each summer. After leaving Tacoma we called at Seattle, Port Townsend and Victoria, B. C. Here the steamer remains several hours, during which time passengers can ride into and around the city.

When the time is up for leaving Victoria—all aboard—off we go for Alaska. Now you bid good-bye to the railroad and telegraph, to the bustle and worry and confusion of the world. All you have to do now is to see and enjoy the sights, to eat, drink, and be merry. First, then, you will scarcely believe your own senses or realize the fact that the waters you are gazing over are the salt waters of the Pacific ocean. You will glide along day after day, and week after week, without encountering a wave or scarcely a ripple to disturb the equilibrium of the ship.

You will sail through narrow and serpentine passages which can only be navigated at slack and high tide, on account of the terrific current which rushes through at other stages of the tide. You will see, admire and pass through channels hundreds of miles in length, as straight as an arrow and of unfathomable depth, banked on either side by perpendicular and gigantic mountains, whose untrodden summits are clothed in clouds and ice. But what will interest you most of all will be the glaciers. You will see a number of them on your way up to Jensen. If the tide is right you will hear the thundering crash caused by the icebergs breaking off from the glaciers and tumbling into the water. You will also see the ship surrounded by a "sea of ice," which is the prettiest picture you have ever seen.

The anchoring in strange places, the going to and fro in small boats, the queer people, the strange life, the peculiar fascination of the frontier, and the novelty of the whole thing effect one strangely. Each arm of the sea and the unknown unexplored wilderness that lies back of every mile of shore, continually tempt the imagination.

Every morning of our northward voyage we wake up to look on mountain scenery more imposing. At last we reach "Glacier Bay." The water is covered with icebergs, the tops of which are chiseled by nature's artists into groups of fantastic statuary of endless variety. Timber has disappeared, mountains are bare, and scenery assumes a decidedly bleak appearance. Suddenly our farther progress is arrested by a frozen Niagara in front of us stretched entirely across the narrowing bay, a distance of three miles, and rising perpendicularly above the water three hundred feet, and reaching below the surface five hundred feet. This is the foot of Mure Glacier, the largest of the five glaciers which dip their feet and shed their substance into this wonderful bay. The steamer anchors near the eastern shore, boats are lowered and the passengers are landed for a day's experience to be enjoyed but once in a lifetime.

WONDERFUL PICTURE.

Wonderfully picturesque is the Mure glacier, which marks the extreme northern point of pleasure travel. Imagine a glacier three miles wide, and three hundred feet high at its mouth, in front of which your steamer anchors, a picture a landscape of mountains and fifteen thousand feet high, all snow clad, and then imagine a gorgeous sun lighting up the crystals with rainbow coloring. These dazzling serpens move at the rate of sixty-four feet a day, tumbling headlong into the sea, and as it falls the ear is startled by submarine thunder, the echoes of which resound far and near. Down, down, down goes the berg, and was to be lost in its way when it again rises to the surface.

Paine's Celery Compound Never Fails to Cure.

In Canada thousands of old people are indebted to Paine's Celery Compound for their present vigor, health and strength. From disease, weakness, and loss of energy, they have been raised to a condition of health that guarantees many years of life and usefulness to their families and friends.

Among the many old people who have been cured by Paine's Celery Compound, the case of Mrs. Henry Lewis, of Montreal, is deserving of special attention; her letter is an interesting one and worthy of careful perusal. Mrs. Lewis writes as follows:

"I am now an old woman, being in my seventy-third year; and can most frankly confess that no action of my life has ever given me greater pleasure than the present one of testifying with my whole heart and soul in favor of your Paine's Celery Compound.

"From my experience with other advertised remedies, I may say, that they are not to be compared with your grand medicine for a moment. Paine's Celery Compound to me was new health and increased strength; all other medicines I found worthless and my money was spent in vain.

"Two years ago I became weak, sleepless and restless, and my appetite was almost gone. Severe headaches, biliousness, kidney trouble and sore back made life a misery to me, and I despaired of being in health again.

"These distressing troubles often confined me to bed for a week or ten days at a time; and, it is almost impossible to describe the agonies and wretchedness I endured during these severe attacks. A friend advised me to give Paine's Celery Compound a trial; others insisted that I required careful nourishment and dieting. I had heard, however, of such wonderful results from the use of Paine's Celery Compound, that I determined to honestly and carefully test its value in my case; and I bless God that I had sufficient courage and will power to do so, and it has made me a new woman. I used your Compound simply as directed, and found, after commencing the second bottle, that the victims of the great medicine were instantly a new vitality and giving me a new existence. "Up to date, I have used about twelve bottles, and am now completely and permanently restored. I can do all my household work; I am cheerful and happy, and do not experience any of the fatigue and weakness that troubled me some months ago. "I live and enjoy life to-day, and these dazzling serpens move at the rate of sixty-four feet a day, tumbling headlong into the sea, and as it falls the ear is startled by submarine thunder, the echoes of which resound far and near. Down, down, down goes the berg, and was to be lost in its way when it again rises to the surface.
