For several days past the residents in the vicinity of the store istely occupied by E. & C. Gurney on St. Faul street, St. Ostharines, have been considerably exer-ensed over a year dissegresable steinoh. Ou Friday a party entered the premises over the store, and on bursting the door open a most horrible sight must their gase. On a bed in one corner lay as an almost unre-cognizable corpse, presenting a terrible and inchening sight, which on examination proved to be that of Mr. Rathan Fawling, an old and well-known citizen of St. Cash-arines, who must have died some sight or ten days ago, and since lain in the position in which he was found. The deceased was an sumarried man, and occupied rooms by himself in the block.
