Fear Competition.

That the Reciprocity Pact should prove a boomerang in the Dominion generally was somewhat remarkable. That it should weaken the Government in the Maritime Provinces, where there are many fishermen was surprising. The disfavor with which it was regarded by one fish firm is evidenced by a circular issued by N. S. Smith & Co. Ltd., Lunenburg. Parts of this circular were republished by the N. Y. Fishing Gazette of Saturday last. They should prove interesting reading to our people, as they reflect the fear and anxiety of Newfoundland caught fish competing with Nova Scotia caught fish in the markets controlled by Americans.

Ex-Constable Walsh, one of the men who went from here last fall with Mr. Carroll to work at the Rose Harbor Whaling Station, at Queen Charlotte Islands, sent a letter by last mail to the Minister of Public Works, saying that he was going to return in the Spring. Walsh is enjoying the best of health, and informed Mr. Woodford that short white anguilla, a large whale was captured by the men with whom he is working. Walsh says that ambergris valued at about $150,000 has been taken from the whale. The rainy season is now on there and he expects to return in the next two months. All the Newfoundlanders are well and are pleased with their employment.

Gloucester Jubilant.

After the news of the defeat of Reciprocity in Canada Thomas J. Carroll, President of the Gloucester Board of Trade and Manager of the Gloucester Fisheries Company, which contemplates establishing branches in Nova Scotia in the event of Reciprocity, expressed himself as follows: "As everyone knows I have been opposed to the Reciprocity measure, and am delighted to hear the good tidings of its defeat. All the fish dealers will be equally delighted over its defeat for whatever benefits the fish business, benefits the entire city of Gloucester. There will now be no need of going to Canada, but we have started developing our plants recently. I hope the figures won't show any change and am delighted to hear of the defeat of the measure." Mr. Carroll's sentiments were echoed by practically every vessel owner and fish packer and many of them, when interviewed, simply said, "It is the best thing for the city that has happened in a long time. It means Gloucester's fish business will continue to be done in Gloucester instead of in the coast of Nova Scotia. It means that the old place will continue to be on the map as the leader in salt fish production and it means that the Port of Gloucester market is still ours."

News from Whalers.

The Minister of Marine and Fisheries has received the following message from Oporto in code relating to the fish market: 34 shillings large; 28 to 30 shillings small. Market is well supplied with fish except that of fin quality.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

The man who sells me humble bees and cheese will have my trade for years to come. He never takes my hard-earned money for and staid, and when he sells me tempting beans and succotash, not only some and say: "This makes my spirit ache, anitake!" I wretched of that elastom bluff, and every man who pays his cash for first rate will hate the man who works the game, and all excuses he may frame."

Another Letter From Choral.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir—In your issue of yesterday I see a letter from "Anator," in reply to mine of previous evening and to which I beg to take some exceptions. Now, with regard to the item "lacking funds and backers we are only able to cater to the public in a small way." Well, Mr. Editor, I am more than surprised that my friend has been so long unnoticed as a star in theatricals. He says that he produced performances in a small hall, which were full of people, and were loudly praised both by them and the press. Why, then, after all this, has he not had funds enough? Then, again, he said he had no backers. Why, Mr. Editor, who are the backers? The public of St. John's are the same, and surely if he had come forward and produced, he would have had a goodly number of backers. The public of St. John's are the same, and surely if he had come forward and produced, he would have had a goodly number of backers.
