

The Wizard Who Ends All Corns

Some years ago a chemist invented the now famous B & B wax. To apply it we invented the Blue-jay plaster. Since then, fifty million corns have been ended forever by this little application. It is applied in a jiffy. The pain instantly ends. Then the B & B wax gently loosens the corn. In two days the whole corn, root and all, comes out. No soreness, no discomfort. You simply forget the corn. Why pare corns when this thing is possible? Paring simply removes the top layers. It is exceedingly dangerous, for a slip of the blade may mean infection. Why trifle with corns—treat them over and over—when a Blue-jay removes them completely, and in 48 hours. Prove it today.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. It loosens the corn. B protects the corn, stopping the pain at once. C wraps around the toe. It is narrow to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

The Younger Sister.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

It isn't wholly the younger sister's fault. It never is entirely the person's own fault when he or she is spoiled. In this case it's partly the older sister and partly the mother or father that's to blame. The older sister went to a business college straight from grammar school, or if she was fortunate enough to go to high school, she had to wear old clothes and crimp and go without right and left, because father was the only earner in the family then, and the ordinary man's wages are not supposed to really support a family under present-day conditions. If she managed to stay the whole four years, she was probably graduated in a white waist and linen skirt, and didn't go to the class dance because she couldn't have a pretty gown.

Younger sister, on the contrary, goes through high school as a matter of course and probably goes to college, too. Nor does she have to scrimp and go without things. By reason of the contributions the family purse now made by older sister, or perhaps by two or three older sisters or brothers, financial conditions in the family are much improved, and younger sister does everything her wealthier friends do. She takes vacation trips; she goes to all the functions; she has pretty gowns and all the expensive little accessories such as shoes and stockings to match. She says she "must have them" and big sister, remembering her own pangs over the lack of such things, is the first to agree as to the stern necessity for them.

And so it goes. All that the older sister lacked the younger must have. And because it is given her so freely she soon takes it as a matter of course. Perhaps she even looks down upon the older sister. Why not? She never went to college; why she didn't even go through high school. Her grammar is often shameful. Besides, younger sister is apt to be much prettier than her older sister. You see, the older girl was growing up at a time in the family history when very frugal fare and hard work were the order of the day, and most of the good looks she did have she has lost in the bad air and confinement of the office. Whereas younger sister's years of development were passed in much more propitious circumstances, and she has never imperiled her good looks by overwork. Can you blame her, then, for feeling the superiority that any pretty girl is conscious of?

My friends, you may think I am simply generalizing and using my imagination in this matter. I am not. I am thinking of a younger brother right in this neighbourhood who wore silk stockings and was generally a dude at high school, while his older sister worked her heart out, almost entirely supporting the family. I am thinking of a younger sister whose mother slaves to make her the prettiest gowns that are displayed at the high school dances, while the older sister who works ten hours a day, does her own sewing or wears cheap ready-made things.

Of course, it is right that the younger children should have all the opportunities that better financial conditions make possible. But they should not be taught to think they can have every luxury their wealthier companions afford. And most importantly of all, they should be taught to realize and be grateful for all that their older brothers and sisters have done for them, and done without themselves.

Why Have "Nerves"?

This is the reason why women have "nerves." When thoughts begin to grow cloudy and uncertain, impulses lag and the warnings of pain and distress are sent like flying messages throughout limbs and frame, straightway, nine times in ten, a woman will lay the cause of the trouble to some defect at the point where she first felt it. Is it a headache, a backache, a sensation of irritability or twitching and uncontrollable nervousness, something must be wrong with the head or back, a woman naturally says, but all the time the real trouble very often centers in the womanly organs. In nine cases out of ten the seat of the difficulty is here, and a woman should take rational treatment for its cure. The local disorder and inflammation of the delicate special organs of the sex should be treated steadily and systematically.

Dr. Pierce, during a long period of practice, found that a prescription made from medicinal extracts of native roots, without the use of alcohol, relieved over 90 per cent. of such cases. After using this remedy for many years in his private practice he put it up in form of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that would make it easily procurable, and it can be had at any store where medicines are handled.

Mrs. LILA B. HAWKINS, of Zeus, Va., writes: "I had been falling in health for two years—most of the time not able to attend to my household duties. Female weakness was my trouble and I was getting very bad but, thanks to Doctor Pierce's medicines, I am well and strong again. I took only three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' and used the 'Lotion Tablets.' I have nothing but praise for Doctor Pierce's wonderful medicines."

Lock-Jaw Cure.

Spinal Cord Injection to Save a Thumb.

What would have been pronounced a miracle cure a very few years ago has just taken place at St. Bartholomew's Hospital. The patient, a young foundry hand, had fallen off a London tramway car, inflicting a slight flesh wound on his thumb. The deadly lock-jaw germs ever lurking in the London street dust found their way into the wound, and ten days later the early symptoms of stiffness and pain in the jaw muscles showed themselves.

Admitted to St. Bartholomew's, anti-tetanic serum was at once administered in the ordinary way but failed to prevent the development of the disease. The unusual procedure of injecting the serum directly into the patient's spinal canal was then adopted in the hope that the necessity of amputating the man's thumb (and so destroying his chances of earning a livelihood) might be obviated.

As only the slightest abatement of Improvements in Gas.

The Old Year is closed, and in looking back, the advocates of Gas have no cause for complaint; indeed, it has been a year of great progress in this industry.

Each year householders realize more and more what Gas (intelligently used) can do for them in Cooking, Heating and Lighting.

A great improvement in gas appliances is shown in all directions and the growth of knowledge as to how Gas may be used to the best advantage is one of the most satisfactory features of the past year.

the symptoms resulted, a second large dose of the serum was injected on the following day into the spinal cord, and at the same time a small portion of the fleshy part of the thumb, including the site of the original wound, was excised. Immediate improvement followed, and two days later two teaspoonsful of a weak carbolic acid solution were injected into a vein in the arm as a final precaution. From then on the patient has made uninterrupted progress towards recovery and is to be discharged to-day.

"The case is of intense interest," said one of the hospital staff, "as proving the great value, even in acute lock-jaw cases of anti-tetanic serum when injected into the spinal canal. A very few years ago the man most probably would have lost his life, to say nothing of his thumb. Thanks to the serum, what used to be in the great majority of cases a hopeless disease from the start may now be reckoned among the ailments modern curative science has conquered." —Daily Mail.

Fads and Fashions.

A stunning evening gown of mauve mousseline de soie, draped over a foundation of cream lace, had a girle of deep violet velvet.

So much in vogue is the craze for black and white that one sees jackets of white satin worn with skirts of black satin, or even serge.

The parasols made with graduated ruffles, finished on edge with narrow silk fringe, are reminiscent of the days of our grandmothers.

Shirtings of taffeta, lace and chiffon, and ruchings of ribbon, both silk, and velvet, are much used for the decoration of the new parasols.

Shadow laces and silvers are both popular as trimmings. Batiste em-broidery in all colors, flouncings and bandings are exquisitely dainty.

Many of the prettiest of the little cotton and linen frocks show the sailor collar of lace or lawn or of linen, lace or embroidery trimmed.

Charming hats for little girls are made of the beige-colored straw. The puffed crowns are of flowered taffeta. A single flower is fastened artistically at the left side.

Petticoats of crepe de chine, pongee and china silk, as well as of mes-saline and very soft taffeta, are trimmed with pleated flouncings that have no underlay.

Pump and colonial models, with very short vamps that show to advantage the unusually lovely silk stockings of to-day, are among the most popular models.

Black satin evening slippers have heels studded with brilliants. Extremely pretty are the black satin models with heels covered with either cloth of gold or silver.

The new bathing suits are fashioned from black satin, blue-and-white and black-and-white checked taffetas, tartan plaids and plain taffetas and striped saraha.

Biscuit-tinted veils are decidedly modish. An auto veil of chiffon on this color is barred with a fine black silk thread and finished on each edge with a darker tone of silk.

An exceptionally snappy bathing-suit model is of plaided blue, green and black taffeta, barred in white. The circular skirt is made with a deep blue fold of the silk above the hem.

The fancy of the moment in millinery is the small flat bow. It is used to hold back a portion of the turn-up brim, or a number of small ones are arranged to resemble a flight of birds.

Laces on the ratine and macrame order come in white, light and dark ecru and string color. Bandings and edgings of these laces figure largely on frocks and coats of ratine and linen.

Colors among the reds are sunset, raspberry, watermelon, tomato, geranium and flame. In purple we have grape, night, royal, thistle and amethyst. Colors with a tinge of tan are all popular.

With a picture dress of black satin and white chiffon, which has a suggestion of "old fashions" skillfully adapted to modern ideas, an old fan should be carried. A Fragonard fan would be appropriate.

Beefsteak.
BY H. L. RANN.

Beefsteak is an alleged article of food which is removed by force from cows which are too old and feeble to resist. It is the most durable form of meat now in use and is capable of great resistance. Beefsteak is usually bought on the hoof at 4 1/2 cents a pound by liberal gentlemen known as packers, who wish to act for their country's good and at the same time extract a bare living profit for themselves and their dependent families. By the time they have transformed the hide into a pony skin coat, the horns into gluecase and the hoofs into shaving scap, what is left is sold at 25 cents a pound to people with rubber-set teeth and a love of adventure. In order to be thoroughly enjoyable, beefsteak should be cooked over a slow fire for one week prior to the noon-day meal. The most expensive variety is porterhouse steak, one slice of which will cause a $12 a week salary to sag at the knees. This kind of meat is undressed and allowed to ferment in a refrigerator, and is never served until old age has put it on the defensive. The rib steak is a crude imitation of the porterhouse, and has to be assailed with more determination. Then there is that hairy household favorite, the round steak, which has a very stubborn disposition and has to be carved with a two-handled cross-cut saw. The flank steak is a by-product with a cravenette finish, and should either be Fletcherized or fed to some household pet. The fibre of the average hotel beefsteak is not approached by anything except the split hickory spoke and the better grades of linoleum, and is seldom molested by anybody after the first round. The fortitude of the American beefsteak reflects itself in the American character and stomach, neither of which is afraid of anything. A brisk bout with a beefsteak three times a day gave England her navy and her nerve, and it is making America the reddest-blooded infant of the nations of the earth.

A Dangerous Hill

On the outskirts of a certain village is a steep and dangerous hill. Not long ago an accident occurred on the spot, and the matter was brought forward at a meeting of the council. It was decided to put up a danger-board, and the job, who also happened to be a member of the council, was instructed to make the notice as conspicuous as possible.

"Never fear," said the carpenter; "I'll give 'em summat to look at."

At the top of the hill he affixed a notice-board, in the shape of a huge hand pointing down, and bearing the words, "Stop and dismount." A little farther down a similar board bore the caution, "Apply your brake, or—"

On the third, "You'll soon shake hands—" At the bottom of the hill was the biggest board of all. This read, "With the Undertaker. N. B.—This hill is dangerous."

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

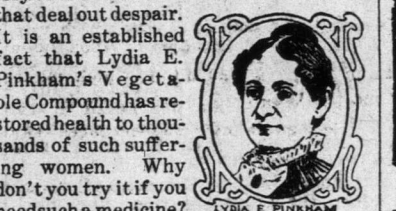

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs. Templeton—Regained Health through Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."

Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair.

It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

His Misfortune.

A married couple stood looking in a shop window. A handsome tailor-made dress took the lady's fancy, and she left her husband's side to examine it more closely. Then she went back to where he had been standing, and took his arm.

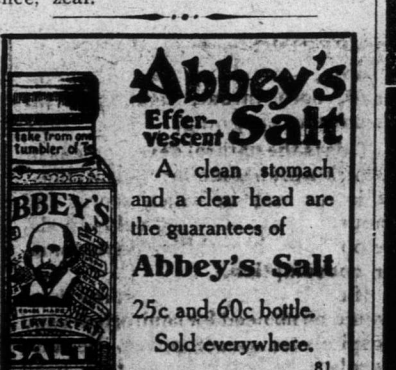

"You never look at anything I want to look at," she exclaimed. "You don't care how I dress! Why, you haven't kissed me for three weeks!"

"Indeed, I am sorry, it is not my fault but my misfortune," said the man.

Turning round, she looked at him and gasped. She had taken the arm of the wrong man.

Has Medals for Bravery.

Denver, Colo., June 3.—The State Board of Pardons has received two medals of honor which have been voted to Louis Weitcher by Congress. Weitcher is under sentence of death at Canton City for the murder of Clifford E. Burrows in a Denver restaurant, but served for a long time in the American navy, during which time he received two medals for feats performed. The medals recite that he won them through bravery and on them are the words, "fidelity, obedience, zeal."

Yesterday was one of the busiest days for city labourers for some time past, and those seeking help found few men idle. The scarcity was due to the number of ships in port discharging and the large amount of men engaged on the different waterfront ship premises. The S. S. her supper was served by Jane, be- cause no one else would bring it up into the kitchen. This added of- fense to its scantiness and its dul- ness. Diggins, the butler, would not want up two flights of stairs for poor Miss Crump, who is honestly the "puncheon." Ernest, the footman, is afraid of losing caste with Mr. Diggins if he went, though he did not mind stairs, and George could not do it. Ernest was above it, and for the reason nothing would have in- duced Mrs. Stone, the head house- hold, to wait on Miss Crump, and as the kitchen-maid, she was busy with the dinner below. At last Jane was persuaded to bring it up, though she objected bitterly, because she was shy and hated "waiting at table." She styled Miss Crump's modest supper. Of course Miss Crump knew the difficulties surrounding her su- per, and every night she felt the misery of being thought of no conse- quence even by the servants.
