Mortello Rescue Was Thrilling.

ELEVEN MEN THROWN IN SEA WHEN FREIGHTER ABANDONED.

ED.—New York, Jan. 29.—A thrilling story of shipwreck and rescue at sea was brought into port to-day by the steamer Giuseppe Verdi on her arrival from Genoa with 33 members of the crew of the Italian freighter Montello, abandoned in a sinking condition last Wednesday about 100 miles east of Sable Island.

The entire crew of the ill-fated Montello was saved, the seamen said, only after a terrific battle with high seas which had carried away the rudder and battered in the hatches of the cargo ship, bound from Philadelphia to Marseilles, France.

One of the lifeboats which put out from the Montello was dashed to pieces against the sides of the Verdi and the men thrown into the sea, but all were picked up by life lines. The eleven remaining members of the Montello's crew were taken off in the Verdi's boats.

The sole casualty occurring as a result of the perilous rescue work was the injury sustained by a seaman who was buffeted about the head when the lifeboat was wrecked.

The Montello, according to its survivors, encountered a succession of furious gales, soon after leaving the Delaware River. The rudder was carried away, hatches were smashed in and the vessel, leaking badly, soon became unmanageable.

An S.O.S. call wireless on Tuesday morning, was answered by the Verdi, which sighted the ill-fated vessel late in the afternoon. High seas, however, prevented any rescue at that time and the Verdi stood by throughout the night, effecting the removal of the crew the next day.

NEW BRUNSWICK MAN CANNOT SAY TOO MUCH IN FAVOUR OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

He Advises all Persons who Suffer from Kidney Disease to use them.

Pine Ridge, N.B., Jan. 29 (Special).—From all over New Brunswick reports are coming telling of the popularity of Dodd's Kidney Pills as a remedy for all forms of kidney trouble.

In every place, however small, there appears to be at least one person who is prepared to say that he owes his health to the great Canadian remedy. Mr. Edward Chandler, a well-known resident here is one of them.

"I have taken ten boxes of your Dodd's Kidney Pills and cannot say too much in their favour," Mr. Chandler states, "they are worth their weight in gold and I shall advise all who suffer from kidney disease to use them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have become a family remedy because people have tried them and found them good. They help Rheumatism, Lumbago, Diabetes, Lame Back, Heart Disease and Urinary troubles, because all of these are either Kidney Diseases or are caused by the kidneys failing to do their work.

M. G. C. A. Sing-Song.

Ladies Auxiliary Arrange Sacred Concerts for Old Comrades.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the M.G.C.A. arranged a sing song for the Old Comrades service and their friends, which took place in Association's rooms on Sunday night last from 8.30 to 9.30. The sing-song proved a very popular entertainment to all and the spacious rooms were filled to their utmost capacity. Mr. L. G. Mews sang a pleasing solo with excellent effect, while Mrs. Mews, contributed a very appropriate recitation entitled "The land of beginning again." Miss Russell sang a solo, her voice being heard to good advantage, and also partnered with Miss Brown in a duet, which pleased the entire audience. During the evening Mrs. C. H. Butt presided at the piano and Mr. S. J. Tucker acted as chairman. These free and easy informal gatherings are expected to do a great deal of good. They are an experiment for the winter Sabbath evenings, and will continue just so long through the winter as the boys themselves show by their attendance that they really want them. The boys have shown appreciation of the efforts of the ladies by their attendance to date.

Bumper Feature Bill at The Nickel.

Last night's show at the Nickel Theatre was one of unsurpassed excellence. The vaudeville act by Clinton and McNamara was delightfully entertaining. Miss McNamara sang several popular ballads, which were greatly appreciated by her hearers. Mr. Clinton delighted one and all with his original jokes and funny gestures. These popular favourites are bidding farewell this week, so lovers of good vaudeville will only have another few days to hear and see the cleanest act of this kind to come to St. John's.

The picture programme is something unusual, in that it features two of the most popular stars in filmdom. The dainty Wanda Hawley is starred in "The Outside Woman." People who live in apartment houses will find a particular "kick" for them in this picture. It is a Reelart release and presents Miss Hawley in a most uproariously clever farce involving two married couples, and Aztec idol and an extremely busy apartment-house fire escape. Bebe Daniels is seen in an entirely new role in "Nancy From Nowhere." This story presents the star in a character quite foreign to any that Miss Daniels has ever been given—that of a shy and frightened orphan, instead of the saucy mad-cap she usually portrays.

Judge McCormick, of San Francisco, says these are the thirteen commonest mistakes of life:

1. To attempt to set up your own standards of right and wrong.
2. To try to measure the enjoyment of others by your own.
3. To expect uniformity of opinions in this world.
4. To fail to make allowances for inexperience.
5. To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
6. Not to yield to unimportant trifles.
7. To look for perfection in our own actions.
8. To worry ourselves and others about what cannot be remedied.
9. To consider a thing impossible that we ourselves cannot perform.
10. Failing to help everybody, wherever, however and whenever we can.
11. To believe only what our infinite minds can grasp.
12. Not to make allowances for the weaknesses of others.
13. To estimate by some outside quality when it is that within him which makes the man.

"TRINCULO" REFLIES TO "SENSEISM."

The present day miss is a terrible mix. If she isn't a dainty Girl Guide. At least, that's what "Senseism," Carbonar thinks. And his statements must not be de-lized.

For she powders her nose as she stands on the street. And her friends with "old bean" or "old thing" she may greet. Then a gold cigarette case she takes from her bag. And with care and precision she lights up a "rag."

And in fact, she's afflicted with all sorts of vice. If she isn't a Guide, she is not very nice.

This critic then from Carbonar. Uses a curious nom de guerre. For anyone possessed of sense. Could not be possibly to dense. As he, who thinks that not before. Our girls were versed in scouting lore.

Was there a one who was not had. "Senseism's" case is very sad. For though I do not think he meant. The lives of all girls were misspent. Who were not in the Guides.

If he would as a critic pose. Then let him speak whereof he knows. And spare my bursting sides.

The Irish Free State.

Both Houses of the Imperial Parliament, after vigorous protest from more than one quarter, passed the Irish Free State Bill, and the measure received the Royal Assent on December 6th. The Ulster Parliament immediately voted the Six Counties out of the arrangement, and Sir James Craig, describing himself as "very pacific but very stubborn," declared there is no hope that Ulster will ever place herself under a Dublin Parliament. Ulster, with her own institutions, which now seem to be functioning quite satisfactorily, insists on maintaining the closest possible connection with Great Britain and the Empire. In his speech on behalf of the Imperial Government the Duke of Devonshire said he had heard the question again and again: "Can the new Irish Government deliver the goods?" That is the test which Mr. Cosgrave and his colleagues have to satisfy. The Duke of Devonshire believes that they will endeavour to carry out the Treaty in the spirit and the letter. Their nominations for the first Senate go far to justify confidence, and in other directions they are certainly giving proof, relentless and tragic, of their determination. Erskine Childers, taken prisoner with unauthorized firearms in his possession, after the Provisional Government had given notice that the penalty would be death, was tried and shot. No distinction on account of his position and attainments was made between him and any other member of the Republican Forces. Reprisals were threatened and on the day after the first meeting of the Free State Parliament two members were shot in the streets of Dublin, one fatally. Within twenty-four hours, four well-known rebel prisoners were executed as a solemn warning that the Government intend at any cost to stamp out the campaign of assassination. In any case the difficulties in the way of the Free State would be great; they are aggravated a thousandfold by a long drawn-out agony of the rebellion. Mr. Tim Healy, the sometime stormy petrel of the Nationalist Party, has been appointed Governor-General. The selection is regarded as a stroke of administrative genius—United Empire.

Queer Jobs For Steeplejacks.

CLIMBING A CHURCH TO RESCUE A KITTEN.

Not always are steeplejacks employed in climbing steeples or factory chimneys in order to repair them. They have other jobs.

Once, for instance, Will Larkins, probably the best known of all "jacks" was given the task of asphyxiating a swarm of bees. The insects had taken possession of the tower of the parish church at Curmstock, in Devonshire, and proceeded to make things unpleasant for the worshippers.

He undertook the job light-heartedly enough, fixed his ladders, and climbed to where the nest was. But he came down more quickly than he went up, for the bees swarmed out and attacked him viciously, and he was badly stung.

Nothing daunted, however, he returned to the attack after darkness had fallen; though steeply-climbing by night, it need hardly be explained, is risky work. But Mr. Larkins managed it all right, and when he had finished there were in the tower no bees but dead ones.

Quite recently, too, poison gas and smoke coils were used with similar effect against an army of red flying ants, which were in possession of the steeple of a church near Aldershot. These insects are responsible for much of the damage to oak woodwork in churches all over the kingdom, and as they almost invariably make their nests in the loftiest and almost inaccessible positions, the services of a professional steeplejack are nearly always necessary in order to destroy them.

On one occasion Mr. Larkins was summoned by telegram to a village miles away from his home.

The vicar was signed by the vicar of the parish church, and the steeple-jack, with the vision before his eyes of an unsteady steeple on the point of collapsing, caught the fastest train he could.

At the end of a three hundred mile journey he found the vicar's wife in hysterics, and her pet cat perched aloft on the top of a three hundred foot steeple, clinging to the weather-vane and mewling piteously.

Of course he was able to retrieve the animal, and duly received his fee—a pretty stiff one by the way. Three hundred miles by rail, three hundred feet by ladder—and all to rescue a venturesome pussy from an unpleasant predicament!

American Claims.

The United States, while refusing to take part with France, Italy, and Great Britain in the Lausanne Conference, made it known through her "observer," Mr. Child, that America cannot recognize any territorial arrangement that does not provide equal economic and commercial opportunity—in other words, "the open door." Disclaimers of desire to embarrass the Allies do not carry much conviction in view of the repeated claims of America to participate in difficult and delicate settlements on account of which she accepts no sort of responsibility. How can the American people imagine that they are for ever to maintain a policy of mastery inactivity in regard to international crisis and enjoy all the benefits accruing from the sacrifices of the Allies. The claim is the more remarkable because the great majority of Americans visiting Europe agree that the right to participate in profits, if any, should go to those who face the risks and share the burdens. Great Britain is so anxious to afford the United States evidence of goodwill and desire to work with her for the world's good that disappointment at the attitude assumed by Washington is inevitable. Take the question of inter-allied debts. No responsible British attempts to show cause why the Allies should not pay the debts contracted to America after America came into the war, but there are many who wonder that America should insist on being paid. Mr. T. B. Macaulay puts the matter with uncommon frankness when he says that the Allies were providing the men whilst America was providing the money, and asks, "Are dollars more valuable than lives?" Britain's present load of debt amounts to some 40 per cent of her pre-war wealth, France's to nearly 50 per cent, America's to a little over 5 per cent. Mr. Bonar Law and his colleagues are of course free to reconsider the terms of the Balfour Note, to which America so strongly objected, but the position remains what it was more than two years ago when Mr. Festus J. Wade—an American, not a Briton—in an address before business men in St. Louis, defined America's attitude in these terms: "We are not going to ask a cent from our enemy, but we are going to demand the last dollar from our friends."—United Empire.

What sport-shooting is to the well-to-do goose-loving Englishman, tarpon-fishing is to the average American.

You must know this in order fully to appreciate Mr. G. K. Chesterton's latest story.

It concerns two Americans who met accidentally in a West End bar.

"Hallo!" exclaimed one. "Why, I thought you always reckoned at this time of the year to be in Florida after tarpon. What are you doing over here?"

"After Bass," replied the other.

"Then, turning to the barmaid: "Another small bottle, please, miss."
