priation for which is in the height of £22,000, came up in the House of Commons to-day. Advantage was taken of the ccasion by Mr. Thomas Wallace Russell, a Liberal, but opposed to Home Rule for Ireland, to attack the administration of Chief Ireland, to attack the administration of Chief Secretary for Ireland Morley. Mr. Russell reiterated the charge that crime in the counties of Clare, Kerry and Limerick had increased during the period that the present Government had been in power, and that convictions for agrarian crimes could not be obtained in the courts.

Mr. Morley replied. He quoted figures that showed there had been a steady and well-marked decrease in crime in Ireland, even in the worst areas.

Right Hon. A. J. Balfour said he gave Mr. Morley credit for a tair measure of success in administering the Government of Ireland. He admitted that there had been Ireland. He admitted that there had been a diminution in agrarian crimes generally in Ireland, though he maintained; that the number of moonlighting outrages has increased. The general diminution of crime he attributed partly to the good harvest and partly to the influence of the Roman Catholic priesthood, the members of which, he declared, were supporting the present Administration for reasons of policy.

He said that while seeking a few hours' renose in Carlsruhe. the Emperor referred to the visit he made to Chrlsruhe last spring, when he was returning from Italy. He said that while seeking a few hours' repose in Carlsruhe, the thought had occurred to him and the Grand Duke of Baden, as well as to many other good patriots, will the German mation remain equal to its task or deviate from the path indicated by Emperor William I., and show itself unworthy of the greatdeeds of Emperor Frederick as the decisive hour approached, and is became nacessary to again direct the German people in the right way for them to follow.

Continuing, the Emperor said, addressing his words to the Grand Duke: "It was your highness who first of all, with pregnant golden words, touched the chord which ever vibrates the heart of the nation. The military spirit was reawakened within our people, a new idea permeated the entire country, and our nation became once again itself. I thank your highpess, as I thank my other cousins in the mpire. Each prince has done his utmost.

to bring forward his men and assemble them round the imperial standard. Through your united efforts Germany stands arrayed in fresh armor as the once divine hero Heimdalr stood watching over the peace of the world. May the nation ever remain true to the high mission confided to it, and may it always be blessed with such princes as it now possesses."

Heimdalr was a member of the race of gods distinguished in the ancient Saudinavian mythology as the Æsir. This family was headed by Odin, and consisted of twelve gods and twelve godesses, who dwelt apart in the celestial shodes of Gladsheim and Vingolf respectively. Heimdalr is the watchman of the bridge Bifrasta, that leads to the nether world. His bugle will give the signal which will summon the gods to take part in the great war between the kings of the air, in which the world will be destroyed, and the day of eternal happiness will then dawn.

Laurier, extending to him a hearty welcome on behalf of that organization.
The long and honorable career of Mr.
Laurier was, the address stated, a matter of bistory. No trace of political impurity The long and nonorable career of sixt. Learier was, the address stated, a matter of history. No trace of political impurity had been found in his career. As true young Canadians it was not their duty to inquire into racial differences, but it was their duty to see that their zealous support was given only to high-minded, patriotic men. Mr. Laurier had proved himself the worthy successor of a Brown, a Dorion and a Blake. The Conservative policy had been one most detrimental to the farming community. "We receive with alarm the statement made by Sir John Thompson at Montreal that the Government would adhere to the policy of protection. With your policy of reform, sir, this fair Dominion would enter upon such an era of prosperity, as would enable her shortly to vie with our neighboring sister to the south."

President John Lennon, of the Seaforth sister to the south."

President John Lennon, of the Seaforth Young Liberals, followed with a cordial address from that bedy. It expressed the high admiration of the Liberal leader, which his qualities of heart and head inspired. That the progress of this beantiful Canada had not been what it should have been they believed was due to tariff oppression and the clogging impediment of trade restriction.

The address of the Young Liberal Club of Mitchell was read by the president, Dr. Wood, and extended warm welcome to Mr. Laurier. They hoped soon to see him at the head of the Government, when they would not only have tariff reform but all the reforms of the Liberal party. The members of the Liberal party pledged themselves to elect their representatives in both the Perths.

Mr. Laurier in reply warmly thanked the sponeors of the addresses, and said that as the last three were of a political charrets he would defer a reriy until the after-
