Life and Character Reading. JUNE 14. Gemini people have a strong religious nature, and are often found among church members. A creed is among church members. A creed is of great importance to their happiness and yet they rarely place implicit confidence in any theological system, though they will stoutly defend the one they have appeared to espouse.

These people have a great respect for religious teachers, and are sometimes very timid and aprehensive about thinking for themselves. This is attributable to the necessity they feel for something to lean upon, and the small opinion they have of themselves and their ability to decide questions of moment.
