New York Gives Hint of Herself

NEW YORK, May 1.-Mrs. Louise De Massey took the stand to-day at her trial on the charge of killing Gustav Simon. She denied her gullt and said she had left Simon's office after he had refused to pay her for work she had done. Another woman was in the office when she was shoved out by Simon, she said. On cross-examination Mrs. Massey said that her relations with Simon while in his employ were pleasant and that when she informed him that she was about to He told her to come back on Monday afternoon, she said, and that if she would bring some designs with her he would pay her a full week.

When she went out of the office and started down the stairs she met a man on the fifth floor landing. She described him as a medium-sized man who had a black derby hat very much over his face. She also met two men on the stairs between the first and second floors. While descending the stairs, and when she had reached the first floor, she heard a sound like the slamming of a door or a window. "It might have been a shot," she said.

When asked why she used the name "Virst" when she was in business in this city, Mrs. Massey replied:

"I have a title, but I did not care to use it for business purposes."

FURNACE UNBREAKABLE FIRE-POT The lower portion of a fire-pot is usually nearly or partly filled with dead ashes, leaving the live, red-hot coals in the upper part. The result is that the upper portion expands much more than the lower. This uneven expansion causes a strain too great for a one-piece fire-pot to stand.

Sooner or later it will split, allowing precious heat and sickening gases to

But the fire-pot of the Sunshine is constructed to meet this condition. It is in two sections. The upper half expands, as much as necessary, independently of the lower. When cool, it contracts back to its original size, fitting to the lower half perfectly.

And this strong, unbreakable, gas and heat-tight, two-piece fire-pot is just one of the many superior features of the Sunshine. If your local dealer does not handle the
