

SPRING SMILES.

Knight of the bath—Saturday night.
He—"I like seats with arms." She—"So do I."

Curious. There are no counts in this country, and yet every man counts.

When a barrel is full, it usually gets bunged up. And this is the case with a man.

He—"Darling, will you love me when I'm gone?" She—"Yes, if you are not too far gone."

Fashionable ladies are not fond of hard work, and yet they know what a toilet is to dress for dinner.

How many things there are to laugh at in this world to the girl who has pretty teeth and dimples.

When a man finds a button in his salad he will hardly take the excuse that it is part of the dressing.

It is strange to see a man buttoning his coat up to his chin on a cold day, when the garment is a chinchilla.

Many people who claim to be wedded to their art seem to have been overtaken with divorce proceedings from the outset.

"Where are you going at this late hour?" asked the policeman. "To the lecture." He knew his wife was waiting for him.

Mrs. Langtry is said to have become fascinated by the handsome valet of an English Duke. Is she going to become a lily of the valet?

One-half of the world does not know how the other half lives, and it is just as well that it is so, for a great deal of scandal is thereby saved.

A Melbourne manager advertises for coryphees who "must not be over thirty years old." Let the Australian "ballet" reform proceed.

Briggs—"Tomkins is engaged to a widow, I hear." Briggs—"Yes; that's just like him. He is too lazy to do any of the courting."

She (facetiously)—"I suppose you call your horse Cupid because he's such a lover of a horse?" He—"Not exactly. You see he's blind."

Miss Tender—"How do you like your steak—rare?" Tony the Tramp—"No, mum; I don't like it that way, but that's as often as I get it."

Old Sol will soon in cloudless skies
Shine like a fiery ball,
And there will then be lots of flies
Upon us all.

Bobby—"Pa, what do they call a man who has two wives?" Pa—"A bigamist, Bobby." Bobby—"Pa, suppose he has more than two wives; what is he then?" Pa—"A fool!"

Mr. O'Rafferty—"An what did your brother think was the real cause of his death?" Truly, "Me brother never knew the real cause of his death, as no inquest was held on him."

Ah exclaimed Mrs. Bascom, as the fragrance of the Spring morning was borne to her nostrils through the open window, "how grateful is the odor of the earth to the oil factory nerves."

Silverstein (sarcastically) "Was it a matter of principle mit you that Leah should marry a Gentile?" Goldberger "Oh, no, he was not so far ahead of me as dot! It was only a question of indifference."

Angel Cake—
She looked with dismay at the result of her baking.

And remarked, with tears in her eyes,
"If this really is angel cake I have been making."

Then why in the world don't it rise?"

An improved phrase—

We doubtless arrive at the truth a deal quicker.

And speak in a language less dim.

If instead of remarking a man is in liquor
We said that the liquor is in him.

A gentleman went to keep a written appointment with a broker whom he did not know by sight. Seeing a forlorn-looking gentleman seated in the office, he said "I beg pardon, sir, are you the broker?" To which the other promptly replied "No, sir, I'm the feller that got broke!"

Banting (to policeman)—"I understand you secured the discharge of Officer O'Brien."

for sleeping on duty. That was right.
Officer Mulcahey—"Yes, sir. Yes, see, me an O'Brien had a nice corner to go to shlap in every night. But O'Brien snored that loud. Oh cudden shlap at all, so I reported him."

Clara—"I thought you had decided that everything was over between you and Harry, and yet you've been sitting there for over an hour thinking of him." Naud (dejectedly) "Well, I can't make up my mind whether it would be better to sue him for breach of promise or to make up with him, marry him and then sue for divorce and alimony."

PANNIKES.—Warm minced meat or poultry in a cream sauce and pile in the center of a platter. Break each egg in a hot, buttered cup, and bake until the egg is firm; turn them out and arrange them around the meat.

A Potato Duel
A story of a church, in a militant aspect, on I believe that the clergymen conf. pulpit within genera as when they in veigh against the sins of poor but in Ireland apparently their rep. more definite form. At all events opened very recently in Carlow that a gr. yod member of a certain declining to accept his part that he was not p. ners rather p. day serm. combat.
