THE MYSTERIOUS AFFAIR near Brantford, to which we aluded in our last, appears, on investigation, in no way mysterious whatever. We have seen the testimony of three or four of the the Indian female, who is charged with the crime, by two men, who were witnesses, we regret to say, to the transaction, near Brantford. One of the Indian women commenced, while in a waggon with the men above alluded to, to pull or tear the hair of her wretched companion. Finally one of them was removed from the validation of the statement of th from the vehicle by the men, but afterwards, it appears, came riolently in the thigh, under circumstances not fit for newspa-per publication. Inflammation set in, supposed to be accelera-ted by cold, and from which deceased came to her death. It is not easy for a Coroner to procure facts in cases such as this— they are in the coroner to procure facts in cases such as this they are in too many instances studiously kept from his knowledge, as well as the death itself. DEATH BY DROWNING OF CAPTAIN PIPON.—We regret to announce that Captain Pipon, of the Royal Engineers, employed in company with Lieut. Henderson of the same corps in trasing the line of the contemplated Railroad from Halifax to Quebec, and the boundary line in dispute between Canada and New Brunswick, was drowned a few days ago in the river Restigouche, in the immediate neighbourhood of which he was Restigouche, in the immediate neighbourhood of which be was employed with his party when we last heard of him. We Stormont,—3rd Bat.,—to be Lieutenant Col.—Alexander Mcbare not yet heard any details of this sad accident, but on enquiry at the Ebgineer Office, we have been assured of the truth.

Covered.—On that the body of Captain Pipon has been reof the melancholy occurrence by which the British service has lost one of its most able officers:— The particulars of the distressing accident are given in the following extract from an officer of the Royal Engineers, who was on the spot immediately after it occurred; dated Fredricton out. ton, 9th Nov., 1846.

"It was in the attempt to rescue a fellow-creature that it pleased God his own life, so valuable to his friends and the service, should be sacrificed. He left the mouth of the Kedgewick River on the 26th October, in a canoe, with a man whom he had brought from the River St. John, and a boy, son of one of the of the settlers on the Restigouche, intending to proceed down the river (Restigouche,) as far as Campbelton and from thence by Dalhousie and Bathurst to Fredrickton. They had descended the river in safety till within twelve miles of Campbelton, when in descending a rapid called the Suctions, about 12 o'clock on Wedensday the 28th, the canne was overset. The boy clung to the clung to the bow and Captain Pipon to the stern. The man struck out for the shore. As soon as Captain Pipon saw bin swimming to the shore he left go his hold of the canoe, and atruck out after him and reached the shore in safety. He took a captain of the shore in safety. took a couple of steps, being then about breast high, when a sudden thought seemed to strike him. He turned towards the canoe which was hein.

He found, however, that he could not gain upon it, probably from the strength of the water, and the weight, of his clothes and he water was inclothes, and he turned to regain the shore. The water was in-tensely cold, and the were all chilled from sitting so long in the canoe, and he must have been seized with the cramp, for he had carcely turned towards the shore before he gave up swimming, his hands moved quickly above his head, and the dark waters wept him down; and although Farrell (the man he had with his efforts to save or reach him were fruitless, and he sunk to ne more to this life. The body was not recovered until it dad been upwards of three bonrs in the water, when it was and nearly three quarters of a mile below the place where the ident occurred, and then life had been long extinct. A Co-or's Inquest was held the following day, and a verdict of "Accidental Death" returned. His remains were conveyed to this place, and interred yesy, with military honours, followed by the Lieut. Governor, the officers of the garrison, and most of the leading and respectable inhabits. From all and every one his sad and untimely fate draws pression of heartfalt sorrow and regret, that one so gifted and loved should have been thus suddenly cut off." TESTIMONIAL.—PRESENTATION OF A SNUFF BOX TO T.

CANADA AND ITS DAIRY CAPABILITIES.—In the Albion of 26th September, we expressed our belief that a great and profitable branch of business could be opened between Canada and the mother of business could be opened between Canada and the mother are prontable branch of business could be opened between Canada and the mother country, by calling into action the Dairy capabilities of the country, and manufacturing large quantities of butter and cheese for the British markets. We thought, and so butter and cheese for the British markets. butter and cheese for the British markets. We thought, and so expressed ourselves, that the vast tracts of rich land everywher abunding ing; the comparatively cool climate of Canada—so favoutable for making those articles in perfection; the shortness of the passage to Great Britain, and the entire northern latitudes of the maximum to the control of paramount considof the voyage, were circumstances of paramount considthe article has been copied, has not been unfavourably received by our editorial brethren: but we have been reminded that Canada is no less favourably situated for the production of beef hada is no less favourably situated for the production of beef and pork. This is true to a certain extent, for the advantages of extensive tracts of rich land, cool climate, and a short and anothern voyage, are available in either case. In the articles of beef and many the cool of this union would In the possess an advantage in the shortness of the winter.—

In the rich pastures of Kentucky, for instance, cattle can rein the open fields for the greater portion of the year; as, in Canada, they must be housed, and foddered for four when a large number of steers and growing cattle are to be pro-So, too, in the matter of pork, the rich lands and mers of the west, are so favourable for raising Indian n, and the hog can seek his own living in the woods so early in the spring and so late in the fall, that pork would seem to be ndigenous in those countries. The article besides, as well as beef, when properly put up, does not suffer by passing through the tropical latitudes on its way to Europe, as butter and chest beef and pork can and will be prepared for the British markets in Canada, that butter and cheese will, nevertheless, afford the profit to the farmer. The cow, by careful feeding and by ng kept warm—which is an essential point, will be yielding r milk daily, however long the winter may be. The esculent lots, too, which grow abundantly in the cool latitude of Ca-

are all importent for increasing the quantity of milk and the richness of its quality. In our former article we were guilty of one omission. We Omitted to state, that all the advantages which appertained to Canada in this matter, existed in other North American Provinces. In New Brunswick there is much rich and valuable and applicable to dairy purposes; so also in Prince Edward

Sizes, Howard and Huron. A later arrival informs us that Island; while the dyke lands of Nova Scotia are pre-eminent in the production of the finest grass and hay in the world.—
These dyke lands are very peculier in their nature and formation. They are tracts recovered from the sea by carrying out the disasters,—the storm being a most violent one. It appears that sixteen dead hodies were very larger to the sixteen dead hodies were very larger to the sixteen dead hodies were very larger to the finest meadow in existence—rich in quality and incomes the finest meadow in existence—rich in quality and in-exhaustible in fertility. Such land never requires manure, it may be moved for fifty years in succession without deteriora-

These tracts are not alluvial formations from the land, but deposits from the sea. The tides of the Bay of Fundy, on whose shores these lands chiefly exist, it is well known, ebb and flow to the extent of fifty and sixty feet; and the water so come of the witnesses taken at the inquisition, before Mr. Coroner Caton, on view of the body. The occurrence took place, as is usual, under the influence of liquor, given to deceased and another Indian female, who is charged with the crime, by two men, who were witnesses, we regret to say, to the transaction, near

In the vicinity of Cumberland, we have heard, thirty-thousand acres might be recovered for an outlay of an equal number of pounds country. On these lands dairies would indeed thrive.

When the railroad from Halifax to Quebec is completed— Informed by Mr. Elliot, a J. P., of the melancholy occurrence, he lost no time in baving the body exhumed, and on which a jury sat. Verdict—"Manslaughter." The person charged was never in custody, having fled as soon as the circumstance began to be seriously talked about. A warrant was issued for her apprehension, as soon as possible, which must plead, in our behalf for this meagre notice.—Hamilton Gazette.
