Marketing Profile

Courtney Berg Industries, a prominent leader in agricultural equipment manufacturing, was founded in 1976 in Linden, Alberta. The company has expanded to meet various needs within the agricultural industry but the application of its products extends beyond this area. Grain and gravel bodies are designed to meet the purchasers specifications and uses, along with hydraulic harsh hoists for lifting which enable the hauling of many different goods. Its hydra-dec bale handling system applies to many agricultural and commercial uses, and the company's well-stocked selection of replacement parts and various components fulfil the needs of many different sectors of industry.

The company's willingness to adapt its products to suit customers' needs attracts many buyers from other areas. The company's versatility in all areas of industry attracted consumers from many parts of Canada. Through dealerships the company has also expanded into Idaho, and Montana in the U.S. The company is interested in expanding into other foreign markets, particularly European countries. Although they have not established direct distribution in this area, they are certain that due to their adaptability to foreign standards, their products would be very well-suited to European needs.

Courtney Berg Industries offers its customers extensive after-sales service, quality products, and installation of its products on their premises by qualified staff.

Courtney Berg prides itself on offering a wide range of competitively-priced products, as well as being adaptable to meet the demands of various customers.
