MOUNTED HORSES OUTRAN BY BIRD

Feathered Creature Near San Diego Distances Two Army Officers.

In the barren mesas of the southwest, where reptiles and insects abound and birds are few, there is to be found one species of the feathered tribe that is famed for its powers as a sprinter. This is the road-runner, one of the cuckoo family, although it bears little resemblance to the cuckoo.

Dr. Charles C. Moody, a medical officer in the United States army, with a companion, had a race with one of these birds while crossing the plains, and he tells about it in a recent issue of Youth's Companion.

"Our line of march," he says, "was across the cactus and mesquite plain lying between San Diego and Imperial Valley. My companion and myself rode in advance of the column one day to select a camping site for that night, a matter of great importance in a country where water is scarce and often impure. The June sun beat down with tropic fervor. We had climbed a hill and were entering upon a level plain, when a rather large, dark-colored bird, much unlike a hen pheasant, came into the road in front of us. I recognized the bird as a road-runner.

"We put spurs to our mounts and closed up before the bird was aware. Instead of taking to the wings, he threw one glance over his shoulder, abandoned his indifferent air, dropped his body, pressed every feather of his body, lowered his head until it was parallel to the ground and then dashed forward as if he had suddenly thought of a urgent errand over in the next state. "Our horses strained every muscle, but could not gain an inch, while the bird ran with great ease. We held to our furious pace for several miles; the bird never thought of slipping off into the dense underbrush; he clearly regarded the road as a desirable race course and as competitors to be outdistanced. We were lucky to reach the watercourse before he showed signs of fatigue and we pulled up.

"The bird, when he found himself no longer pursued, slackened his pace, elevated his tail and lolled along again, picking up insects and watching the over his shoulder as if he enjoyed our discomfort. He kept along the road for miles until we reached the watercourse and halted to look into the water supply. When we lost sight of him."

CONDUCTED BY MRS EDMUND PHILLIPS

Mrs. Sam Hughes and Miss Hughes have returned to Paris, after being in London to see the Hon. Sam Hughes before his return to Canada. During their stay in London they had the honor of being invited to luncheon at Clarence House by T. R. H. the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, on the eve of the wedding of Prince Arthur to the Duchess of Fife, and attended in the evening the reception at St. James' Palace, given by Their Majesties the King and Queen, for the bride and bridegroom.

The president of the Academy of Medicine, 13 Queen's Park, and Mrs. Herbert Hamilton, are giving an at home from 4 to 6 o'clock this afternoon to meet Count Sir Rickman Godlee, Bart., and Lady Godlee.

Mrs. Hagarty, 8 Chestnut Park, has issued invitations to an afternoon tea, on Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Mrs. Edgar Jarvis, 114 Farnham street, Park, is giving a tea for her granddaughter.

Mrs. Peuchen was the hostess yesterday of a large tea for her daughter Jessie, who made her debut and was looking very pretty in the most lovely bouquet and bouquet of pink roses, a large table near her in the drawing room, filled with the most lovely flowers, the drawing room and picture gallery also fragrant with many beautiful roses. Mrs. Peuchen wore a gown of black brocade with chiffon bolero over white lace, a diamond star fastener, the low neck and a corsage of roses and orchids and lilies. Mrs. Miller, who assisted the hostess in the drawing room, wore king's blue satin with plumet, hat to match. The table was centred with a very handsome silver centerpiece and candelabras with pink shades and roses. The girls assisting were: Miss Maude MacLachlan, Miss Marjorie Morris, Miss Anita Ridout, Miss Kathleen Jeffrey, Miss Edith MacLachlan, Miss Isabelle Reid. An orchestra played during the afternoon, under the direction of Mr. Barrow, late of the Scots Guard, looking after the bandmaster of the Queen's Own Regiment.

Mrs. James O'Neill received yesterday afternoon, when she was wearing a very beautiful gown of black satin, with bodice and train of black with a raised pattern on it of rose-colored tulle, a corsage bouquet of orchids and lilies, and diamond ornaments. She received for the first time since her marriage, looked lovely in gold satin with tulle and bodice of lace, a wide grille of Dresden satin and velvet and amber necklace, and carried an armful of Richmond roses. Miss O'Neill, who is coming out later on this year, wore white satin and lace with a pink coral necklace and a sheaf of beauty and Richmond roses. Another pretty debutante who received with Mrs. O'Neill, was Miss Crawford, in coral satin and drawing. The room was decorated with roses and chrysanthemums, and Mrs. Michael Healy assisted the hostess, looking very handsome in rose with a lace coat and white plumet hat and diamond ornaments. The polished testable in the dining room was centred with Irish lace and a magnificent cut glass and silver candelabra and vases of pink roses. Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. George Smith, who are coming out later on this year, wore white satin and lace with a pink coral necklace and a sheaf of beauty and Richmond roses. The room was decorated with roses and chrysanthemums, and Mrs. Michael Healy assisted the hostess, looking very handsome in rose with a lace coat and white plumet hat and diamond ornaments. The polished testable in the dining room was centred with Irish lace and a magnificent cut glass and silver candelabra and vases of pink roses. Mrs. Edwards and Mrs. George Smith, who are coming out later on this year, wore white satin and lace with a pink coral necklace and a sheaf of beauty and Richmond roses. Another pretty debutante who received with Mrs. O'Neill, was Miss Crawford, in coral satin and drawing.
