

- Colomb, Sir John, Supports imperial federation, viii, 43; On expansion of the British Empire, viii, 57; On imperial federation, viii, 379, 393-397; Protagonist of naval reformers, viii, 385.
- Commerce, Freedom gained by United States, through Independence, xv, 42; England at the beginning of the century occupies pre-eminent position, xv, 47; Modern growth of English commerce, xv, 49; Commerce between England and the United States, xv, 50; United States enters sphere of international commerce, xv, 55; French commerce suffers by the Revolution, xv, 59; British trade with British America, xv, 69; Sugar trade with the West Indies, xv, 73; Trade with the East Indies, xv, 76; Australian trade, xv, 85; Effect of the Continental wars up to 1815 on commercial progress, xv, 87; Napoleon attempts to cripple British trade, xv, 94; England suffers commercial loss, xv, 101; American Act of Embargo, v, 54; xv, 101; xx, 104; Commercial policy of France in the earlier part of the century, xv, 113; Commercial policy of Germany and Russia, xv, 118-124; Commercial policy of the United States, xv, 125-131; Progress of American commerce in early part of the century, xv, 132-144; England under a new commercial policy, xv, 145-156; The English Corn Laws, xv, 157-165; Their repeal, xv, 166-171; English commercial policy and trade, xv, 172-178.
- Confederation of Canada, Contributions of the great leaders to it, ix, 391; England favors it, ix, 381; First practical steps towards it, ix, 379; Motives for opposition to it, ix, 385; Motives for the desire for it, ix, 378, 379; Steps leading to it, ix, 375; Simplifies the relation of Canada with the Empire, ix, 469; The child of deadlock, ix, 390; Various opponents of it, ix, 385; Final meeting of the delegates, ix, 391; Antagonized in the Maritime Provinces by Joseph Howe, ix, 393; Proposal of the Confederation in the Maritime Provinces, ix, 390; Marks the advent of greater prosperity, ix, 399.
- Confucius, Doctrine of, In Japan, iv, 207; in China, iv, 301, 302; His character, iv, 312.
- Conkling, Roscoe, New York senator, supports Grant for the presidency in 1880, v, 362; xxi, 247, 299; Takes the stump for Garfield, v, 364; In the field for the Republican nomination for the presidency in 1876, xxi, 276; Protests against appointment made by President Garfield, xxi, 313.
- Conolly, Lieut., Journeys through Persia and Afghanistan to Northern India, xiv, 385; Travels to Bokhara, 1842-43, xiv, 387.
- Constable, John, Great painter, born in 1776, xxii, 19, 21; His first picture accepted, xxii, 19; Admitted a student of the Royal Academy, xxii, 22; Constable and the famous academical "brown tree," xxii, 23; Benjamin West's memorable words to Constable, xxii, 24; Constable at the Royal Academy, xxii, 25; Leaves London to become a true landscapist, xxii, 27; In his native Suffolk, xxii, 27; Thuse he learned from, xxii, 28; Constable's latter years, xxii, 30; Not the only immediate link between British and French art early in this century, xxii, 34.
- Convicts, Transportation of, First sent to New South Wales in 1787, xi, 12; Arrive at Botany Bay, xi, 12; xv, 66; Settlement formed at Sorrento in Victoria in 1803, xi, 122; Convict settlement in Port Phillip region leaves, xi, 122; Transportation of convicts to Western Australia reaches large proportions in 1817, xi, 315; Preparations made to establish penal settlement at Moreton Bay in 1824, xi, 167; xxiii, 410; Van Diemen's Land ruled by escaped convicts, xi, 226; New South Wales settlers form league to bring about cessation of transportation of convicts, xi, 31; System of assigning convicts as servants to New South Wales settlers ceases in 1838, xi, 31, 342; Transportation of convicts to New South Wales abolished in 1840, viii, 93; xi, 31, 233; Van Diemen's Land protests against importation of convicts in 1848, xi, 239; Attempt made to revive transportation of convicts to New South Wales, xi, 31; Transportation to New South Wales finally abolished in 1849, xi, 34; First shipment of convicts arrives in Western Australia in 1850, xi, 260; Official declaration of cessation of transportation of convicts heard in Van Diemen's Land in 1853, xi, 240; viii, 93; Sending of convict labor to Western Australia discontinued, viii, 87; Transportation of convicts to South Africa given up in 1785, xi, 9; In 1848, Earl Grey promises not to send convicts to Cape Colony unless desired, x, 290; In 1849 Imperial authorities attempt to convert Cape Colony into a penal settlement, x, 289.
- Cook, Captain James, In 1767 leads scientific expedition to Tahiti, xiv, 18; Surveys coast of Australia, xiv, 438; Surveys coast of New Zealand, xiv,