Fourteen Fake Ballots for Holmes in the Box for One Division on Different Paper From the Government Supply-Will Mr. Holmes Resign as Suggested?

Ottawa, July 20.-(Special.)-The upper | very much of the stormy days of the Tarte McGreevy investigation in 1891. The Pri-vate Bills Committee room, in which the Committee on Privileges and Elections was holding its meeting, was crowded almost to suffocation, while the corridor was well alled with the fifty odd witnesses who have been summoned, and all of whom are excluded from the committee room. About one-half of them walked or sat about the corridor, while the other half took possession of room 46 and amused themselves playing cards, smoking and chatting. There was a constant stream of members and strangers going in and out of the committee room and the scene was the most animated witnessed in the Parliament bui'dings for many years.

the 14 disputed ballots was a broken line, and by a curious coincidence his initials were on the back of this little white space, while on all the other ballot papers his initials were not in that same position.

Cummings Could Not Explain. Mr. Cummings was closely pressed by Mr. Powell to account for these remarkable discrepancies, these remarkable discrepancies, but averred that he could make no explanation at all. In other words Mr. Powell established from the evidence of the deputy returning officer that these 14 ballots which were returned by him to the deputy returning officer and transmitted to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery and produced before the committee were not the same as the words of the same as the words and produced before the committee were not the same as the words at the could not account for it.

Some of Mr. Cummings the collected that the collected the collected that the chancery and produced before the committee were not the same as the unused ballots he received from the returning officer, nor were they the same as the other ballots which were polled and craning of necks as this evidence came out and the subsequent examination which proved conclusively that these 14 were printed on different paper.

A Fake Objection.

The corroborative Testimony.

The significance of the evidence adduced this morning will be more clearly seen when it is remembered that Mr. McManus one of the scrutineers who was examined resterday, swore positively that when Mr. Cummings received a ballot back from a voter after it was marked he (Cummings) asked. The witness answered that he did not in the he counterfoil and, instead of throwing it on the floor, as was usual, put lin his pocket. McManus also swore that when he withdrew his hand from his pocket Cummings used both hands in folding the ballot paper before depositing it in the box. Cummings yesterday, and again this morning so, except that they would litter the already pretty well littered with cigar freely spat on.

Taking all these circumstances," Mr. Powell, "Could you tell that the voter handed you back the same ballot as you gave him?" "Only by the initials."

Even Davies Quit.

It was very noticeable this morning that whereas yesterday Mr. Russell of Hallfax, Sir Louis Davies and other Liberals were with the examination, there was scarcely the elightest effort to day to baulk the enterprise of the slightest effort to-day to baulk the enterprise of the facts.

How Cummings Wilted.

It was also very noticeable that whereas yesterday, and Mr. Powell was allowed a very late abalo to bring out the facts.

A Fake Objection.

The first sign of returning consciousness from this shock to their nerves were protests from Liberal members that Mr. Cum mings was "not an expert on paper." Not amount of questioning could get the with ness to account for this strange state of affairs.

"I would not swear," replied the witness.
"Aren't you satisfied that not one of these is a ballot given by you to the voter?"

Mr. Borden then showed the witness a paper, authorizing Dancy to act as agent for Holmes. This paper was in the sealed envelope sent to the returning officer from the polling booth after the close of the polling booth after the close of the polling booth after the close of the poll. Mr. Cummings examined the paper carefully and then declared he had never seen it before. He was unable to give any explanation as to how it got in the envelope. He was quite positive that Mc-Manus, the Conservative scrwineer, didn't protest against the presence of Dancy while the ballots were being counted, aithough he did protest earlier in the afternoon. This Mr. Dancy is the gentleman to whose presence at the summing up or the ballots after the poli closed the Conservative scrutineer has sworn he objected.

Owen Sound, Ont., July 20.—Fire broke out about 10 o'clock last night in the C.P. R. steamer Athabasca, which was sied up at her dock. An explosion of some combustibles took place, after which the fire was discovered. An effort was made to subdue the flames by steam, to save the cargo. The hold had to be eventually flooded with water. The loss will be conficiently as there was a large quantity of freight damaged.
