Thompson & Heron, 16 West King-street, Toronto, report the following fluctuations on the New York Exchange to-day: On Wall Street.

Messrs Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. wired I. J. Dixon at the close of the market today:

The money situation was the dominating influence in the stock market today, and the higher rates for money weakened prices all around. The exchange market was lower as a consequence of the strength of the money market, but that did not prevent the export of gold which had been engaged yesterday. In addition to the export movement, more is still going to the Interior in excess, of the funds released by the bond purchases. The anticipation of the January interests by the government will add about interests by the government will add about interest to steady it when other stocks were moved independently of the general market, there appearing to be a sufficient short interest to steady it when other stocks were moved independently of the general market, there appearing to be a sufficient short interest to steady it when other stocks were weak. The price of money will probably rotation the course of stocks for the rest of the week. It is impossible to forecast the bank statement. The banks have lost heads of what the statement will be will be found in the call money rate. London of what the statement will be will be found in the call money rate. London of what the statement will be will be found in the call money rate. London of what the statement will be will be fond in the call money rate. London bought stocks again.
