Allie Jay, the mare that Ben Kennedy is preparing for the M. & M. Stake at Detroit, is doubtless in the most advanced form of any of the various trotters eligible to that event, with the possible exception of Jack Curry's mare. Brilliant Girl. A few days ago Kennedy drove Allie Jay a mile in 2:12 3-4, and as evidence that the effort did not injure her, he drove her in 2:13 1-4 a couple of days later. The Cleveland mare occupies a peculiar position among the M. & M. entries, for this is the third time she has been pointed for that event, going wrong on the other two occasions. It really looks now as though she may get to a start in the big purse this year. Brilliant Girl, Jack Curry's candidate for the Detroit classic, worked a mile in 2:15 the other day, and those who have seen her step since she got to Cleveland say that it will take a 2:09 trotter to beat her if she continues to train
