A DEAD FAILURE

OMINOUS RUMORS

The Vancouver World of July 19th says:
"The trouble in China with her rebellious population does not improve, according to advices brought on the steamer Tartar. This trouble is significantly found among the foreign-drilled troops. Further apparent and alarming features are the allegations that the Japanese officers, who are training the soldiers, are instigating dissatistaction and making the trouble. The Dowager Empress' reign is all that preserves peace at the present time, the rebels waiting until the time of her death for the up rising."

A DEAD FAILURE

"Yes, Samuel has been down to the Exhibition at Jamestown and got back again," said the old Maryland lady when asked apabed about her husband's visit.

"And was he disappointed?" was asked.

"He just come home a-swearing, and a more disappointed man I never saw. He has been home five days now, and, he's had the nightmare every night. He's almost a mind to write to the papers about it."

"In what respects was he disappointed?"

"Well, the first day he looked all around for the elephanis. Not one of the critters was to be found. When he finally asked a man where they were he was told they'd all died of the whooping cough.

"Then he went looking for the lions and tigers. Not a critter of the sort there, Samuel wanted his meney back, but they told him he was a squealer and didn't love his country.

"You know how fond Samuel is of hyenas. He just dotes on 'em. He spent one whole day looking for the hyena cage, and had some raw beef to feed 'em on, but not a crit-

THE OPTIMIST

- Let beauty be a blazing sun; And truth a candlefiame, My soul shall worship them as one, And know their light the same.
- Let hope be mocking rainbow high, Or will o'wisp less bright. My soul shall follow with rapt eye The vision of delight.
- Let love be but a joyous play,
 Or grief that smarts and smarts.
 My soul shall reverence aye and aye
 The god of burning hearts.

This afternoon and evening will be the last chance to see the present bill at the Happy Half Hour, and all those who have not yet done so should see the performance today. The remarkable clearness and tendings of the picture of the performance today. steadiness of the pictures is commented upon by everyone. Many inquiries are be-ing made as to the name of the lady singer whose sweet voice is occasioning many favorable remarks. Those who want to enjoy a pleasing en-tertainment should not fail to visit the Happy Half Hour.

The second performance of Dora Thorne by Miss Sadie Calhoun and her company, was given in the Opera House last evening and was much enjoyed. Miss Calhoun again proved herself an actress of unusual ability, and received excellent support from the company in general. Curtain calls were numerous, and the songs given by Miss Calhoun were received with well merited applause.

Dora Thorne will be repeated at the matinee this afternoon, and My Dixie Girl, which scored a hit on Thursday, will be the closing offering of the engagement in the evening.
