

JUDGE AND COUNSEL TO INSPECT SITE OF LITIGATION OVER POLES

Attorney General is Made Party to Lancaster Case.

The injunction case of the Highway Board of the Parish of Lancaster vs. The City of St. John, in which the Highway Board is asking for the city restrained from erecting poles on the highway and where they have been erected to have them removed, was taken up this morning before Mr. Justice White in chambers. W. A. Ross appeared for the Highway Board and Hon. J. B. Baxter, K. C., city solicitor, for the city.

After affidavits had been filed by both sides it was agreed on suggestion of Hon. Mr. Baxter and concurred in by Mr. Ross that His Honor should decide the case on the affidavits, personal inspection of the area and oral evidence if His Honor decided that it was necessary without pleadings by counsel and 2:30 this afternoon was set as the time at which the judge and counsel would look over the area.

Before the case was taken up, Hon. Mr. Baxter said he would not raise any objection to the city being made the defendant in the case, although the complaint had not been done by the city but by the Civic Power Commission. In so far as the Attorney-General being a party to the case, he would not ask that this be done if the case was confined to physical interference with the property under the care of the Highway Board but if the defendant to the public was set up he would ask that he be made a party.

He then read an affidavit of Mayor G. Fred Fisher setting out that he had been signing an agreement with the defendant, that before the poles were placed, the Highway Board would be consulted. He also read one from Barry Wilson denying charges of danger from the construction of the pole line in the location chosen.

Mr. Ross submitted an affidavit from G. G. Murdoch contradicting that of Mr. Wilson in regard to the holding up of the retaining wall by the poles of the New Brunswick Power Co. and in contending that three of them were in direct contact with the retaining wall, Attorney-General a Party.

In connection with the joining of the Attorney-General as a party to the suit, His Honor ruled that this must be done and Mr. Ross was allowed to amend his application by making the Attorney-General a party, consent having been given by Hon. Mr. Bryan.

Hon. Mr. Baxter gave notice that it was his intention, if a bill was filed against the plaintiff, to ask for costs as he considered this merely a piece of vexatious litigation.

OUT! Over Footlights For Hug Fell Sorel

CECILE SOREL

Paris.—Who hugged Cecile Sorel? That may not mean much in your young life, but it's the question that is agitating all Paris.

She was undoubtedly embraced. In fact, she fell for it. Literally, fell for it. Mademoiselle Sorel happens to be the most popular actress in all France. Also the most talented.

The other night she was playing the main part in Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Comedie Francaise. She played it so earnestly that she fell overboard. Yep, right into the arms of a man.

Great excitement! Great spitting of "Volauz!" Then when it was learned that she was not injured, all the audience burst into laughing and applause.

Daniel LeBeuge, a fat boulevard poet, says that Sorel fell into his lap. He's going to write a poem about the falling star who rose again.

But Sorel herself says an aged and well-known Parisian magistrate picked her up, took her in his arms, and wouldn't let go until she chided him gently.

All Paris is trying to guess who the lucky man is.

IN! Not Wanting It, Man Is Made President

London.—In America men of political prominence fight hard to be nominated for president and then ten times harder to be elected.

But Portugal recently elected a president in spite of himself—Senhor Teixeira Gomes.

"I don't want to be president," said Gomes.

"That's exactly why we want you," said one of his backers in the Portuguese Congress which does the electing. "We can get lots of fellows who are anxious to be president."

"But I have been away from Portugal for so long that I am not a very good party man."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

(Boston Herald.) There can be no mistaking the widespread and enthusiastic response which the country is making to Mr. Coolidge's start in the presidential office. He is just the type that the nation now was looking for. It has had a good many talkers; he is a quiet man. Roosevelt was a great talker. Taft was easy-going and voluble, traveled a good deal and expressed his views in rather easy terms. Then came Wilson; severely intellectual, he was constantly preaching and instructing. Mr. Harding, the soul of good nature, opened his heart to a considerable line of propagandists and cause advocates. Mr. Coolidge is keeping still. It is undeniably advantageous.

Another element of consequence is that of mystery. He keeps the country and its people guessing. He does not tell them in advance of his doing something that he purposes or hopes to do. They have to consider what they would do if they were in his place, and a great many times they make the right guess; and then when he actually does about what they thought he was going to do, they think he is a great man. In fact, the element of mystery has been a source of undoubted strength in the career of more than one of our great Presidents.

HUNDREDS ATTEND DOUBLE FUNERAL

Join Family in Mourning Death of James and Matilda McAfee

Hundreds of relatives, friends and citizens paid a last tribute of respect to James McAfee and his sister, Miss Matilda McAfee, victims of the fatality at Bayard's Crossing on Thursday morning, when an automobile in which they were proceeding to Fredericton, was struck by C. P. R. train. They were laid to rest in the family plot in Fernhill this afternoon.

Surrounded by beautiful flowers, the two coffins remained side by side in the drawing-room of the family home, the Milford, has been taken to Gregory's blocks to have her propeller shaft and rudder installed after which she will be taken to Indiantown to have the boiler placed in position.

The services this afternoon were simple, solemn and impressive. Rev. Hugh Miller, pastor of St. David's Presbyterian Church, read the funeral service. St. David's choir sang "Sleep With Jesus" and "There is No Night in Heaven." At the conclusion of the service, the coffins, now covered with flowers, were raised by loving hands and borne to the two hearse. It required two automobiles to convey the floral tributes to the cemetery. Burial was in the family plot in Fernhill. The funeral cortège was one of the longest witnessed there for a long time.

Among the floral offerings were a wreath from the McAfee family, a wreath from the Gibson family, a piece from H. M. Hopper, Miss Olive Lamb, Mrs. E. Higgins, Miss Tracy, Mrs. J. K. Gillis, Miss Blacklock, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. LeB. Wilson, and family, staff of A. K. Campbell, Harry and Orlin Mason, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Mason, the Misses J. J. Spry, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bonnell, A. H. Campbell, Mrs. Woods and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. George Blacklock, Miss M. Baird, Mrs. Henry Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. George Anthony, Mr. and Mrs. John Casack, and many others.

PIPE SMOKING ALL THE RAGE IN THE BEST CIRCLES

Formerly Taboo, Now Preferred by Many Men and Women. "There are fashions in smoking as in everything else, and just now pipe smoking is the rage. Not so long ago it was regarded as a thing of the past. A cigar was the aristocrat among smokes. A good cigarette ranked next, and a pipe habit was looked upon as a thing of the streets or in public places, nor at formal entertainments, such as dinners, parties, or "Dinner Out" in the "Evening Daily News."

"No pipes permitted" may be seen at some hotels and restaurants, while a few among the old established stags still bar them in the smoking rooms. When women took to smoking, pipes were for a long time taboo in drawing-rooms. I regard now, with royal and Prime Ministerial and Cabinet example, the pipe is predominant almost everywhere. In fact, we have had it in our ears for years that pipes are the healthiest form of smoking. That ought to settle it, I suppose, but we are reasonable creatures. It is not so.

"We like what we like, irrespective of it being good for us. Most men and enthusiastic men who are pipe proud. They will not admit that there is merit in any other kind of smoke. Personally I am all for catholically. I should hate to be so addicted to any pipe that I could find no joy in a choice Havana or a perfect cigarette. "A pipe is so satisfying," assert its votaries.

"So, say I, is a fine cigar. But one does not always want to be satisfied. There is a subtle pleasure in the tantalization and titillation of the cigarette. I regard the pipe as the best morning smoke and the best working smoke. There is nothing quite so good as a water-breaking pipe, the first smoke of the day, and if you want to smoke at office or at desk it is better than a cigarette. The smoke does not get into your eyes and you have not to get into your mouth what you are smoking. It constantly from your mouth.

"But it must be the right pipe for you individually. I am persuaded that there is somewhere in the world experts for every man the one and only right woman, so it is with pipes. The perfect pipe for you might be quite wrong for me.

"Fortunately one can change a pipe more easily than one can a wife. Most men have a perfect heaven of them, and while they would not love any of them, there is generally one favorite—tried and true—which grows better and sweeter with age. And often it is not the best-looking, most elaborate, nor most costly that proves the best. I have experimented with most kinds of pipes from penny 'days' (as they were in my young days) to expensive hygienic contrivances which true smokers regard with contempt."

Comes From Hudson Bay To Get Specs And Store Teeth

New Bedford, Sept. 22.—"Specs" and false teeth have brought Capt. George Cleveland down from the far north for the first time in 11 years. Strong of wind and limb, but needing glasses and repairs to his store teeth, the skipper stopped off here before going to his home in Martha's Vineyard. Thirty-one years ago he went aboard the Hudson Bay schooner A. I. Gifford at this port and sailed to establish a trading station at Repulse bay, 420 miles north of Chesterfield Inlet port. His station was later sold to Hudson's Bay Company.

He has been granted a year's leave of absence, and has been since July 4 getting home. Until his arrival in civilization he had not seen a white woman for 11 years. His nearest neighbor up there is 420 miles away.

"On this side I have heard much about how duties are undermining the British workmen. True, there is a certain idle class in England, because English factories are not running full-time, but the workers who are at work, appear to be working quite diligently. On all my trip I was struck by the industriousness of the Englishmen who are working in the United States. In fact, they are working harder than American farmers have for the last 60 years. As a result the devastated area is from 60 per cent to 70 per cent restored, and France has excellent crops. Tearing up of the fields has brought much chalk and limestone that have no doubt reduced the fertility of the soil considerably.

"Of all the countries that I visited, Holland seems to be feeling the after-effects of the war most keenly. The reaction in Holland was very prosperous and made much money during the war. Now Holland is getting back to normal, and the Hollanders are inclined to think that they are having hard times. Another thing that impressed me much was the few children I saw in France, the increasing number as I reached the northern part of Belgium, where the Flemish become more important, and the swarms of children in Holland.
