Judges Should Not Act As Arbitrators

Senator Belcourt Makes Strong
Protest On Practice.

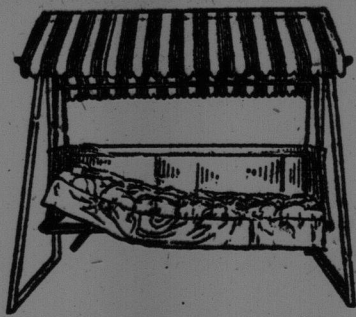

In the Senate at Ottawa leading lawyers have taken strong objection to the judiciary acting on arbitration boards. Hon. W. B. Ross said what he objected to was double pay for single work. Senator Belcourt said:

"I object to judges sitting on commissions whether with or without pay. I do not think they have any business to sit on commissions. They are appointed for the purpose of presiding over courts and dispensing justice in their community. That is their proper function, and every time they go outside their sphere they are causing a serious detriment to the administration of justice. I have not yet heard of any commission presided over by a judge against which strong, sometimes very strong, accusations have not been made. They have been and are being made against every commission. They are very likely wholly untrue, but some of the mud sticks, and who is it that suffers? It is the judiciary every time. For my part I think we ought to prevent that if possible. If there is anything upon which the future of this and every other country depends, it is a due and proper respect for the judiciary. If that is destroyed or lost nearly everything else is lost. I have frequently expressed my opposition to judges acting on commissions, and I may be allowed to repeat what I have so often said.

"Within the past 10 years we have seen judges, some holding the highest positions in a province, come down to Ottawa and lobby in order to obtain appointment as referees or arbitrators. What could be more injurious to the judiciary than that judges should be allowed to come here, and like ordinary office seekers, lobby or beg for appointment on a commission? I am not inventing anything. This fact is known—known in one case at least. Surely we have to stop that. Why not confine the judges to their natural functions, that of administering justice, and keep them out of quarrels, for commissions are generally the result of the object of a political quarrel. I cannot speak too strongly because I feel very strongly on this subject. It seems to me that we are making a very grave and serious mistake every time we allow a judge to go out and do something that is not strictly within his function."

Senator Gordon drew attention to the acceptance by two Ontario High Court Judges of $20,000 as remuneration after the law prohibiting this had gone into effect, and asked that an ex-

An Ideal Breakfast for a Summer Day

STRAWBERRIES—crimson and luscious—a jug of cream, and a generous bowl of that delicious, whole grain miracle, Puffed Wheat—the perfect breakfast for summer days. No trouble to prepare! No waste of food! Even people to whom breakfast makes little appeal are enticed by this light, appetizing repast.

Puffed Wheat is the whole grain in its most delicate and easily digested form. Through steam explosion, the grains are puffed to 8 times their normal size. The intensive cooking adds a delightful nutlike flavor that no one can resist.

PUFFED RICE
like Puffed Wheat, is the whole grain made more digestible and appetizing. Every cell of the grain is broken by the steam explosion which puffs the kernels to eight times their normal size.

Children welcome these nourishing puffed dainties at any hour of the day. Served with milk they provide perfectly balanced nutrition, because they supply the food elements that are lacking in milk. As an addition to ice cream they are delicious.

ALL EUROPE MATCHES COLORS AS YOUNG FLOCK TO STREET SHOWERS

Vivid Shawls From Prague and Green Skirts From Ireland
Fashioned by Mothers of New York's Foreign-Born Into Bathing Suits Unknown to Beaches.

(New York Tribune.)
Self-constituted civic order censors, whose conventional inhibitions led them to protest last summer against semi-nude bathing by children using fire department street showers, are credited with responsibility for more new styles in curb bathing attire this season than to be observed on all the world's famous beaches, from Deauville to Coney Island.

Streets in which showers were operated last night for the first time this season swarmed with children clad gaily in home-made suits of odd designs and innumerable colors, fashioned lovingly by patient stylists from every corner of Europe—the mothers of New York city's foreign-born.

Making bathing clothes for the kids, the old folks say, has been one of the winter tasks of women in all the foreign settlements. The main idea, it seems, has been to so equip their young ones to shame even the gaudy-winged Balkan butterfly. Around Seventy-first street and Third Avenue, for example, in little Czechoslovakia, scores of children are wearing shawls made from print woolen shawls their mothers wore in Prague—fabrics of amazingly intricate design and coloring indescribably vivid, wherein Bohemia's inimitable pinks predominate.

Italians in Mott and Mulberry streets have entered into the spirit of what seems a city-wide shower bath fashion show. An attractive little Italian girl appeared in the Mulberry street section last night wearing trousers and blouse of grosgrain silk, ablaze with orange, blue, red and green. An old woman relative of this youngster boasted that she wore the shawl from which this creation emerged when she sold flowers on the Piazza di Spagna in Rome fifty years ago.

"Did she? American express came," she grinned. "Now de flower girl nota no more."

Reds for Russians.
Hungarians and Slavs displaying each of their own bright blues, greens and yellows are matched by Russian color schemes wherein vivid reds predominate. Balkan youngsters sport homespun linens and embroidered intricate designs of navy blue and scarlet, while Brooklyn's Bavarians revel in their native blue cotton, all spangled with the stiffest and reddest roses and the greenest green leaves ever seen anywhere in all the world.

Among Jane street's juniors Irish flourishes. One young enthusiast there, sporting himself in the cool stream, when asked where he got his gay green tights exploded delightedly: "Them's me's old petticoat. Ain't they the cat's eyeballs?"

CANDIDATE IS FOR LOCAL OPTION

Toronto, June 23.—Advocating a local option clause for the Ontario Temperance Act, so that dispensaries under Government control could be established in Toronto and that people who so desired be thereby enabled to get good liquor at reasonable prices without having to play the role of hypocrites and pretensions, J. A. McCausland, Conservative candidate for Seat A, in Southwest Toronto, made his position clear at a meeting held last night. He said he did not see why people in one district should be deprived of that for which they voted because those residing in other localities held different views.

In view of the fact that electricity is fast becoming the greatest factor in the operation of labor-saving household appliances, we have lately added to our household appliance department the famous

McCLARY ELECTRIC RANGES

These Ranges vary in size and price; however, every one of them is thoroughly up to date and absolutely reliable. It may surprise you to know that cooking by electricity costs you less than cooking by gas, coal or kerosene. It saves you the trouble of caring for ashes and does away with soot, coal dust and odor. Note: A plug connected to stove allows you the benefit of the N. B. Power Co. 3 1/2 cent rate for your iron, toaster, etc. This is also the rate for the operation of stoves.

We are anxious to have you see these ranges. Prices compare favorably with those of $70.00 to $170.00 coal ranges.
