

MATTER	METHOD
	words by means of which we express a thought is called a sentence. Now, tell me what a sentence is? A sentence is a group of words by means of which we express a thought. Having now reached the end of our teaching, it will be necessary to give the class practice upon the following exercises:— (a) Given a subject, supply a suitable predicate. (b) Given a predicate, supply a suitable subject. (c) Given a sentence, divide it into subject and predicate. B.B. Sketch (1) Reading matter is divided into paragraphs, and paragraphs are again divided into sentences. (2) The sentence consists of two parts—the name of the object thought about, and what was thought about the object. (3) The two parts of the sentence are called the subject and the predicate. (4) The subject is that part of the sentence which names the object thought about. (5) The predicate is that part of the sentence which tells what is thought of the object named by the subject. (6) A sentence is a group of words by means of which we express a thought.
