No Boi ler. No Coal. No Steam. No Pumps No Danger. No Ashes. No Gauges. No Fires. No Explosions. No Extra Insurance. No Unpleasant Heat. Almost No Attendance. No Unpleasant Heat. Started instantly with a match! Always ready to give out its full power at once. Expense cases when Engine stops!

When power is required at intervals it is the cheapest motor known. Over 3 500 in use in England and the United States. DESCRIPTION:

DESCRIPTION:

The Engine consists mainly of a jacketted exclinder, with piston slide valve and governor having a cut-off mechanism to regulate the supply of gas according to the varying load on the engine. The pressure utilized for the production of the power is generated into the cylinder, and at once availed of therein to propel the piston. The pressure is due to the combustion of a peculia mixture of common coal gas and air, which is sinited by a flame carried from a burning gale outside into the cylinder by the motion of the slide. The principle of combustion of the slide. The principle of combustion in this Gas Engine is entirely new; a small part only of the charge is combustible, which part only of the charge is combustible, which of ignition, serves to expand the remained, thus avoiding shock, and effecting—when compared with other mo ors of this cluss—a vast economy. The "OTTO" GAS ENGINE is compared with other mo ors of this cluss—a vast economy. The "OTTO" GAS ENGINE is considered to possess the least number of verning parts and the greatest simplicity of mechanism every et attained in a Gas Engine, or even in many Steam Engines. It runs with an extreme smoothness and regularity of speed hitherto unknown in Gas Engines.
