IRELAND.

DUBLIN, April 20, 1848.

The manufacture of pikes still proceeds as supporters of the physical force part of the community. The depositors are still making a run upon the Savings' Banks, and a run is also made upon the large banks for gold and silver; £10,060 was drawn from the Dublin Savings' Bank the week before list and the county banks in the same ratio. Great excitement is also made in all parties on account of the government "gaffing bill," as it is called, and as the State trials approach, all look forward to the result with eagerness and anxiety. The news of the attempt was made in conjunction with the Gerproceedings of the Americans as regards Ireland, has been hailed with loud acclama ions, and it may not be long till the offer mulé by the Americans, be required to be realized.

The State trials will not take place till after the sittings, which commence on the 12th proximo, but on Saturday last the traversers, Messrs. O'Brien, Mitchell, and Meagher, took their departure for the committee rooms of the Confederation, and proceeded on foot to the four courts, accompanied by a crowd of persons, but it was evident to all that there was not that degree of excitement as evinced in 1843, when O'Connell and his brother traversers stood in the same predic ment. Judge Crompton delivered a long address to the grand jury, and explained to them the law of sedition, &c. The grand Jury found true bills against all the traversers.

The deplorable state of Ireland, apparently on but is quiet, biding her time. the verge of a civil war, continues to occupy the deepest attention of all classes. In the wild and tumultuous pissions now evoked, it is scarcely to be hoped that the calm exhortations of wisdom and experience can be listened to. The majority of the people of Ireland, now to a great extent armed, seem resolved upon some desperate act, which will secure for them the accomplishment of their darling hopes, or plunge them still deeper into the abyss of misery.
