the admission that the allies were obliged to fall back from this point of vantage in the great battle for possession of the east shore of the British channel. As an offset the French war office states that the allied forces have advanced along the North Sea coast, pushing back the Germans and taking Lombaertzyde, a small Belgian town a few miles northeast of Nieuport.

The warring nations awaited with keen suspense the outcome of the struggle in Belgium, which for the moment overshadows the conflicts on the many other fields of battle. From no other point came reports of important changes in the situation.

The capture of Dixmude was the first indication that the new attack of the Germans, described as their supreme effort and as probably marking a turning point in the war, had brought definite results. Betewen Dixmude and Ypres, which lies to the south, close to the French border, the fighting has been most intense, since the Germans elected at the opening of the week to begin the new onslaught with the help of since the Germans elected at the opening of the week to begin the new onslaught with the help of their reinforcements of fresh troops and new artillery. On October 15, during the advance on Ostend, the Germans occupied Dixmude, but later were compelled to fall back. The allies gained possession of the town temporarily, but their presence there was challenged repeatedly by the Germans, resulting in some of the most important and sanguinary fighting of the war. Whether the German victory will have any important influence on the outcome is not as yet disclosed.

Along the remainder of the battle line, says the French War tle line, says the French War Office, there is no change, except for slight progress by the allies at a few points. The Berlin view of the situation, however, is optimistic. Comment is made there of the use of the expression "good advances" in the latest official German reports concerning the fighting in the west, being the first occasion on which such terms have been employed in this connection.

Paris also is hopeful of the outcome in Belgium. Military critics there take the view that the Germans are faced with the imperative necessity of defeating the allies in order that they may turn their attention to the menacing armies of Russia. The records of the ast year show that the Baptist ladies have succeeded surprisingly well in their aims for the last 12 months. Mrs Wilson's Fenton records were excellent. Financially everything is well, and the convenon was monetarily sound. Mrs Glen Campbell's work as treasurer was very day made public the following cablegram which was received from Tokio:

"Permitted to capitulate, instead of surrendering unconditionally, the former governor of Tsing-Tau and his officers were in compliance with the gracious wish of the Japanese Emperor, allowed to wear their swords and maintain soldier's honor. Governor Meyer Von Waldeck said:

"Four or five days prior to the surrender of the fortress the wireless station was destroyed making it impossible any longer to communicate with Peking. The successful storming of Bismarck fort by the attacking soldiers, who recklessly hurled themselves at us by making human bullets of their bodies, sealed the fate of Tsingtau. It then became evident that the garrison could no longer hold itself against the shelling of heavy artillery. To have done so would have swelled the list of casualties and nothing would have been gained. That forced me to raise the white flag."
