THE YOUNG MAN'S BEARD.

If It Be Feeble and Scarce, He Has

All human seings past the age of 4 carry with them some secret sorrow. Even young babies have secret sorrows sometimes. These take the form of a safety pin that is not safe, or of a nurse all smiles and affection when parents are around, but inclined to scold and slap at

One very common sorrow we propose to uproot. This is the sorrow of the young man whose beard, feeble and scarce, is man whose beard, receive and scatter, is like the down on fluffy gosling. How often have you noticed such a young man pulling sady and bitterly at the mustache that will not grow? How often have you felt sorry for the young ciergyman tugging at pale side whiskers barely visible? Verily, "the heart knoweth his own bitterness. Our mission today is to tell young men and clergymen that there is no more hopeful sign in all their make up than a faint and backward growth of beard. Feebleness of beard indicates that the man has ahead of him progress, mental and physical. It indicates that he has not een his best day or full development, that he can wisely hope for better things

On the contrary, the man whose face, shaved, looks like a yery dark slice of castile soap, the young man who prides castle soap, the young man was been shimself on a nutmeg grater chin, has in all probability seen the limit of his development. This is sad, but it is true, and we have got to say it, for we are truth tellers in ordinary to the American young

If you doubt what we tell you, investigate for yourselves. Study pictures of great men at 30 or 35—you find that their beard, even at that age, is often nothing nore than a promise.

You see, we are all related, in physical make up at least, to the animal kingdom. Throughout that kingdom outward signs indicate full maturity. The lion's mane, the bison's hump, the elephant's tusks, the boar's tuskes, the peacock's tail feathers—these correspond to the beard in man and indicate the state of development which each animal has attained. The state of your beard measures your development, and there is nothing to be more thankful for than slow development. The better the creation the slower its growth. At 6 weeks of age the cabbage far surpasses the oak, but at the end of a hundred years, when the oak defies the storm, where is your cabbage?

If you try hard, you may find imaginary exceptions to this rule. Perhaps you'll say that Napoleon had a beard as stiff as that of a walrus almost before he was out of his teens.

True, but he was fully developed al most before he was out of his teens. He was a great military genius at 20, and his full development and full beard came early. But his career ended early. His predecessor, Cæsar, had practically no beard at all, just a few hairs here and there, but he lasted longer than Napoleon and could have gone on indefinitely if his friends had not murdered him.

In all truth remarks on young men there resides of course a useful lesson of some kind for young women. Here is the lesson for young women:

Don't despise your young man because his mustache is sickly.

If you are wise, you will tell the young man to shave, since all beard is an abomination. But if you belong to the primitive female type which demands hair on the man's face make the best of what You want your young man to develop.

If you get him with a thick mustache, he will never be much better ent, and you will probably have to let that magnificent mustache take the place of mental growth and future glory.—Ne

NO PLACE OF SAFETY. SCIENTISTS SAY PERILS BESET US ON

LAND AND SEA.

Disaster In Many Forms Liable to Overtake Any Locality, So That There Is Small Choice of a Safe Residence-Fall and Rise of Cities

History and science say it is dangerous to live anywhere on this earth, and give facts and figures to prove it. From pole to pole danger abounds, and frightful ca-tastrophes are liable to overtake humanity at any spot on the globe. Science proves that not a square mile of the entire earth but has in some time of the ages been swept by flood, fire or glacier, or buried by volcanic eruptions or violently shaken by earthquakes so that all human life there must have been ended.

Man, seeking refuge from the floods of the seacoast, goes to the mountains and places himself in the path of avalanches and landslides or builds his home on a volcano. As to earthquakes, there is no place that has not/felt them. There is an erroneous and popular belief that only the tropical regions are liable to severe earthquakes. Even the chilly plains of far Tartary have been torn by these shocks. Earthquakes have visited the city of New York in the past that, were they to come today, might topple over the skyscrapers and kill thousands on the streets. Tornados, ignorantly called cyclones, are liable to strike anywhere south of the polar regions, and where they cannot live the blizzard takes up the work of scaring mankind.

There is no reason why the Atlantic ocean should not sink into a yawning ulf some night and set the great lines high and dry a thousand miles from port. There is no reason why the Rocky mountains should not give place some night to a vast inland sea. These things are ever imminent, but as they happen so far apart men forget and actually seem surprised and confounded when the thing expected for centuries comes to

It is a well known fact that the entire Atlantic seaboard is sinking at the rate of two feet a century from Cape Cod to Cape Hatteras. If it can sink that fast, ning, and some day the props may let go all at once, and where will New York be? Vast tracts of Holland far below the surface of the sea, and the waves are kept out with the great dikes, and science says that Holland, Belgium, Denmark and all the southern coast of the Baltic are sinking steadily. The entire continent of Atalanta has gone down under the waves. Why should not other continents follow?

To balance these depressions spots are rising. About one-half of the Pacific islands are being elevated. So In what colors should an artist paint are the West Indies, the west coast of South America and Spitzbergen. The entire series of Japanese islands rose from the waves in a comparatively brief

And as if earth itself did not abound with dangers enough there are aerolites that go hurtling through space, smashing a house or a man here and there. Light ning and cloudbursts add to the terrors, so that one could hardly pick a more dangerous planet for a habitation.

But to come to specific instances, the earthquake at Lisbon Nov. 1, 1755, was one of the most terrible. Part of the city sank 600 feet. The sea was driven back moment and returned in a wave 50 six minutes, yet Lisbon flourishes in the same spot. Simultaneously with the Lis-bon disaster the volcano of Kotluggia bon disaster the voicano of Rodaggia burst out in Iceland, and the springs in Bohemia were dried up, only to burst out in waters deep with ocher. Many towns in northern Africa were also destroyed. The entire area shaken was six times as large as France. Seventeen six times as large as France. Seventeen days later a shock from the same center passed under Boston and tumbled the chimneys down, killed fish in the harbor and sent ships ashore. It passed on through New England into the wilds of America. Nine hours later a wave 20 feet high overwhelmed St. Martin's, in the West Indies. Had New York been stronging with its fall buildings then the standing with its tall buildings then the story might have been longer. In 1811 300 miles of earth about New Madrid, Mo., shook constantly for months. Lakes were formed and mys-

crict, and Caracas is alive again.

The Land That Swings Like a Hammock is the name given by Indians to the territory about San Salvador, Central America. That city was utterly de troved by an earthquake on March 19, 3, but the people had grown alarmed and had deserted it, so only 500 were killed.

It flourishes today.

No century in history has been without severe earthquakes in southern Italy. Thousands have perished there. Vesuvius adds to the danger of that land, and the town of Torre del Greco, which lies under the mountain, may meet the fate of Pompeii and Herculanæum any day. It has been partially destroyed several

In 1783 100,000 were killed in Calabria by an earthquake, but that is forgotten. On various occasions about 300,000 have On various occasions about 300,000 have perished in earthquake shocks at Anti-och—250,000 in one day. On Feb. 20, 1835, the city of Concepcion, in South America, was destroyed for the fourth time. There were 300 shocks in two weeks. On that occasion a wave 30 feet high broke on the island of Juan Fernandez, and fire came to the surface of the ocean through 400 feet of water. of the ocean through 400 feet of water. The sea turned black, had a foul odor, and millions of fish were killed.

Japan and South America have been shaken so often and so violently that an earthquake there is hardly worth notice. In 1854 a wave traversed the Pacific from Japan and broke on the American coast. Sailors say a wave over 50 feet high is an impossibility, but a wave 90 feet high destroyed Callao, Peru, in 1586. Mexico, the East Indies, China, Argen-tina, Hawaii, the Philippines, California -these places have been the scenes of fearful disasters from earthquakes and

But in spite of these terrors men live calmiy on. Most men never study nature and so do not know these things.

Others read of them in their schoolbooks and forget them along with their Latin and mythology. Only the professional scientists keep them ever in mind, and these are not alarmed, for they know there is really no safe place on earth

Accept Standard Reckoning. If you ever expect to go to law over question in which time is involved, however slightly, don't monkey with standard time. It won't go in the courts. To be sure, you can't catch trains if you don't use standard time to do it, but you will miss the verdict if you do. In Georgia the court of appeals decided that the use of standard time instead of sun time in regulating a trial was an error. In the particular case in question the sun time was faster than the railroad time, and a verdict was received after 12 o'clock on Saturday night by the sun time, though before 12 by standard time. It was lecided that sun time should have been followed. In Nebraska a certain summons was eturnable before a justice at 10 o'clock . m. The defendant failed to appear. The justice waited until 11 o'clock standard time, which was about half an hour faster than common time, and then gave judgment by default. The defendant appeared before 11 o'clock common time, and it was held that the judgment by default was premature and invalid.

In Iowa there was a question as to the expiration of an insurance policy, which by its terms extended until 12 o'clock at noon of a certain day. Fire broke out at about 11:45 o'clock a. m. of that day by common time and about two and a half minutes after 12 o'clock by standard time. The in force. It did not appear that any statute had enacted any change in the ordinary rule which regards noon as the time when the sun crosses the meridian. There was evidence of the customary use of standard time at that place, but this was held not sufficient. The court says: "It was not only necessary to show the customary use of standard time, but that by custom of the place at 12 o'clock at noon meant at 12 o'clock standard time."
