The difficulties turn out to be less of nature's doings than of man. Secure return freight to Quebec, and with a few additional light houses, the Insurance Companies will find it their in-tereat to remove the heavy neuron here. On Mondav last, between the hours of twelve and three P. M., the Town Hall of London was visited by one of those tremen-dous gales which usually decend on that doomed place when something is in the doomed place when something is in the wind. The gentlemen whom the gods had benored to blow on the occasion, were on the part of the great south wind, Mr. Phi-lo Bennet, who swelled prodigiously, aided by that old blower, Mr. Conneulior Nash ; on the part of the great north was Mr. Murray Anderson, who was cuttingly cold throughout slong with Mr. Barker who blew all his pith altho' the south at one time slmost smothered him. The worthy Mayor ast as Jupiter on the occasion and oxalled as he was, he really had enough to do to control the rebellious winds. The great subject of dispute was as to whether terest to remove the heavy premiums here-tofore charged. If England will only extend to her own colonies the same assistance she is now giving to the Liverpool and New York line of steamers we shall see the table turned. But should no impression be made on British statesmen, which we cannot be-lieve when the subject is laid before them rom the proper quarter, we nevertheless accomplishing that which we may possible fail of securing by depending on others. In a very few years Canada will be able to do to control the rebellious winds. The great subject of dispute was as to whether the contage Depot of the Great Western Railway, which is as yet only built in the air, should be taken from its old site in the morth and placed down somewhere south of Dundas Street. After lots of thunder, lightning and hail had been poured forth most unmercifully by both sides against each other—after creating quite a hurricane amongst the sturdy trees of the forest, who groaned and tumbled about as if they had been a parcel of madmen let loose from Bedlam, or the wild beats of a menagerie turned out upon each other, the wonderful In a very lew years Canada will be able to dispense with custom duties; when that day comes exporters will find it their inter-est to ship to Canada instead of to New York, as 30 per cent saved will be no small profit. Is it not to be regretted, that while we possess these vast advantages, both natural and political, any among us should be found despairing of the country? Sectibe found despairing of the country? Secti onal and party interests should all be merg ed in developing the resources of our mag-nificent country. Mr. Merritt's policy should be taken as a whole, in order to apshould be taken as a whole, in order to ap-preciate its value. It may answer some objectors to assail it by piecemeal, and strive to frighten men thereby from its adoption; but we venture to say, that a policy better calculated to accomplish the purpose of its projector, was never mooted in this or any other country. Commercial prosperity, en-hancement of the value of property, secur-ing the transit of the western world's pro-duce, reduction of the value of a soft secur-Hediam, or the wild beasts of a menagerie turned out upon each other, the wonderful depot was, by most tremendous efforts on the part of the great south blower, carried, carriages, passengers and all, to the south of Duadas Street, but as to the precise place no case knows. Like an unfortunate balloon it may be still suspended in mid air, it not being able to get up nor down by reason of the storm that bloweth so tremen-douly below. It is expected however to duce, reduction of taxes, and self-govern-ment, are among the objects proposed, and we are satisfied must result from the policy advocated by the Hon. Mr. Merritt. The douly below. It is expected however to come down some odd day in the future and that too with such rengeance that £5000 will not pay fordamages.

At no period in the history of the United tates was there ever so much real exciteevents a hero, a ruler, a patriot to some and a tyrant to others. The tribe whose eway had been extended by his military States was there ever so much real excite ment among the people. There are doubt eway had been extended by his military skill will regard him as a patriot, while those neighboring tribes that were subdued by it must consider him a tyrant and a usarper. But, as unlimited power in one man generally degenerates into oppression, and as a nation may be mighty and indepen-dent without at the same time its inbehi less periodical heavings amongst the mass-es, consequent upon some party political engagement, but these soon subside and all is soon as if the cause of temporary inquie-tude had never existed. But the present commotion is of a totally different nature. It is second to none save the great revoludent without at the same time its inhabi-tants being free, the hero who may be in-strumental in extending the limits of his tion itself. It was oppression which drove the sold state colonists to rebellion and the declaration of independence. It is oppre-sion in the present instance which wi country and subjecting other nations to its eventy and unfrequently has ended by being an oppressor, against whom to rebel has been looked upon as an act of the purest patriotism. It is certain that this governcause the colored population-aided by the friends of real, true, genuine liberty-and God be thanked, bad as things are in that mighty republic-there are many suchment of one man is best calculated to ad-vance the interest of people in a savage state-to found a kingdom out of rogue materials-but as civilization and enlighten en and women too, who will shed thei life's blood for the sake of a glorious free tants were not free ? A nation is indepen-dent when no other nation exercises 'au-thority over it, though the king may be a despot and his subjects be slaves. France furnishes us with a ready example. The veign of Louis Quatorze may be taken as the brightest ers in its history. The na-tion was then poworful and independent, but the French people were slaves to the will of one man. To contend against this extravagent authority of kinge in France. It is a mercy Canada exists as she does at present. She is a refuge at least for the poor down-trodden fugitive-who, chased but the French people were alaves to the will of one man. To contend against this extravagant authority of kings in France. as well as in other countries, called forth the most glorious efforts of the patriot, and the success has been ensures unate with the labor and the sacrifices which it cost to achieve it. That government which is monarchical at its head and republican at its base, is the most perfect form that has as yet been invented. Whether the head should be elective and rule for a term of yeare, as in the United States, or be heredi-tary and govern for life, as in England, matters but little to the people, when it has certain defined limits within which to act and beyond which it dare not attempt to with the blood-hounds of oppression-run conting and exhausted to the frontiers of a free soil and a clear atmosphere. Here be may breathe unrestrained and live a life of freedom indeed; and never need he be afraid that Cs and a shall be descarated by the pre-sence of the slave-catcher armed by a free people with a manacle, chain, and all the paraphenalia of a Fugitive Law.—Free Prese.

We have the pleasure of learning, that the tour of observation from which the Hon. Mr. Merritt has just returned, will be of vast importance to the province. The Hon. the Commissioner of Public Works Hon, the Commissioner of Funce works has accertained and brought into notice the existence of a channel in the Long Sault perfectly navigable, as also the feasibility of comming a communication between the St. and beyond which it dare not attempt to and beyond which it dare not attempt to trespass. With the responsible principle in government, by which the delegates elected by the people are answerable to them for the acts of the sovereign or chief magistrate, no undue influence can be exer-cised over them against their will and con-sent. They hold all power in their own hands, and their rulers can only retain such authority as is conferred on them for the nurnees of steering the hark of state. opening a communication between the St. Lawrence and Lake Champlain, which when completed will enable us to compete with any mode of transit which now exists to the New York market. TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Wm. Deceased was talking to two othe sume, when prisoner came up and asked what they were talking of. Deceased replied, "Not of you: go to bed, I want no-thing to do with you" Prisoner did, accor-dingly, go to bed; but got up almost im-mediately, rushed upon the deceased and gave him a blow in the neck, with a knife, which means the back with a knife, gave nim a blow in the neck, with a knife, which seemed to be a table knife ground to a long sharp point. Deceased put his hand to his neck, and said, "I am a dead man." Deceased languished a week and then died. The prisoner had been heard to say, either in jest or carnest, that he would take some 's life, but he would get out of the service, though he were hanged or transported for it. Messrs. Ker and Cassidey, for the defence, endeavored to prove the prisoner insanity. Several of his comrades, wh were present at the time he committed the deed, testified that they believed he was then in a sound state of mind. Mr. Justice Aylwin then charged the jury at great length, who retired, and after a long abe returned with a verdict of Guilty. The usual proclamation being made, Mr. Justice Aylwin pronounced sortence of death, in a most impressive manner.
