WOMEN AND MONEY.

Girls Should be Taught Business Principles and Habita. "Every girl or woman," writes the author of "John Hulifax, Gentleman," "who is now entirely dependent on her male relations—a position which, considering all the ups and downs of life, the sooner she gets out of the better—ought by the time she is old enough to present any money to know evently here. to possess any money to know exactly how much she has, where it is invested, and what much she has, where it is invested, and what it ought yearly to bring in. By this time also she should have acquired some knowledge of business—bank business, referring to checks, dividends, and so on—and as much of ordinary business as she can. To her information of a practical kind never comes amiss, especially the three golden rules which have very rare exceptions: No investment over ö per cent is really safe; trust no one with your money without security, which ought to be as strict between the nearest and dearest friends as between strangers; and, lastly, keep all your affairs from day to day in an accurate order as if you had to die to-moorow. The mention of dying suggests another necessity—as soon as you are 21 years of age make your will. You will not die a day the sooner; you can alter it whenever you like; while the ease of mind it will be to you and the trouble it may save to those that come after you are beyond telling. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon every girl who has or expect: that not undesirable thing, "a little income of her own," what a fortunate responsibility that is, and how useful she may make it to others. Happier than the lot of many married woman is that of the "unappropriated blessing," as I have heard an old maid called, who has her money, less or more, in her own hands, and can use it as she chooses, generously as wisely, without asking anybody's leave and being accountable for it to no one. But then she must have learned from her youth upward how to use it, she must not spare any amount of trouble in the using of it, and s'.e must console herself for many a lonely regret—we are but human, all of us—with the thought that she has been trusted to be a steward of the Great Master. Such an old maid often does as much good in her generation as twenty married women." it ought yearly to bring in. By this time also

A Pica for Rational Medicine. From the New York Medical Record.

A Plea for Rational Medicine.

From the New York Medical Record.

A good man struggling with adversity is a sight which ought to awaken lively and sympathetic interest. Such a sight is presented by the New York Medical Times, which, for some years, has been manfully endeavoring to rid homeopathy of its sectarianism and distinctive name, while still claiming that it represents one of the most important of therapeutical peinciples. In consequence of its course it is secciving severe criticisms from many of its sectaving severe criticisms from many of its sectaving severe criticisms from many of its sectiving from the regular school. For example, one of our contemporaries prints the following, apparently unaware that the Times has been saying this same thing for several years: "Homeopathise Deasnage appears in a recent issue of the thomeopathise New York Medical Times: Goonin your sectariancourse, ultra-devotees of ilahmennam, if you will, be loyal to the teachings of your master if you must, but shut not your eyes to the fact that science has rendered obsolete many tenets of his system and removed the last vestige of an excuss for maintaining an organization of physiciana under an exclusive title, distinct and separate from the medical profession at large. The ultra-school of medicine has fulfilled the complete measure of its usefulness as a separate organization. Loyalty to truth and progress now demands that it shall drop its narrow, sectarian game and no longer seek to keep its members in leading strings. In the nature of things there can be but one system of medicine recognized by science. Either homeopathy must absorb the old school or be absorbed by it." It would be better, we think, to give such sentiments a hearty endorsement, with success to those who utter them.

Be Wanted to Get Seber.

Me Wanted to Get Sober.

A lank individual, with a beard of a week's growth covering his face, was met uptown yesterday. He was hardly sober, and yet not drunk. He approached a well dressed mas "Don't eat with your knife. Never "Don't eat with your knife."

all tied up. See here," and he drew from his pocket an order on a mercantile company good for $120 or thereabouts.

"Why don't you get this cashed?" was asked.

"I can't," said he, "I've been to the place a couple of times an'they say I'n drunk; come back when I'm shober. Now, I can't get shober until I get drunk, an' I can't get drunk till I get drink, an'I can't drink till I get money. Can you lend me one nickle, I have fi' cents."

The gentleman gave him ton cents and he

The gentleman gave him ten cents, and he started to get sober in his own peculiar way.

A New Boiler. A discovery which, it is claimed, promises to revolutionize the existing modes of generatg steam, has been made by Mr. Wm. Cooke, mill owner in Simcoe County. His recently a null owner in Sincoe County. His recently patented steam generator, by exposing the vater more efficiently to a greater extent of leating space, effects an economy of one-half fuel; in other words, the work done by the ordinary boiler with two tons of coal is done by Mr. Cooke's with one. The water, instead of encircling the tubes as in the ordinary boiler, is held within them while the fire encircles, thus exposing each tube to a vertical instead of a horizontal fire. His 80-H.P. boiler at present working in Sewrey's foundry. Barrie, covers a space 3x5 ft., whilst the er-dinary boiler of equal capacity covers a ground space of 15x8 ft.

The Origin of News.

"What do you understand by the word news?" This is a question that was asked and "Why! something new that the other day. "Why! something new that has occurred I suppose," was my reply. "But do you know how the word originated?" I was obliged to confess my ignorance, and imagining my young readers may be as much in the dark, will tell them my friend's ingenious explanation, which she said she came across in an old book, printed long before you er I were born. N, you know, stands for north; E, for east; W, for west; and S, for south; so the four letters were combined together to form the word news, now used for all that is happening north, south, east, and west. A newspaper, therefore, tells us by its very name that it is a chronicler of eyents in all parts of the world.

POLITICAL NOTES

The Mail's change of morals has not changed its manners. It speaks of Hon.
C. F. Fraser as "disreputable.," If Mr Fraser sees fit to hit back he will not need to look long for a tender spot.
Toronto World.

Rebellion at one end, secession at the other, and a race and religious strife in the centre—this is how the Tory party has succeeded in consolidating the Dominion. As our contemporary well observes, the party that is responsible for that kind of consolidation is not the party that does homage to Edward Blake.—Halifax Chronicle.

We should like to know why, when Bunting, the managing director of the Mail, should not visit Sir John and be closed with him-whatever that they may mean—three times during the day, or thirty times if it is agreeable to both parties. Of course it casts a shade of doubt upon the sincerity of that repudiation, but then is there any one who now believes much in that?—Montreal Her-

The Hamilton Spectator says that Mr Blake is a demagogue, and points to his Home Rule record to beer out its assertion. Whatever may be said of some of Mr Blake's followers, we do not think he can be charged with being a man of that kind. He has almost consistently show himself to be high spirited and without prejudices. - Montreal Star, Ind.

The Tory doctrine just now seems to be this: Because a number of heretofore supporters of the Government have gone into opposition, those who formerly opposed the Government should now come to its support. Reformers are asked to discard their principles of a lifetime to unlikely a Government than here. time to uphold a Government they have are too clear headed to do anything

What an Invitation or Party Call I-

In that invaluable book, "Don't," Maj. Bunce tells everybody what no to do in conversation and manners. In reference to that common and borrible American fashion of saying "I am through," when one means that he is done or has finished, "Don't" says:

"Don't say I am through, when you are announcing that you have finished dinner or breakfast." "Are you through?" asked an American of an Englishman, when seated at table. "Through!" exclaimed the Englishman, looking in an starmed way down to the floor and up to the ceiling

In a foot note, Major Bunce says "Say, pardner, would yer help a feller?"

"That depends on what is wanted," was the reply.

"Say, pardner," he continued, "I ain't no pauper. I'm well heeled, but my funds are all tied up. See here," and he drew from his all tied up. See here," and he drew from his degree of social culture, but the fact is that while eating with the knife is much less common than formerly, instances of it may still be witnessed.

Lord Lonsdale, treasurer and traveling companion to Miss Violet Cameron, has locked out the miners at his Whitehaven collieries, Some of the prettiest young lady clerks in the national treasury department are said to have been honored during Secretary Spinner's incumbency by having their features given to some of the goddesses that grace the currency; but the portrait of Martha Washington and an idealized head of Dolly Madison are the only accredited portraits of distinguished women that have been discovered.
