mention later on, it was only in 1905 that by a minute of council dated September 26, that Canada became a party of the treaty.

This minute of council is based upon a report from the secretary of state, in which he recommends :--

That a cable despatch be sent t Mr. Lyttelton, advising him that the government of Canada is prepared to adhere absolutely and without reserve to the treaty of commerce and navi-gation made between Great Britain and Japan in 1894 and supplement ary convention signed in Tokio in July, 1895

In view of the expiration of the two years allowed by Article XIX of the treaty of 1894 for the adhesion of British colonies, it became necessary to conclude a special convention so as t give effect to the stipulations of the treaty applicable to the intercourse of commerce and navigation between the empire of Japan and the Dominion of Canada.

The convention was signed at Tokic on January 31, 1906. It came into effect immediately after the exchange of ratifications and, as stipulated :-It shall remain in force until the expiration of six months from the day on which one of the high contracting parties shall have announced their inention of terminating it.

The treaty was submitted to and sanctioned by parliament during the session of 1907. It will be noticed by the first paragraph of article I of the treaty that the Japanese are unequivocally given the same rights as any British subject in Canada. It reads as follows :---

The subjects of each of the two high contracting parties shall have full lib erty to enter, travel or reside in any part of the Dominions and possessions of the other contracting party, and shall enjoy full and perfect protection for their persons and property.

Before I proceed any further, I wish to answer at once an objection which is has been raised by some newspapers. It was stated that the government should have accepted the suggestion made by Mr. Chamberlain several years ago, namely, that Canada might adopt a policy based on the Natal act It has also been stated that we should have striven to have obtained an arrangement with terms similar to that Queensland. The Natal act would be nothing less than a means of excluding the Japanese from Canada and I have no hesitation in saying that it would be a most unfriendly act towards Japan. As regards the special arrangement with Queensland, it is contained in the protocol, signed in Tokio, March 16, 1897, in that Queensland, although adhering to the treaty, reserves her rights as regards the im-
