Editor Evening Telegram:
Dear Sir—I see by the newspaper reports that the disciples of Esculapius have at last realized the desperate straits to which they have come and are seeking a remedy. The consideration of the public must surely be aroused as they view their struggle for existence and how difficult it is for them to make both ends meet. Just think of them "living from hand to mouth," as one of the fraternity once said, on an income of $5,000 to $10,000 annually. Why, it is enough to make one's blood run cold. Even the most thoughtless must realize how much it costs to build expensive houses; to buy motor cars and keep up fast horses and fancy vehicles; to furnish their houses handsomely; to live in the lap of luxury and to take frequent trips abroad. And then they must remember that we have now three times as many doctors as we used to have, and if the market is too much cut up, why the plan suggested is easy—"Raise the fees." Why some of our medical friends actually threaten to leave us if we do not pay them more. Horror of horrors, can we contemplate such a thing for a moment? However could our other doctors get on without their "talents" brethren. We would be plunged into deep darkness indeed should the sunshine of their presence be transferred to the place which they sprung and from the obscurity of which (as some unkind person said) they should never have emerged. It is hoped that their pitiable tale will appeal to a generous public, and as the laborer or clerk pays out the extra dollars so hardy earned, and which can be so ill spent, they will have the satisfaction of knowing that they are helping a privileged class to live in luxury when they cannot afford necessities; to drive their motors when they cannot afford a cab; to live in costly houses when they must be content with mean abodes; to enjoy all the refinements of civilization while they must grub along as best they can. So come along, my friends, and be generous to a deserving class, whose heroic struggle for existence must command our deepest admiration. Yours truly, SYMPATHIZER.

Placencia Notes.

During this week a bazaar is being held in the Star Hall for the benefit of the Nuns. There are a number of ladies helping and a handsome sum of money is being realized.

Below I give you a copy of the address presented to Mr. St. E. Mullooney on the 20th inst., upon his resignation from the school. The reply I have not got at hand.

ADDRESS
To Mr. M. E. Mullooney, Principal Boy's Superior School, Placencia, From the Pupils.

Dear Mr. Mullooney—It is with feelings of the most sincere regret that we, the boys of the Superior School, learn that the ties which have united us for the past few years as teacher and pupils, are about to be severed by your resignation from the school.

During your stay amongst us you have, by your good example and manly conduct, gained the esteem of the people of this town. We cannot speak too highly of the services rendered to us by you, and we take this favourable opportunity of congratulating you upon the success of this school while you were in charge.

We will never forget your kindly manner and gentle disposition, for you have taught us to be manly boys, and if we follow the example you have given us, we will be happy in fighting life's battle.

We hope that God will bless you in your new home and in whatever sphere of life you may choose to take in the future; and we ask you to accept this accompanying little gift as a slight token of our appreciation and gratitude towards you.

Signed on behalf of the pupils, BERT COLLINS, JAMES MILLER.

During the past week three Placencia men, now in the regions of the far West, and once members of the Star of the Sea Association of Placencia, have forwarded a pipe (one will worth winning) to be played for by the present members. It is pleasing to see them take such an active interest in the Society though they are many miles away. The names of these gentlemen are—Messrs. W. Hendrick, P. Dunphy and D. H. Collins.

Many of our friends, who were amongst us last year, have been called away, never to return until the Last Day. But to those remaining, through the columns of the People's Paper, wish them a bright, happy and prosperous New Year. CASTLE HILL, Placencia, Dec. 30th, 1910.

Carnival of Robbery.

After his arrest Saturday morning, the police came to the conclusion that Thomas Evans who smashed a rear window in the Bank of Montreal at 8.30 a.m. that day, believed had secured an entrance that he would have had some hand in the robberies which for months past have startled the city and which the detectives found it difficult to bring home to any perpetrator. The police were correct in their surmise, and when they visited the man's residence on Cook Street, Saturday morning, they were surprised to see the evidences there of his dishonest exploits. The house was literally packed with the spoils of the various robberies of which he was the author, and when all was taken to the police station, he was left in the domicile which he could be said was acquired by honest means. The very bed on which the man slept had been stolen from Mr. John Fitzgerald's residence, Maxco Street; and the goods stolen by him are worth hundreds of dollars.

The man admitted being the perpetrator of all of the robberies which have astounded the police and alarmed the public the past 6 months or more.

The man is a native of Pouch Cove, has a wife and 2 children, and for months past has been in the employ of the Gas Company. The police have a list of the robberies which have occurred in the city the past 6 or 8 months, and after conferring with Inspector General Sullivan, Saturday morning, a search warrant was procured and a descent made on the residence of Evans. Sergeants Byrne and Noseworthy made the search of the house which contained stolen blankets, toilet sets, silver knives, forks and spoons had vanished; jugs, teapots, etc., 5 sets of curtains and other articles in great variety which were a great loss to the owner. Evans admitted this robbery, and says that he effected an entrance to the basement by getting through a window at night. He pleads guilty to forcing his way into Sir James Winter's stable from which he stole a lot of clothing, etc.

From John Fitzgerald's house, Maxco Street, he took a feather bed and $8 in cash; from Mr. Taylor, of the Saint street, a watch and several other articles; from the saloon of the Misses Corbett liquors, beers, etc., to the value of $40, more or less; from Mr. Bert Woods, LeMarchant Road, a tub of butter, pans, boilers, saucepans, groceries, etc.; from Mr. Ray's, LeMarchant Road, dishes and groceries mostly; from Capt. Kennedy's house, Pleasant Street, pictures, mats and rugs, clothing and groceries, including hams, fish, etc.; from Colleymore's the theft of the contents of a clothes line valued at $15; from Mr. Turnbull's, Patrick Street, a perambulator worth $10; from Capt. Eli Dawe's, LeMarchant Road, tools, etc., worth $40; from Mrs. Kelly's, Pennywell Road, cruet stand, umbrella, oil stove, and other articles, worth $40; and several articles of value from Mr. Soper's residence, near his own home on Cook Street. He it was the police now believe who attempted to enter the residence of Mr. W. G. Gosling, LeMarchant Road, last summer, and also Mrs. Jardine's house.

The police are comparing the thefts of the man with the list they have in their possession of articles missing from various households, and have traced all those mentioned above to Evans.

The man at first lived on Pleasant Street, but for some months past has resided on Cook Street. He has a wife and two children who are now residing in a house practically bare of furniture and minus almost every necessary comfort for the inclement winter season. The man must have had nerve to go to dead of night into people's houses, for at any time he might have been discovered and either killed or severely injured.

Hardly ever before in the history of the city has such a series of robberies occurred, and the police deserve utmost credit for discovering the author of them.

Fever Spreading.

The fever is spreading alarmingly in the neighborhood of Bartley's Hill and Cape Street. Rev. Fr. Goff, who prepared Mrs. Collins for death was struck with the disease not long afterwards and is very ill and was removed to Hospital Sunday afternoon. There was also sent to Hospital Saturday, a boy named Woodfine, of Cuddihy Street, and Mrs. Pittman of Sebastian Street, both suffering from the disease. Mr. Wm. Fanning of Bartley's Hill has been ill the past two weeks and the disease from which he suffers has been diagnosed typhoid fever. Besides these mentioned above there are now in Hospital, Mrs. J. Whalen, her son Joseph, Peter, Joseph and Mrs. Collins and J. Macmannan. Mr. Fanning was stricken with typhoid as the result of a severe cold. People of the west end are becoming greatly alarmed over the spread of the disease.
