The More Wives a Man Has the Wealthier He Is.

The Women Support the Men in Umtata-An Incentive to Marriage. Single blessedness, so called, is often plain why so many American men remain single. But the Pondo, according to South Africa, finds his matri-monial problem far different. With one wife, it is true, he feels poor, as civilized man often does. But with two, he is as rich as the American with With three or four, he is still more affluent, and with ten or a dozen he is rolling in wealth. Here is the simple explanation of the paradox:

Whereas civilized man is expected to support his wife, the Pondo leaves to his women-folk the privilege of supporting him. This shows that a savage is not necessarily a fool. Mr. James O'Haire, missionary of the Catholic Church in Umtata, explains the working of the system in a letter. "Polygamy," he says, "is the very life's support of the Pondos; the number of wives a man has settles the question as to his previous wealth, for each wife was bought, and for her he must have paid her father from eight to thirty oxen; and now his wealth may be estimated by the number of wives and children, because the whole affair may be simply described as natural human farming. Each daughter is worth, say, ten oxen; if she is well built and pretty, she may sell for forty; then, too, the sons work in the care of cattle, for the whole of the Kaffir property consists in cattle. The wives work, and so state and western more active and held do the daughters. But the head of the family, the man, works no more after marriage." The "dignity of labor" is so noble a thing that one cannot but admire the complete self-abnegation of and builish weekly statistics; July, the polygamous Pondos in leaving it all 79½c; Sept., 71½c to 72 7-16c; Dec., 72c to the females. Firing a Big Gun Brings About Many Physical Changes.

[Philadelphia Times.] clear idea of just what happens when last sad rites.

a big cannon is fired. The physical Mr. Jack Ni manifestations are numerous. professors of chemistry and physics back of these is a complex mass of mind of any but an artillery expert.

First, the cubes, disks, hexagons or irregular lumps of powder are chemically transformed into a powerful, expanding gas the instant firing takes place. Then there are innumerable by-products that even chemists do not The explosion of gunpowder is divided into three distinct stages, called the ignition, inflammation and combustion. The ignition is the setting on fire of the first grain, while the inflammation is the spreading of the flame over the surface of the powder from the had not been informed of the arrest of point of ignition. Combusion is the burning up of each grain. The value of gunpowder is due to the fact that when subjected to sufficient heat it becomes a gas which expands with frightful rapidity. The so-called explosion that takes place when a match is touched to gunpowder is merely a chemical change, during which there is original solid. It has been calculated that ordinary There is considerable talk on the gunpowder, on exploding, expands about nine thousand times, or fills a space this much larger as a gas than in a solid form. When this chemical change takes place in a closed vessel the expansion may be made to do a work like that of forcing a projectile along the bore of the great gun or test tube in the line of least resistance. The hardest work a gunner is called upon to do is to stand the tremendous shock. The forces exerted by these Regarding the amount, Mr. Magee said gases in expanding seem to radiate in all directions from the cannon, as rip There are many county constables in ples are caused by dropping a pebble in Middlesex who might be induced to a pool of still water. As a matter of safest or the most dangerous position for a gunner to take beside his gun In the case of the great 13-inch guns on our monitors, a position back of the gun is much easier than one nearer the muzzle. In addition to this force, there is an immense pressure exerted on the sides of the cannon, so that another distinct series of shocks also radiate outward from the barrel of the gun. These lines of force are influenced, besides, by the recoil of the gun, which tends to make the lines curve outward and intensifies the shock. These are in turn more or less compensated by the forces of the air opposing them as it rushes into the mouth of the cannon when the projectile leaves it. As a result of all these forces the atmosphere is, of course violently disturbed. Although no projectile strikes the gunner, who must stand by, it will be seen that the air is full of missles in the form of invisible lines of force, or vibration, which bombard, as it were, every part of the gunner's body at the same time. An examination and analysis of the effect produced upon the human system and the mind by the firing of a cannon is most engrossing. Men generally accounted courageous tremble violently in the knees; others feel nauseated; some have severe headaches; a few have had their ear-drums split, or the action of their heart affected. Take the vital organ, the heart, first. In the space between the right auricle and ventricle are a set of fine, threadlike cords called the tendineae. The concussion makes them tremble like timbers in a building when there is an earthquake. In a weak man the chamber of the heart is left open for an instant: the opening and closing springs lose their control; the heart shakes; possibly the chordae tendineae are snapped; contraction or dilation of the organ ensues, and in some instances death follows.

Deafness induced by an explosion may be traced to the sudden pressure upon the inner orifice of the ear and the tremendous vibration set up. The thin, transparent, fairly bright membrane called the drum of the ear is burst like a piece of tissue paper held taut and forcibly blown upon. Sounds are conveyed by the beating of a tiny mallet upon this anvil. If the beating is too rapid and too forcible, the membranes may be ruptured, a temporary disturbance of the mind occurs and the sufferer becomes dizzy. When the knees tremble it is due to the nervous shock produced in the cerebellum. All the nerves and muscles are thrown into atonic contractions and relaxation, and the knees appear to tremble Nausea is also caused by the physiological change that takes place in the brain. There is a pressure of blood there, and the stomach, responding, tries to empty itself.

A Good Corn Seller for 25 cents.

A marvel of cheapness, of efficacy, and of promptitude, is contained in a bottle of that famous remedy, Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. It goes right to the root of the trouble, there acts quickly, but so painlessly that nothing is known of its operation until the corn s shelled. Beware of substitutes offered for Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor-safe, sure and painless. Sold at druggists
