ELECTRIC LIGHTS

Locating the Twenty-Five New Ones To Be Distributed Among the Different Wards.

The municipal item before No. 3 committee of the city council last night, was to decide the location of the 25 electric lights, which the city gets without additional cost, under the ten-year agreement made with the London Electric Light Company.

It was moved by Ald. Hunt that five lights go to No. 2 ward, and four to each of the others. The city engineer to visit the wards and decide upon their location. The motion carried.

An account for $307.26 was submitted by the Canadian Rubber Company for the year 1907. It was for hose guaranteed to stand 400 pounds pressure, and to last for six years. As a test had not been made or a written guarantee furnished the account remained unpaid.

Engineer Graydon's specifications for a civic electric light plant were criticised by a Canadian firm recently, and he thought it might be wise to submit them to the editor of the Electrical Review, New York, which he did, and received word that they were technically correct.

Popular Young Londoner Married at Seaforth.

A Roxbury Resident Takes a Charming Young Lady From London—Pretty Wedding in St. James' Church, South London.

SIMPSON-RUSSELL.

One of those pleasing events of interest to all, took place at the Seaforth Methodist Church on Tuesday, Aug. 18, being the marriage of Miss Louise F. D. Russell, daughter of the officiating clergyman, Rev. A. L. Russell, M.A., pastor of the church, to Mr. Frederick G. Simpson, of London. The decorations, which consisted of palms, ferns and many beautiful flowers, contributed by different members of the congregation, had been put in place by the young people of the church. At 1 o'clock the guests assembled, an appreciative audience having already gathered. As Miss Louise, the organist, played the beautiful Lohengrin March, the bridegroom, attended by his brother, Mr. B. F. Simpson, of Chicago, and Dr. George A. Russell, of London, the bride's brother, took their places at the altar. The bridemaids, Miss Georgia Dulmage, of Lakeland, and Miss Louise Simpson, of London, the bridegroom's sister, led the bridal party. They were followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Nona Dulmage, of Palmerston, and Hazel Dulmage, of Newbridge, cousins of the bride. The bride came in the arm of her uncle, Mr. Anson Dulmage.

After an impressive ceremony the bride and groom were joined in wedlock. The bride wore a dress of white organdy and carried a bouquet of white roses. The groom wore a white muslin with white carnations. The presents were beautiful and numerous. In the afternoon a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson, to the train for Toronto and Niagara Falls.

A very charming wedding took place at St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday afternoon, when Miss Alice Maud, youngest daughter of Mr. Thomas Walker, of Clarence street, was married to Mr. Harry E. Milling, of Roxbury, Mass. Rev. Canon Dann was the officiating clergyman. As the strains of the "Lohengrin" wedding march pealed forth from the organ, the party entered the church. The bride, who was assisted as bridesmaid, and was charmingly attired in a dress of yellow organdy, carried a bouquet of white and pink roses. The bride wore a handsome traveling suit of cadet blue with hat to match, and carried bridal roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. P. E. McCarthy, of St. Thomas. The happy couple left for Boston immediately after the ceremony, where they will reside. Harry, who left this city some three years ago for Boston, was for a number of years connected with St. Paul's choir, and was very popular with the members, who wish him every success.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ethel Martin, city, was charmingly gowned in white organdy, and carried a bouquet of white roses. The groom was assisted by Mr. Robert Adams, of Georgetown. The ushers were Messrs. H. K. McCormick, W. Waugh, T. Hiscott and W. Martin. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mr. Vivian Reeve, organist. The bride was given away by her uncle, Dr. C. T. Campbell. The bride's gift from the groom was a costly pearl brooch, and to the bridesmaid a four-leaf clover ring set with pearls. The wedding dejeuner was served at the bride's residence after the ceremony, and the happy couple left amid a shower of rice, on a honeymoon trip to Montreal, Quebec, Boston and other places.
