Lola's Secret,

A Romance.

"What we want to discover," continued the Squire, "is the writer of the letter and the person that he went to see. I am afraid, Dolores, that we have a clue. Whether it will pain you or not, my child, I cannot tell; but I am afraid—may I say so?—that I am quite sure that the person your husband went to see was Lola de Ferras."

She sprang from her arms, and cried out; but her words were unintelligible. Her ghastly face frightened them. "I will not believe it!" she said, after awhile. "My husband would not go to meet Lola de Ferras, the woman who hates me, and who has sworn vengeance against me. Papa, why do you say that?"

"My dear, it is true. As I was driving home along the Deeping road last night, with James Ashford, I saw your lady walking. Her eyes were cast down, and she seemed hurried in thought; but I recognized her in a moment as Lola de Ferras. Wishing to be sure, I said to James, 'Who is that?' He looked and answered immediately, 'Miss de Ferras, sir.' But I noticed that the moment she saw my attention drawn toward her, she pulled down her veil and walked on swiftly. She evidently did not want me to see her. I drove past her and took no notice. I saw that she was going towards Scarsdale, and I wondered at that, because I knew that you had not parted on good terms. Her eyes had sworn to me, Lord Rhyworth will tell you what he saw."

"I do not know Miss de Ferras," said his lordship. "But last evening I went for a walk through the woods. You know where the Deeping Hurst woods join yours? A path branches off there, and leads to the paddings that skirt your portion of the woods. I followed it, and when I reached the paddings I stood for some moments leaning against them. Looking toward the other end, I saw Sir Karl walking with a lady. She was crying, and seemed to be pleading to him. I could see that she was tall, with a graceful figure and a dark, beautiful face, over which she drew her veil. She presently said something to Sir Karl, and he turned and looked in my direction. Whether he saw me or not I cannot tell; but as he turned I walked away, as I had no wish to seem intrusive. That is all I have to tell you, Lady Allammore."

"There is one person more who can give information," said the Squire; "and that is Ashford, the groom. He, I think, saw the last of Sir Karl."

"He rang the bell, trying to hide from his sight his 'nigger's' colored face. 'If I were a twenty years younger,' he said to himself, 'I would follow him to the end of the world, and thrash him! Send James Ashford here,' he said to his servant who answered the summons."

In a few minutes the groom stood before them. He looked pale and agitated.

"Don't ask me, sir," he said, "to describe my lady. I cannot speak before her." Like every other servant in the house he almost worshipped his beautiful, gentle mistress, who never spoke sharply, and was so unobtrusive. "I cannot distress my lady," he said again; but the Squire answered him sternly.

"You must speak the truth. When did you see Sir Karl last?"

"My lady," cried the man, "I would rather be killed than pan you."

"Speak," she said, in a faint voice;

"I must know. Do not be afraid. Where did you see Sir Karl last?"

"At the end of the wood, my lady, at the white gate. I had put up the post, and was going, where I do go sometimes to smoke my pipe, to the lodge. At the white gate I saw my master standing talking to a lady. I could not help seeing that her hands were clasped round his arm, as though she were begging of him to do something. He was talking very earnestly to her. After a time she smiled and looked pleased, then they walked away together."

"In what direction?" asked the Squire.

"Toward the Deeping road, and I thought that perhaps the master was taking the lady to the station."

"We have inquired at the station," observed Lord Rhyworth, "but neither Sir Karl nor the lady was seen there."

"Who was the lady, James," asked the Squire.

"That was madame's daughter, sir, the young French lady who lived at Beauclieu."

"You are quite sure?" said Lord Rhyworth.

"Quite sure, my lord. I have often driven her home from Deeping Hurst to Beauclieu. I was groom there, my lord, before I came here."

"That will do; you may go," said the Squire; and the three were left alone again.

They looked at one another for some moments in silence. The Squire was the first to speak.

"I am afraid," he said gravely, "that this is a hard case. I hate to sit in judgment upon any man, much less a man whom I loved so well as Karl. Dolores, your best plan will be to go to your husband's room, and see if there is any trace of that letter."

"I have not the strength to walk upstairs," she replied; and her pale face showed how true the words were.

"Then I will go for you," said the Squire.

"He was not absent long, and he returned with the letter in his hand. He had found it just as Sir Karl had thrust into the pocket of his coat. He held it out to his daughter."

"I have read it, Dolores," he said; "and I am afraid the simple and shameful truth is, that Lola de Ferras has persuaded your husband to go away with her. Read the letter yourself."

The Squire, watching her as she obeyed, thought that it would have been easier to see her die than to witness such unutterable anguish creep into her face.

"I will not believe," she cried—"not from any evidence, not from any person but myself or her! Why should he run away with her? He never loved her; he loved me." And then she recollected Lola's threat—"When he has grown tired of you and your washed-out, faded kind of beauty, his heart will turn to me, and then I shall take my revenge."

"Great Heaven, was this her revenge? He with a terrible cry she fell upon her knees. Did Lola's revenge then consist in taking her husband

The Torture of ECZEMA Prevented Sleep.

Mr. Paul Lariviere, Meadowville Station, Pictou Co., N.S., writes as follows: "I shall always praise Burdock Blood Bitters as the best remedy for skin diseases. I had been suffering from Salt Rheum or Eczema for the past five years and could not get any rest from the terrible burning and itching, which was worse at night and prevented me sleeping."

"Hearing of B.B.B. I thought I would try it, and after using one bottle I was so much relieved that I continued using it, taking six bottles in all, and am now completely cured."

It is a blessing that there is such a reliable remedy as B.B.B. for those tortured day and night with terrible skin diseases and who can get no relief from their misery.

Apply it externally and it takes out the fire and aids in the healing process.

Takes it internally and it purifies the blood of all those poisons which are the source of skin eruptions.

from her? Yet Dolores felt convinced that Karl had not ceased to love her. If ever any man had seemed devoted to a woman, he had appeared so to her on the very night of his disappearance. Was could have been more kind or more tender? It was improbable that he, so upright and honorable, should have gone away with Lola. She would never believe it. Lola had written to him, and he had not told her the contents of the letter. Lola had sent for him to meet her unknown to his wife, and he had gone. But, in spite of all that she knew that he would never leave her for Lola, why should he when he loved her with all his heart?

"And the children?" she cried aloud. "Do you think that, even if Karl could leave me, he would leave them? No, there is some treachery, some mistake! He has not left me, my darling, my husband, my love! Oh, come back to me, Karl, or I shall die."

"Do you almost believe that to them when at length insensibly deprived her for a time of all knowledge of the trouble which had fallen upon her."

"I could almost pray that she might die in her unconsciousness," said the Squire, with a heavy sigh. "Great Heaven, how little did I ever think that such a fate would overtake my child."

"Do you really believe that Sir Karl has been foolish and wicked enough to elope with that girl?" asked Lord Rhyworth.

"Knowing what we do, I see little reason to doubt it," answered the Squire. "I would give my life to find that he was innocent, to see him back the upright, honorable man that I have hitherto believed him to be. I cannot help thinking him guilty. There is no doubt the girl loved him, and no one knows what a woman can persuade even the most sensible men to do."

But Dolores, who lay seriously ill, still retained her faith in her husband.

"I shall never believe it," she said, "until I hear it from his own lips or from hers."

In the meantime the news had spread that the banquet had happened. The whole neighborhood was in a commotion about it. No one would credit the story. It seemed utterly impossible that Sir Karl, whose marriage had been a perfect joy to all who knew him, should have left them deliberately.

Sporting

Jeffries Wants to Fight Fitzsimmons, Ruhlin or Sharkey.

Has Posted a Forfeit—Mr. Balfour Praises Golf—Challenge for the Canada's Cup.

FISTIC.

SIX ROUNDS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 12.—Jack O'Brien, of this city, had the better of Jimmy Handler, of Newark, N. J., tonight in a six-round fight at the Pennsylvania Athletic Club.

BANTAM CHAMPIONSHIP.

London, Nov. 12.—At the National Sporting Club last evening a 20-round contest for the bantam championship between Peddler Palmer and Harry Ware resulted in a victory for the latter, although Palmer showed himself a better man than his opponent, and held the fight on points until toward the end, when Ware showed to advantage.

RYAN WON FROM THORNE.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Tommy Ryan easily disposed of Jeff Thorne, of England, at the Chicago Athletic Club tonight for six rounds, but early in the third Ryan landed a right cross-counter on the jaw that put the Englishman to sleep. The fight was Ryan's and he won on points until toward the end, when he shot a counter that ended the fight.

JEFFRIES WANTS TO FIGHT.

New York, Nov. 12.—James J. Jeffries, the heavy-weight pugilist, is anxious to meet Bob Fitzsimmons, Gus Ruhlin or Tom Sharkey in a glove contest, in order to show that he is prepared to defend his title. He issued a challenge on Saturday to all three. Fitzsimmons preferred, and posted a forfeit of $2,500 with "Al" Smith to bind a match. He asks the three men or their managers to meet him next Wednesday at the Grand Opera House, and in case all three accept, he will fight them in order named, providing that sufficient time for training is allowed him between the bouts.

As a result of the challenge issued on Saturday by James J. Jeffries, offering to fight Bob Fitzsimmons, Gus Ruhlin or Tom Sharkey, and a telegram from Fitzsimmons declining a match on account of engagements existing on all May next, Jeffries last night made the following statement: "If Fitzsimmons does not come to terms by Wednesday I shall arrange to meet Ruhlin or Sharkey on terms to be agreed upon. It is my intention to fight at least once a year. My choice of battleground would be Nevada, for there we could go to a finish, and in such a contest there would be no doubt as to who is the better man. I have written Mr. Ruhlin's manager, telegraphed last night that Ruhlin will at once post a forfeit to bind the match."

FOOTBALL.

PLAYED IN SIX INCHES OF SNOW. Montreal, Nov. 12.—The football match between the Montreal and Britannias Saturday was a remarkable one. In the first place, it was played in six inches of wet, clammy, disagreeable snow. In the second place, it was over and finished by ten minutes past four—very short time. It was easily visible that the team which used the foot would be the winning one. Running was out of the question in the deep, clinging snow, and here was where Britannia was weakest. The final score was: Montreal 11, Britannia 1.

TURF.

AT NEW YORK. New York, Nov. 12.—Bad starting again marred the racing at the Aqueduct today. In the third race the jockeys, with the exception of Thompson on Miss Mitchell, were in the act of pulling up when the flag was dropped. Cephalgia was left at the post, and by the better man, Patalist. Two favorites won, Sir Florian in the fourth and Barrette in the fifth. Sir Florian made all the running and won easily from Borough, and Barrette, off none too long, made a rush and won cleverly from the pacemaker, Akora. Prince Richard at 8 to 1 won the first race ridden out. Godfrey, on whom Williams rode a careless race, and Mid-lateh, at 30 to 1, won the second a head before Gladerun and Roe Hampton. Roe Hampton and Military were off running, and made the pace, while Gladerun was all but left. Sharp persevered with him, however, and at the end was beaten only a short head. The Rhymer and Belle of Troy were equal favorites in the last race, but Rhymer was first home. Sharp kept him well up all the way, and coming away when the Rhymer stopped, he won cleverly from Belle of Troy. The weather was clear, track fast.

ACCUSED OF "PULLING." London, Nov. 12.—In view of the local stewards of Liverpool having summoned Wishard, the trainer, and Lester Reiff, the jockey, for an explanation of the Doncaster running of Mr. Richard Croker's horse, Scotchman II, it is regarded in racing circles as likely that Reiff's license will be canceled. Lord Durham today plainly accused Reiff of "pulling."

GOLF. MR. BALFOUR PRAISES GOLF. London, Nov. 12.—The Right Hon. A. J. Balfour has delighted his fellow-enthusiasts in golf by solemnly affirming that he would rather be a scratch player than a member of parliament. He said many more laudatory things about the game.

Among the merits of golf, to his mind, was that it taught a man how to win and how to lose. He was glad that it taught one how to lose because he had had that experience that afternoon, and he frankly confessed that he would rather lose a game than not play at all. He believed that golf was destined to play a great part in the social life of the country, a much greater part than dreamed of at all at present. He said he had personal experience of the great pleasure it conferred. The rest it provided for overworked brains and the help it had given unexercised muscles.

Another good point about golf, he said, is that it is essentially a game for every class. It is not expensive; at any rate, it need not and ought not to be.

YACHTING. FOR THE CANADA'S CUP. Toronto, Nov. 12.—The Royal Canadian Yacht Club decided Saturday night to issue a challenge for the Canada's cup, now held by the Chicago Yacht Club, as a result of the Genesee cup win. The race will be sailed next summer, and the terms and conditions will be settled at a conference between representatives of the two clubs. As the cup is held by virtue of the victory of a Rochester yacht, Rochester men may want to say something as to the conditions of the race, and the general view here is that the American yachtmen will decide to have it sailed at Buffalo during the Pan-American Exhibition. There will be several designs from which the challenger may be built, and Mr. George H. Goddard is credited with the intention of sparring no expense to bring the Canada's cup back to the Dominion.

THE TRAVELERS Annual Meeting of Dominion Association in Montreal. Montreal, Nov. 13.—The annual general meeting for the nomination of officers of the Dominion Commercial Travelers' Association was held on Saturday evening. The president, Mr. Max Murdoch, in introducing the business of the evening, stated that of the last annual meeting the association numbered 3,475 members, and that during the year this had been increased by about 300. During the year they had lost by death 54 members, which was an unusually large number. Notwithstanding this fact, they carried forward a larger surplus than ever.

Nominations were then opened for officers for the ensuing year as follows: For president, James Robertson, and for vice-president, James Robertson; treasurer, R. O. Demers and J. S. N. Dougall; directors, John Hughes, A. R. Colvin, R. Booth, Jun., G. Tasse, W. J. Egan, A. M. Ramsay and W. E. Dixon.

THE GHOST Of our boyhood resolved itself to a old friend when we had courage to examine it. Manhood has its ghosts, which, to the man who has courage to confront them, prove to be as harmless as the ghosts of boyhood. One of the ghosts which scare a great many people is the ghost of a childhood disease. But experience shows this ghost to be very harmless. In cases almost innumerable "weak" lungs have been made strong, obstinate coughs stopped, and bronchial affections cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. And these cures have been wrought in many cases after the doctor had said, "There is no help for you."

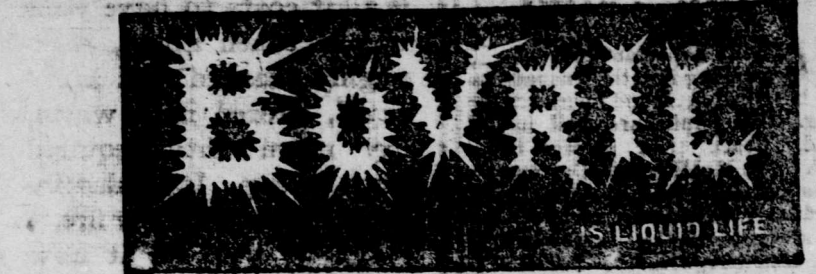

Don't give in to the superstition of a past age. Give the "Golden Medical Discovery" a fair and faithful trial. It always helps. It almost always cures.

"When I commenced taking your medicine eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sanderlin of Chesville, Calvert Co., Md. "At times I could not even walk across the room without pain in my chest. The doctor who attended me said I had lung trouble, and that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I bought a bottle of your Golden Medical Discovery, took it, and soon commenced to feel a little better; then you directed me to buy the Golden Medical Discovery, and the favorite prescription which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of your Golden Medical Discovery, twelve of the Favorite Prescription, and five vials of 'Pellets.' I am now almost entirely well, and do all my work without any pain whatever, and can now walk more easily than I could formerly do."
