HOWLING PUP STARTED PANIC

Raced Into a Dundas Street Store After Being Bumped By a Street Car.

GIRLS TOOK TO COUNTER

"The dog's mad" was the thought that flashed through the minds of a number of salesladies in a Dundas street store one day this week when a diminutive poodle dog rushed in, yelling frantically and began describing circles on the floor.

Instantly panic ensued, and every girl in the store mounted the counters with all speed. Even the top of the office safe had its fair occupant.

One lonely man was on the premises at the time, and seeing how serious was the situation he resorted on a desperate remedy. Armed with an umbrella and holding a long raincoat in front of him as a shield he endeavored to poke the howling canine in the ribs and thus induce him to leave the premises. His efforts only served to make the pup madder, and the screams of the young ladies as they beheld the frantic encounter brought a number of spectators to the door, but no one could get near the dog.

It was then that the hero entered (climbed the front door). He was not a particularly brave-looking man, but he walked fearlessly up to the dog and grasping him by the back of the neck carried him to the street. The dog ceased to howl, and with a wag of his tail trotted off.

Mad? Of course he was mad. He had just been bumped by a street car, and the store was the first haven of refuge he noticed, so he rushed in there to voice his complaint. The hero was a man who witnessed the incident and understood what the dog had vainly endeavored to convey to the employees of the store.

MAYOR DISLIKES
BARB WIRE FENCES!
BARBED WORDS FLY

Refuses to Permit Citizen to Use Old Fence to Protect His Property.

Front Street Residents Petition the Board of Works for a Breakwater.

In the opinion of Mr. George J. Carly, there's nothing like a barbed wire fence to protect a garden patch. Mr. Carly lives on the south side. He holds property on Waterloo street, between Ottawa avenue and the river, and the city has recently purchased some land from him in consideration of Mr. Carly's claim for damages on the ground that the location of the incinerator in his vicinity injures the value of his property.

On Thursday night Mr. Carly appeared before the board of works and asked permission to remove a barbed wire fence, which now stands on the property sold to the city. The city has no use for a barbed wire fence, and the value of it is insignificant, but Mr. Carly wants to replace the fence on the new boundaries of his property and Mayor Graham has a strong aversion to barbed wire fences.

Mayor Warns.

Mr. Carly got by the civic objections to barbed wire fences on the street line before putting the wire on the line of the posts. He did this on a lawyer's advice, he said.

"Well," said Mayor Graham, "I suppose you can't prevent you doing that, but you will have to get a new fence. If you want to use the old fence again, I will do all I can to prevent you getting it."

At Saunders' and something to say about barbed wire fences, too. It appears that one night recently Ald. Saunders discovered a barbed fence on the south side of the Government School of Art, occurred at the family residence on Maitland street, on May 21, after a brief illness. The deceased was a native of Devonshire, England, and came to this country with her parents when quite young and settled in London Township. She is survived by six daughters—Mrs. Walter Adams, Mrs. Miss Sara, of Goderich Hospital; the Misses Eliza, Rose, Ada, Louise, at home, and one son, Mr. John W. Griffiths, of this city. She is also survived by three brothers, Mr. Thomas Wonnacott, of London Township; Mr. John Wonnacott, of Port Huron, and Mr. Robert Wonnacott of this city.

The death of Mrs. Griffiths, relict of the late John H. Griffiths, for many years a member of the Government School of Art, occurred at the family residence on Maitland street, on May 21, after a brief illness. The deceased was a native of Devonshire, England, and came to this country with her parents when quite young and settled in London Township. She is survived by six daughters—Mrs. Walter Adams, Mrs. Miss Sara, of Goderich Hospital; the Misses Eliza, Rose, Ada, Louise, at home, and one son, Mr. John W. Griffiths, of this city. PRAISE FOR PRESS BY PROGRESSIVES OF CITY'S EAST END

Action of South London Association in Barring Reporters Strongly Condemned.

West London Breakwater, Market Place, Sunday Cars and Dust Nuisance Discussed.

The action of the South London Progressive Association, on passing a resolution barring representatives of the press from their meetings, was severely criticized, saying that in the "East End Progressives Thursday evening." "Had it not been for the press of London," said Mr. Reginald Christian, "the South London Progressives would not have been in existence today. How dare they bar the press? We have no right in an association of this kind to keep out the press. We're always pleased to see the reporters, and we're sorry when they're not here."

Mr. E. A. Pocock, who was present as a delegate from the West London Progressives, also paid a high compliment, saying that in the main the reports of the meetings had been accurate and fair. He had always found the reporters ready to correct any mistakes that might have been made if their attention was drawn to it.

Market a Reality Soon.

The standing committee on the East London market scheme reported progress, and expressed the belief that it would soon be a reality. "Only hope they don't put it off like they have been doing with the West London bridge," commented Mr. J. Pearson. He also reviewed the breakwater situation.

"Mr. Christian thought that the talk of spending $75,000 on it was just wandering talk, and urged the acceptance of Mr. Churchill's contract to build it for $20,000. "I think the people would be inclined to vote for and pass a bylaw for that amount," he said. "The objection to it, he declared, was that it was merely an outlay and no returns could be expected from it. "But it is not a dead outlay," remarked Mr. Wakeling.

"The city will never pay out a cent for that breakwater," said Mr. Pocock. "West London, between now and the next twenty years, will pay every cent of the cost in increased assessments."

Favors Cement Wall.

He also approved the plan of Mr. Churchill for a cement wall. "The city will never pay out a cent for that breakwater," said Mr. Pocock. "West London, between now and the next twenty years, will pay every cent of the cost in increased assessments."

The Dust Nuisance.

Mr. Christian drew attention to the dust nuisance on Dundas street, and thought that the city engineer's department should oil Dundas street before doing any of the other work.

A resolution was passed commending Mr. Pring for his good work while parks superintendent, and recommending his reappointment. Every council member in his own way expressed his appreciation, as a practical man of experience.

Great pleasure was expressed that the military training camp was again coming to London, and Mr. Christian said the city council at once take steps to secure with the Government the land necessary to make it a permanent institution for this city.

The association placed itself on record as being strongly in favor of Sunday cars, and asked that the people be allowed to vote on the question at the same time as electrification, if that were possible.

CHRISTIANITY IS NOT FADING, SAYS BAPTIST PASTOR

Delegates to Big Northern Convention Hear Views of Dr. Ferris.

Eloquent Bostonian Balances Theory of Evolution Against His Query.

Detroit, May 23.—Is Christianity the world's greatest light?

This question was balanced against the records of evolution and the vanished gods of the ages Thursday afternoon by Rev. George Hooper Ferris, D. D., of the First Baptist Church, of Philadelphia, in an address before the Northern Baptist convention, now meeting at the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church.

Amid the echoes of Dr. Ferris' answer to his own question, a delegate in the Iowa section of the auditorium arose in the open parliament and asked:

"Why is the home expense of the foreign missionary so large? Why does it cost $100,000 a year for the handling of the money that we send into the foreign field?"

Finances Misunderstood.

It was Rev. P. J. Haggart, of Boston, chairman of the convention's appropriation committee, who answered this question. He declared that there was a great deal of misunderstanding concerning the handling of Baptist finances in the northern half of the country.

"False criticism based upon this misunderstanding has cost us hundreds of thousands of dollars, by diverting from our treasury gifts which might have gone there. We are in more danger of undoing a thing than overdoing it. In much of this work there may seem to be waste. But in doing God's work in the world there is no waste, when energies are directed with sincerity to the spreading of the spirit."

"The cost of handling our missionary funds has fluctuated back and forth between 11 per cent and 15 per cent, in recent years, reaching its highest point about 29 years ago. Stories have gone forth that the secretaries of our missionary societies travel in luxury, one report saying that some of them were given to using two berths in a sleeping car."

"Books Open To All."

"These reports are both untrue and absurd. Our books are open to everyone. We have nothing to conceal." The delegate from Iowa arose again. "When I put the question," he said, "I was thinking of the twin teams that go out across the country speaking. I was wondering if they really got results that justified the expenditure for them. I know of towns in Iowa where the twin teams went to rouse the congregations, and where the churches 'fell down' afterward."

"Excellent reports have come from Iowa," said Dr. Haggart, "and from many states there comes a mass of tangible evidence of the inspiration which these travelling teams radiate among those who hear their words. Reverting to the dangers of false criticism, Dr. Haggart explained how the home expense was divided, some of it being actually foreign expense, but charged to home expense as a matter of convenience."

Dr. Ferris' Discourse.

It was an impassioned discourse which Dr. Ferris delivered at the beginning of the afternoon session. He spoke of the twin teams that go out across the country speaking. I was wondering if they really got results that justified the expenditure for them. I know of towns in Iowa where the twin teams went to rouse the congregations, and where the churches 'fell down' afterward."
