

3000-Year-Old Necklet; Stage Own Show; Hiking Honeymooners

Francis Hazeltine, of Springfield, Missouri, and Helen Snow of Arlington were married. The wedding was the usual one—orange blossoms and all. But for a honeymoon the couple hiked it to Niagara Falls.

The latest in chapeau fashions to reach this continent from Paris is this charming close-fitting hat, of a light summer-weight material, featuring ball feathers at the side.

The many children, who accompanied the 2,000 people to the C.N.R. picnic to Erie Beach recently, had the thrill of their lives by a ride on a real camel.

Maxine Elliott, the well-known actress, is, according to cable reports, settling $500,000 on her niece and namesake, Miss Maxine Frances Mary Forbes-Robertson, who is to marry soon.

Miss Ruth Rose, secretary to Dr. William Beebe of the Bronx Zoo, is shown with a live giant sloth and a monkey, found in the jungles of British Guiana during a tour of exploration to those parts.

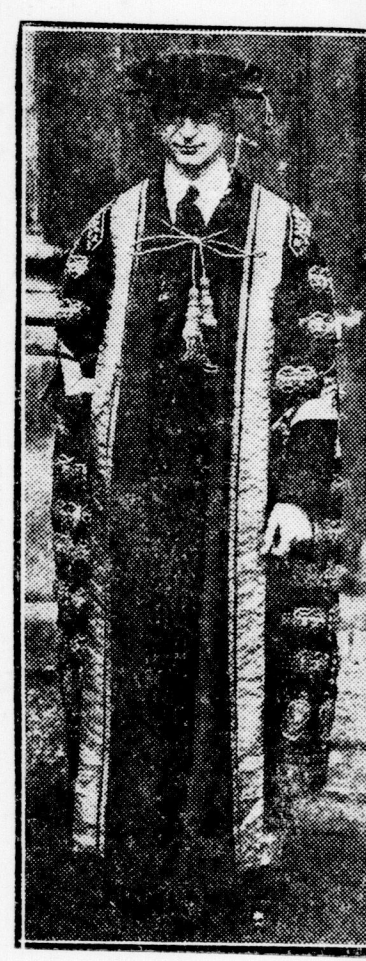

Mrs. Gloria Gould Bishop, granddaughter of the late J. Gould, has just received a diploma as a dancing teacher. She is shown with her first pupil, "Baby Peggy" Montgomery, juvenile movie star.

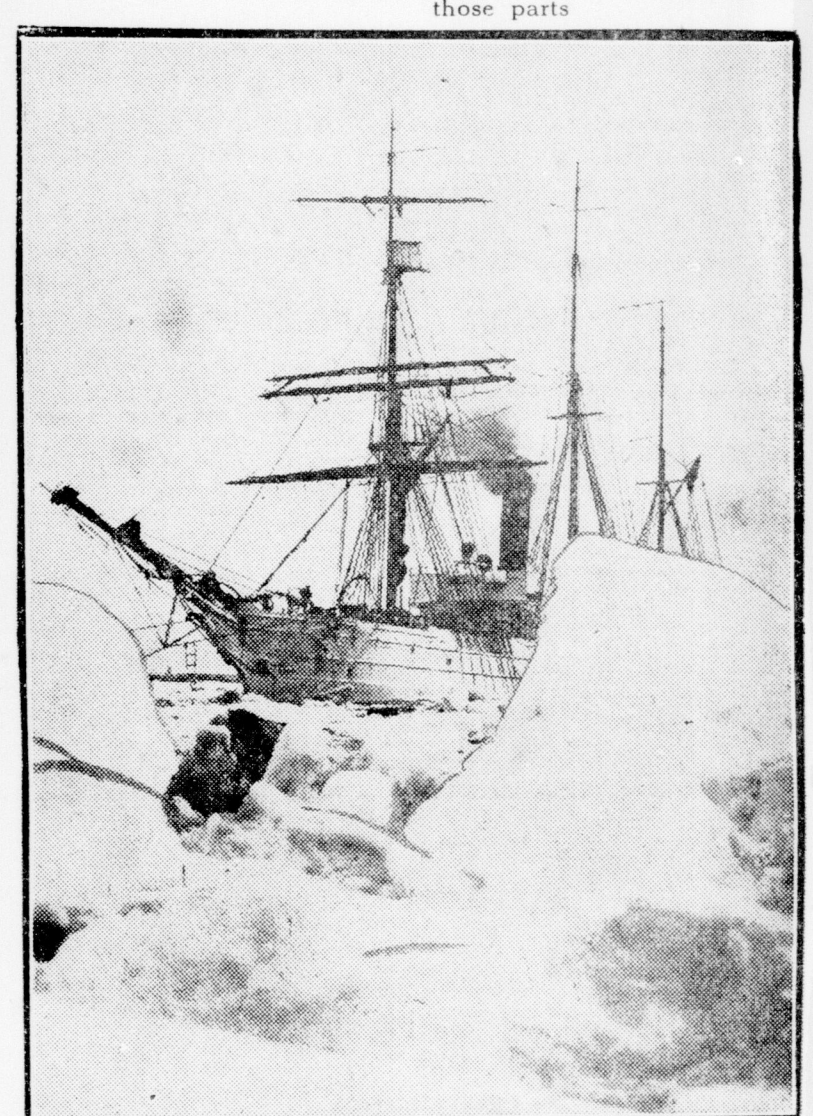

"Hello, folks." One of the cowboys who competed in the rodeo show at the British Empire Exhibition is shown saluting the crowd before showing them some western thrills.

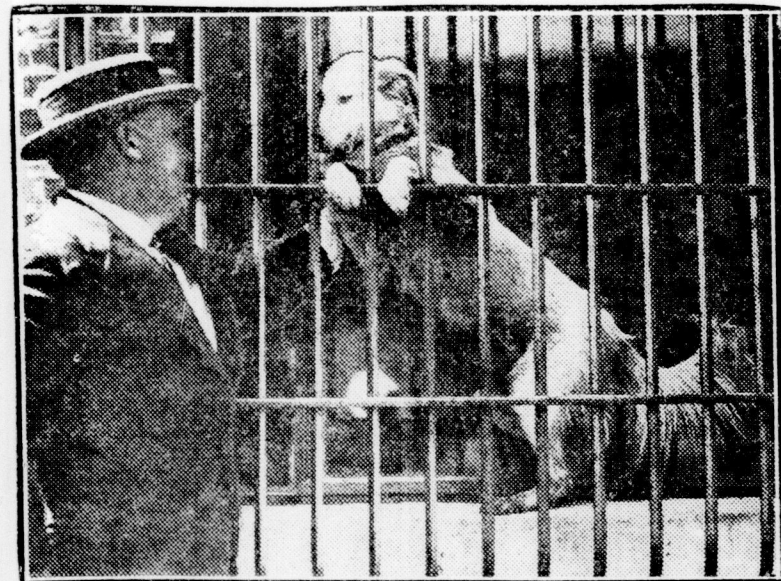

Mr. P. L. Tengley in the gala dress of the Bale of Ibadan, an influential African chief, is shown as he appeared in episode in the Empire Pageant at Wembley. He is wearing a very rare and valuable necklet of glass beads, 3,000 years old, said to have been made by the Phoenicians.

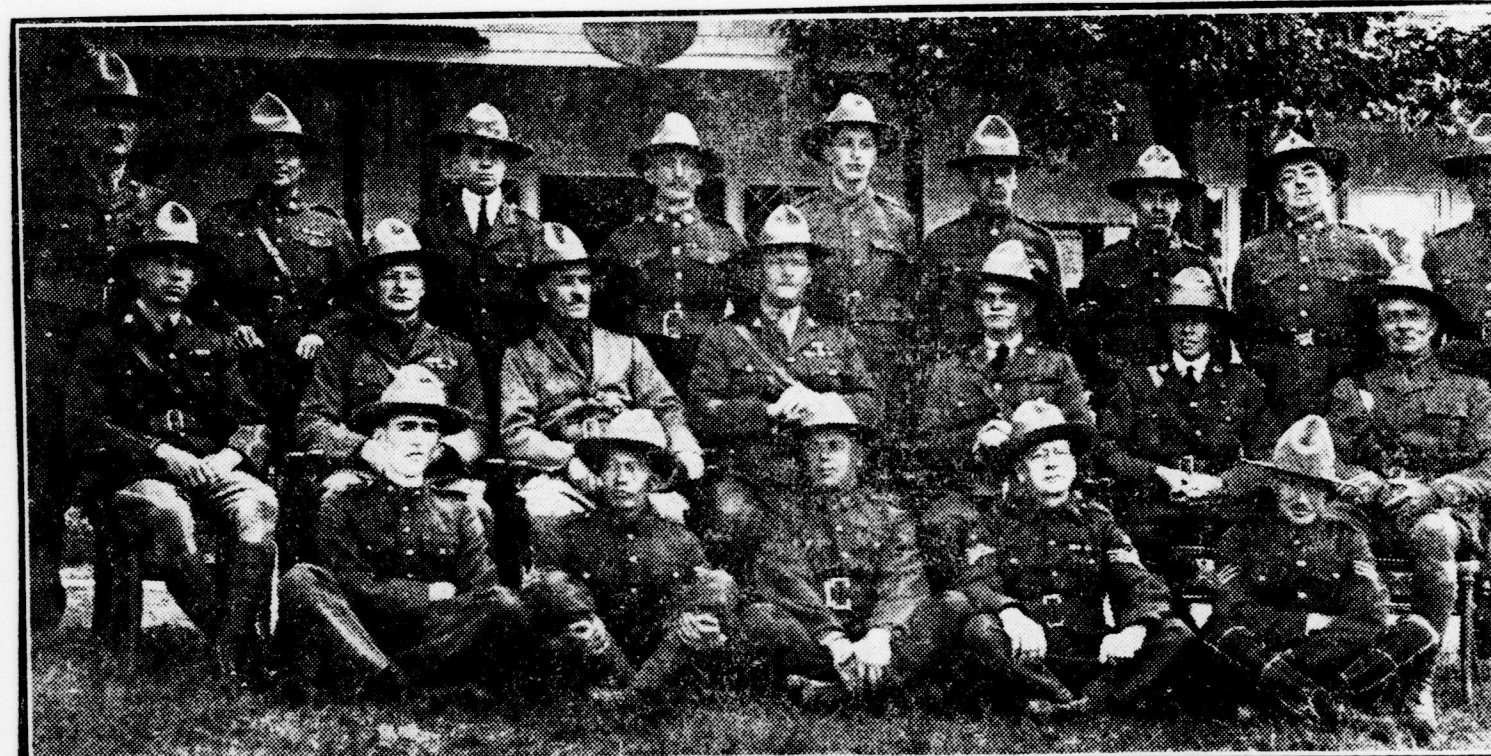

Eamon de Valera, the Irish rebel patriot, is shown in his robes as chancellor of the Irish National University, following his recent release by the Free State authorities. It is reported that he is coming to this continent.

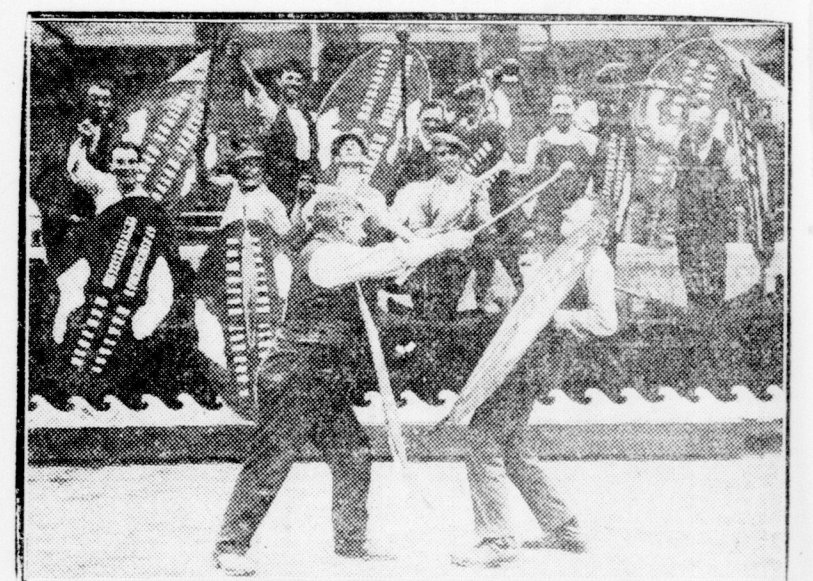

The venerable coast-guard cutter, the Bear, has made her last journey to the Arctic, and may find her grave up there, too. Recent reports claimed that the vessel was pinched fast in the ice with two propellers broken.

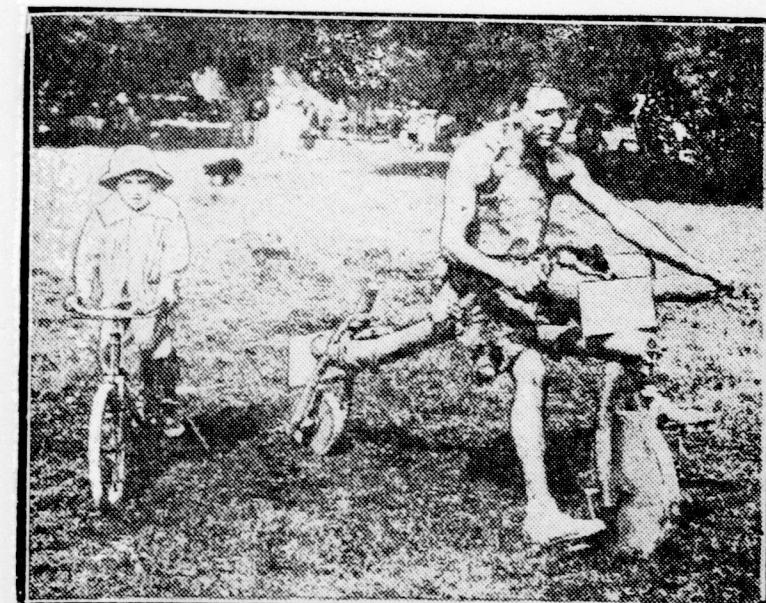

Governor Baxter, of Maine, a great lover of dogs, has given the above canine to the occupants of the state prison. He says that this four-footed missionary will bring much happiness and rouse the best in the men.

The group of Canadian marksmen, who carried off high honors at the National Rifle Association's 61st annual meeting at Bisley, are shown in the above photograph. Pte. Desmond Burke, the King's Prize winner, is seated at the left in the front row.

The workmen who were engaged in preparing the stadium at Wembley for the great Empire Pageant indulged in an unofficial pageant of their own during their lunch hour.

The prehistoric bicycle rider, who won first prize at a carnival at Gloucestershire, England, is a contrast to the young lad on a modern machine. The wheels of the prize contrivance are grindstones.

The famous Red, White and Blue aquatic troupe of children from the Panama Canal Zone are shown on their arrival in New York recently for an exhibition tour. The young swimming marvels range in age from five and a half to fifteen years.

Here's one of the charming lady pupils "making hay while the sun shines" at the Watford farm and garden school on the estate of the late Lord Clarendon in England.