Iamit, a well-meaning but fussy monarch, who states, among other things, that the price of fish is much too high. He was very practical. Lady Ida, the court chaperon, also entered with the king, and together they conversed on the subject at hand, the betrothal of the beauteous princess of the palace.

The came the princess' friend, Lilia, and in this role Miss Gladys Burns played excellently. With much grace she told of the broken heart of the princess, who entered after a snappy little chorus by her maids of honor. Miss Chrissie Wright was charming, and her sweet voice held the audience chaperon. Between the king's arrival and that of the princess, there was a bit of brisk conversation, during as a peddler of perfume, and immediately upon his entrance he captivated his listeners with a lovely little song. "I'm a Peddler, Peddling Perfumes." As soon as the princess heard his om then on throughout the play here were many exciting complica-tions, which were finally straightened ut in the second act, but not before some exciting climaxes have been

Music Is Excellent.

All through the play there was nusic just as excellent as that of he opening chorus, and the play was indeed attractive. The cast included also. Alain, a friend of the prince. Fred Phelps; maids of honor to Bulbul, Miss Irene Brown, Miss Dorothy Dickerson, Miss Elda Cossey, Miss Violet Partridge, Mrs. J. W. Peart, Miss Donna Schram and Miss Lillian Santo: ladies of the court Mrs. Rupert Crouch, Mrs. E. S. Detwiler. Miss Jean Fysh, Mrs. E. S. Miss Jean Maitland, Miss M. Maitland, Miss Donna Schram and Mrs. R. J. Stevenson, and friends of Prince Caspian, (peddlers) and gentlemen of the court, H. V. Eckert, G. Foster, G. Gerald, E. Nichol, H. R. Sykes, O.

G. Wallace and A. E. Wright.
Mrs. Hubert Eckert directed the music of the play, and she was ably assisted by Mrs. Chas. Wilson, stage director, and Miss B. Gibson, Mrs. F. Phelps, Mrs. H. Rennie, Mrs. H. Shuttleworth, Mrs. C. Sweet, Dr. E. S. Detwiler and Hugh Shuttleworth.

The splendid production will also been hanging fire. This was decided upon at a lively meeting held in the basement of the Church of the Resurbase this through ignorance, you have done it for the deliberate purpose of minimizing distress and keeping remedered dangerous at night on activities.

FEW PERSONS ARE "BORN" TIRED!

"Loss of Pep" is the way they characterize lack of energy, inability to stand even an ordinary day's work without getting exhausted. And they state that this "loss of Pep" is not merely a mental condition to be dismissed with a gesture, but a serious ondition necessitating adequate at and ambition, alert and courageous to seize every opportunity. That so many of us do not feel that way—don't seem to be able to stand the gaff—is attributed mainly to the faulty diet of the average family. Their diagnosis might be condensed as follows: Most people don't have pep because they don't eat it! Folks fill themselves with foods that only over-load their stomachs without is seconded by J. Balch. The matter has been before the city and the C. P. R. but nothing had been done to date, according to the secretary A. A.
