So broad is that clause covering the interference with trains that it includes even the throwing of a stone at a passenger train. Placing obstructions on the track, changing signals, derailing in any manner a train, damaging in any way the rolling stock, even the removal of a piece of timber or a bit of iron, the drawing of spikes from the ties, or the commission of any act calculated to endanger life or or to impair the efficiency of the service, are features of this portion of the law, and for the commission of which death is the benalty-summary death if detected in the commission and death at the end of eight days if found

In reviewing this provision, President Diaz is prepared to use again that weapon with which he whipped his country into order many years ago. The reason for the destruction of property this time is different, but Senor Diaz believes that what was effective then will be today. In its application this law will fit the foreigner as it will the native. In the ranks of the rebels there are numerous Americans and a few of other nationalities. Should any of these foreigners be captured while in the act of blowing up a bridge, they will not be entitled, under this clause, to any more mercy than is accorded the Mexican revolutionists. Although the mere announcemen that the government intends to deal mercilessly with those detected in acts of outlawry will have a most beneficial effect, Minister of War Gonzales Cozio believes the full force of the measure
