mamed Lespes, has just gone the way of all flesh. Like Nello's shop in Florence, the establishment directed by M. Lespes was once the matutinal resort of the literary and artistic celebrities of the day, as well as a local landmark for foreign titurists and provincials. The interior of the shop was not only decorated with sketches by well known artists, but was also embellished with scrapa of prose and verse, contributed by some of the leading literateurs of France.

Lespes, whose real name was Raymond, need to boast in the heady of his prosperity that, although heliad come to Paris in wooden shoes, he had succeeded so well in trade that he employed twenty assistants and paid taxes for fourteen windows on the bouleyard. It was Lespes who invented the famous Fortugal decoction with which French confeurranging the heads of their customers, and he actually received on this account the ribbon and copy of the Order of Christ from Don Luiz of Bortugal. He was proseculed, however, for wearing the ribbon, as it was like that of the Legion of Honor. Lespes retired from business once time ago.

From the Dawn of the Morning.

He saw the waent fields waiting All golden in the sun, And strong and stalwart reapers wont by wont by him one by one.

"Occuld I reap in harvest!" His heart made bitter cry. "I can do nothing, nothing. So weak, alas, and it."

At eve a fainting traveler Sank down beside his door; A cup of cool aweet water. To quench his thirst he bore.

And, when refreshed and strongthened, "The traveled and strongthened," The traveler went his way.

No art is more prominently and conspicuously brought before the public than photography. The question often asked is, "Where can I get a life-like pictures," "At Lemaitres, 224 Yonge-street," is the answer. By caroful attention to business and using the Al material, and employing only first-clues assistants, Mr. Lemaitre has built up a business that will bear comparison with any in the city.

At eve a fainting traveler
Sank down beside his door;
A cup of cool aweet water
To quench his thirst he bore.
And, when refreshed and streng
The traveler went his way,
Upon the poor man's threshold
A golden wheat sheaf lay.

When came the Lord of harvest,
He cried: "Oh, Master kind,
One sheaf I have to offer,
But that I did net bind.
I gave a cup of water
To one athirst, and he
Left at my door, in going,
This sheaf I offer Thee."

Then said the Master softly:

"Well pleased with this am I.
One of my angels left it
With thee as he passed by.
Thou mays not join the reapers
Upon the harvest plain,
But he who helps a brother
Binds sheaves of richest grain.
