"The Mouse That Roared: The Interaction Between Canada and the United States on Tobacco Regulation"

This manuscript is a product of the Canadian Studies Research Grant Program. The program promotes research in the social sciences, journalism, business, trade, environment, and law with a unique relevance to Canada, or in the context of the bilateral or North American relationship; and the social, cultural, political, and economic issues that impact on these relationships in the 1990s.

Research grants are designed to assist individual American scholars, a group of scholars, and/or scholars working with a cooperating Canadian institution, in writing an article-length manuscript of publishable quality that contributes to the development of Canadian Studies in the United States and reporting their findings in scholarly publications.

According to the terms and conditions of the grant, the rights of the manuscript remain the exclusive property of the researcher. Copies of the manuscript are provided to the Embassy and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade.

An earlier version of this paper was presented at the 1996 meeting of the Middle Atlantic and Northeast Conference on Canadian Studies, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, Pennsylvania, October 3-5, 1996. This research has been supported by a grant from the Canadian Consulate through the Faculty Research Program. The author thanks all of the people in the United States, who have provided him with information on this topic. Al Olivetti served as research assistant in Fall, 1994.
