

other workers, the company of, but it is not clear that the field, individuals in the executive and administrative key. It has been found that special placement services of the greatest assistance in obtaining work for persons with physical or mental handicaps. Not only have these persons succeeded in placing many handicapped persons in positions satisfactory but they have also found a large number of employers that handicapped persons, given proper working conditions, can be valuable producers. Any employer who is not prepared to accept a handicapped worker, since they know the under favorable conditions in the work place, will be detected, a serious person.

The National Employment Service provides special counseling facilities for persons who are handicapped. It is recognized that the first job is of very great importance to a person with a handicap. It is of the same importance as that of a good deal of training and the individual may be excluded. As for the other workers, careful attention counseling through re-orientation and special placement services in his position to obtain satisfactory work.

It is, of course, impossible to predict the future of the National Employment Service. However, since it has now functioned successfully under conditions of war and of peace in view of the growth in the public relations and of the increased use of its facilities by both workers and employers, this service seems certain to develop and expand still further with the growth of Canada.

Regional offices of the National Employment Service are located at the following addresses:-

- |                         |   |                 |
|-------------------------|---|-----------------|
| 1000 Main Street        | - | MONCTON, N.B.   |
| 1001 St. Charles Street | - | QUEBEC, P.Q.    |
| 25 St. John Avenue, W.  | - | TORONTO, Ont.   |
| 250 Bloor Street        | - | W. M.P., Ont.   |
| 115 Robson Street       | - | VANCOUVER, B.C. |