

PREFACE.

The primary object of an efficient Police is the prevention of crime ; the next, that of the detection and punishment of offenders, if crime is committed.

To these ends all the efforts of Police must be directed—the protection of life and property, the preservation of public tranquility, and the absence of crime will alone prove whether those efforts have been successful, and whether the objects for which the Police were appointed have been attained.