Calls on the Liberals to Unite and Face the Present Difficulties.

Leicester, Nov. 8 .- Lord Rosebery, addressing an audience here yesterday afternoon, said the attitude of the present government was unparalleled. Joseph Chamberlain's policy rested a certainty for an hypothesis. The speaker admitted that the condition of the country was unsatisfactory. St. Thomas, Nov. 8.—At the West

Eighty commercial travelers, after listening to Lord Rosebery's speech Saturday, declared they were not converted by his arguments and forwarded a resolution to Mr. Chamberlain, endorsing his policy.

The Express comments on Lord Rosebery's cry on behalf of commercial repose, and says: "We listen to the song beginning "The Voice of the Sluggard," and says every newspaper in Canada endorses Mr. Chamberlain except the organ of Goldwin Smith.

The Mail asks: If free trade is the correct policy, why is it that England stands second to the great commercial nations and has stood still in the matter of manufacture exports since its?2?

MEMORIAL OF BOER WAR.

London, Nov. 8.—A curious memorial of the Boer war is recorded from Surrey. At Burstaw, in that county, a drinking trough and fountain has been erected by a local personage in memory of 400,000 horses killed and wounded during the South African war from 1899 to 1902 "in a cause of which they knew nothing."

Five out of six articles in the monthly reviews dealing with Imperial questions accept Chamberlain as the embodiment of all that is virile resourceful and far-sighted in the British race to-day. In places of public amusement no entertainer is allowed to make fun of him. The cartoon of Chamberlain, drawn by Max Beerbohm, was forced to be withdrawn, because it was offensive to the public. The best men in parliament deplored the prevalence of corruption, but cound do nothing in present circumstances. They were in the hands of the caucuses. One member, now a senator, had declared before his election that if one single illegal payment was made to secure his return he would prosecute the bribers with the utmost rigor of the law. He won his election, but at the next he was quietly shelved and told the contest could not be held with that restriction. Even members of their own church and class leaders were concerned in these corrupt practices, which are done sometimes in the heat of the election, and brought shame and a hanging head next day.
